THINGS SEEN AND HEARD IN THE TOWN AND VICINITY.

The New School Building Question Is Treated Upon in an Intelligent Manner by the Sauterers—Some Facts and Figures Which Require Consideration.

The agitation for the new school building is now fairly under way, and it is to be hoped that the discussion will be continued until the question becomes threadbare. It is of great importance to have the people fully understand what is required of them, in order that they may cast their votes intelligently. Nothing has been done by the directors to enlighten the public, except to ask to be allowed to increase the debt. True, a design of a $23,000 eight-room building has been exhibited, but if they know anything more about the subject they seem to be carefully keeping the information to themselves, and the columns which have been written in defense of a new school are entirely overlooking the vital parts of the proposition and do not in any way justify the creation of an eight-room building, such as has been adopted by the board. Additional school facilities must be had, but is it not better to have the right kind when they do come than to erect a costly edifice which will not serve the purposes intended?

Nothing, by the way of a thorough explanation, has been given on this subject, and as the people were left to draw their own conclusions from actions of the directors, which were not at all creditable, who can blame them for opposing the proposition? Can the directors state positively that an eight-room building will accommodate all the school-going children of Freeland? Have they made a census of the school-going children of the town, and if so what are the figures? It would be unfair (or rather premature) to accuse the directors of willfully "doing" the taxpayers an injustice, but figures from reliable sources indicate that this is what they are doing, or else their judgment is of a quality which marks them as incompetent and unfit to arrange for a matter of this kind. The board may mean well, and in all probability the members will insist they are right, but until they refute the facts and figures given below an eight-room building should not be sanctioned by the taxpayers.

The new school building would have accommodations for 400 pupils—50 to each room. This number is considered sufficient by experienced teachers in graded, and too many in mixed schools. The report of the principal of the borough schools gave the attendance as 286 for January. From this report the new building would have room for 114 pupils. Independent of the borough principal's report the school at Birtvanton has 83 pupils enrolled. The Woodside school has 71 pupils enrolled in the grammar room and 112 in the primary room. It must be remembered that these are all borough children, with the exception of a few allowed for the Coxie addition, which would not materially change the result. Thus we have on the rolls of our public schools about 550 pupils, and the board of directors want to expend $23,000 for a building which will accommodate only 400! What is going to be done with the other 150 pupils? That is a question which requires an answer and the directors owe it to the taxpayers of Freeland to furnish one before election day.

But this is not all. There are at least 150 borough children attending St. Ann's parochial schools. These children must be taken into consideration also. They have an unquestioned right to apply for admission to the public schools any time they so desire. The school law says: "The directors shall establish a sufficient number of common schools for the education of every individual above the age of six and under twenty-one years, in their respective districts, who may apply for admission." Then again, the town is growing so rapidly that the school-going population is increasing largely every year, and that has not been allowed for. This is nothing but a question of justice to the taxpayers and children, and unless "our excellent school board" is going to use the trolley car system in our public schools—"push up there" and "hold on to the straps"—they ought to withdraw the proposition and have it remodeled so as to provide ample accommodation for all the children.

In enumerating the ups and downs of life in the mining towns, as told by men who stroll into Freeland to while away the idle days which are now so plentiful, the evils of former years, which the miners have so repeatedly made war upon, seem to flourish without being questioned, and with all the vigor and energy possessed by a demon. The gossip, as it comes, is not idle. On the contrary, it is only too true. In some of the towns the people are well enough situated, but in others the hand of charity would be a welcome visitor at the door of many families. The spirit of charity, however, is not running rampant in the mining towns. It never was and never will, and even it was, men who are strong and willing to work despise the word and for that reason often endure the pangs of poverty in silence.

A gentleman speaking of the condition of work and the people, in the town in which he resides, last week said: "I never saw the place in such a bad state as it is now. During the past year the mines didn't average three days a week, and there is no question but men with families are in reduced circumstances. They couldn't be in any other way, because it will make a family of eight hustle to get along on $4 to $6 per week when the fixed charges, house rent, etc., are taken out. Still, it is being done, but I tell you it don't afford any luxuries. Yes, it is a time of economy among the people of the town I live in and so long as the work and earnings of the men are determined by the manager of the company store, things are not going to be any better."

Jeddo Tunnel to Be Opened.
Judge Rice has rendered a decision in the Jeddo tunnel case, which has been on trial in court for over two weeks, in favor of the company. In order to drain the Jeddo, Ebervale and Harleigh mines of millions of gallons of water, and thereby reach the rich deposits of coal, it was necessary for the Jeddo Tunnel Company to drive a tunnel five miles long at a cost of $2,500,000. Everything was complete for the firing of the blast which was to shatter the walls separating the lower workings of the mines from the tunnel, and thus liberate the great quantity of water in the mines, when an injunction was served on the company by a number of farmers of Butler and Conyngham valleys to prevent their completing the work. The farmers claimed that the water liberated from the mines would flow along the creek, and their farms would be practically destroyed; that it would be impossible to water their stock, and that the coal dirt cast upon the banks of the creek when it overflowed would spread over their fields.

The decision of Judge Rice gives the company authority to tap the water, but says it must be done by degrees, so as not to entail loss to the farmers. The draining of the tunnel assures as a result the rebuilding of Ebervale and Harleigh, which were well populated and prosperous, but which, since the flooding of the mines, have been practically deserted.

Brained His Child.

From the Wilkes-Barre Record.
A horrible tale of infanticide was told in Squire Ford's office at Georgetown yesterday, which, if true, will land a Poleander named Silenski on the scaffold. Silenski was married about a year ago and a little girl was born a few months ago. The child died, was buried and there was no more thought of it until Tuesday night. Silenski got drunk, so a neighbor woman alleges, and bragged about the way he beat the life out of his own daughter by dashing its brains out on the floor and then buried it. Last evening a warrant was sworn out on the man's arrest. Constables Lyons and Cramer say they have evidence enough to convict Silenski of one of the most atrocious crimes ever committed in that place. The parties interested will have the body disinterred and a rigid investigation will follow. Meanwhile Silenski will be held without bail.

Schuykill's Miners' Wages.
At a meeting of the committee of the Schuykill Coal Exchange, held at Pottsville, the rate of wages to be paid the miners of the Schuykill district of the anthracite coal region for the last half of January and the first half of February was fixed at $2.15-15 or eleven per cent below the $2.50 basis, which is one per cent lower than last month, and lower than they have been for some years. It had been hoped that with the severe winter weather all over the country and the general increase of trade the wages would take a slight advance. The mines have not worked steadily, and the wages even on this basis would be small.

DEATHS.

AUBREY.—At Eckley, January 31, Thomas Aubrey, aged 97 years. Interred yesterday at Eckley cemetery.

AN EXPLANATION.

Freeland, February 2, 1895.
EDITOR TRIBUNE.—In reference to the letter that I wrote in the TRIBUNE on the 30th ult., the meaning of which was not understood by some of those whom it concerned, I did not say in the letter that my intentions are to do any harm to the Republican party on the third Tuesday in February. My letter had reference only to the methods used at the convention, and I meant to call attention to the effect such methods would have on the voters.

I am with the party on election day as a Republican, and if there are any of that party who are inclined to think I carry two kinds of water in one bucket let them say so. If I have written anything to prove detrimental to the party I am willing to apologize. A CITIZEN.

ANOTHER VIEW OF IT.

Freeland, February 2, 1895.
EDITOR TRIBUNE.—Hearing so much talk about our borough council and the Hazleton Traction Company in regard to an ordinance that is now before the council, I believe the business men and citizens of the old borough are not tending to their interests or else they would appear before council and insist on having this road put through all parts of the town or drive it out entirely. The men on the council who can't see beyond the rims of their hats should take them off and look around. The fellows who are brushing you down are doing it for a purpose. They want the road to remain where it is for another year so they can do all the business and they don't care who poses as their deceived champion. The people in the lower part of the town have been very successful in keeping the road there. Why, one of them stated he would be willing to give the Traction Company money if they would not run their tracks any further. Now if it is good for them, the business men of North Centre, Main,

Front and Walnut streets should see that the council gives them a fair show too.

While I believe the council should not put an unnecessary expense on the taxpayers, it is only fair and just that the cars should come up through the borough and treat all alike. These culverts, of which something has been said, are only an excuse to have the trolley remain where it is. It may not be polley to say it, but these culverts must be made whether the trolley comes up or not. Every citizen knows the present gutters have been a nuisance for years, and none know this better than the business men who drive delivery wagons loaded with crockery, glassware, etc., over them. They are liable to get the borough into trouble at any time and the cost of one suit would cover them all.

Business men of the northern part of town, go and demand your rights, and councilmen do not listen to these men who are rubbing you up the back for their own benefit. Don't allow them to scare you with one breath for being in favor of the Traction Company, but look well over the ground and note from whom this opposition comes. Councilmen, these people have not the interests of the town at heart; it is their own axes they want to grind, and their scheme is as transparent as glass. Give all the business men a chance and if the cars can't run all over town tax them out of the borough altogether.

The strike which was quietly inaugurated last Tuesday by the drivers employed in the Prospect colliery, Wilkes-Barre, has spread to other collieries of the Lehigh Valley Company, and the Prospect and Oakwood shafts, Midvale slope and Prospect breaker are idle, throwing 1,500 men out of work.

BRIEF ITEMS OF NEWS.

PARAGRAPHS GATHERED FROM ALL PARTS OF THE REGION.

Synopsis of Local and Miscellaneous Occurrences That Can Be Read Quickly. What the Folks of This and Other Towns are Doing.

The extension of the long-distance telephone line from Hazleton to Freeland, Upper Lehigh and Sandy Run has been completed.

Several of the business men of town are endeavoring to induce the proprietors of the White Haven hosiery mill to locate their plant here.

R. B. Brundage, deputy revenue collector of this district, estimates that at least 1,000 men in Wilkes-Barre will have to pay the income tax.

Where will advertising pay? In a paper that is in touch with the people, and reaches the home and fireside. The TRIBUNE fills the bill in this respect.

The wages of Lehigh Valley passenger engineers and firemen have been increased. For the trip between Easton and Wilkes-Barre the engineers will get $6.50 instead of $6 and the firemen $4.20 instead of $4.

W. R. Ward, manager of the Kitty Rhoades Company, who was recently shot at Pittston by Advance Agent Ely, arrived here on Friday, and left yesterday with the company for Elizabeth, N. J., where they play this week.

Alex. Mitchell, 35 years of age, died at Inkerman, this county, on Friday, under peculiar circumstances. He was hit on the knee in the mines by a hammer and sustained a slight injury. He soon afterward became unconscious and died in the evening.

Alex. Tribble and Miss Lizzie Reynolds were married on Thursday evening by Rev. A. J. Morton, of New York city, at the residence of the bride's mother in the Coxie addition. Miss Mary Lewis, of Pleasant Hill, was bridesmaid and John Tribble was groomsmen.

Editor Linskill, of the Wilkes-Barre Telephone, in a brief comment of his recent visit here, says: "It is twenty-one years since I first saw Freeland, a little village in the woods on a high hill. Now it looks city-like with its large stores, hotels, churches and electric railway."

The Kitty Rhoades Company completed its engagement here on Saturday evening and broke the record for attendance at the opera house for one straight week. The seven performances here were given before large and satisfied audiences, and Manager Welsh immediately contracted for another week next September.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

The attempt to introduce the new county question into the municipal contest was a decided mistake, and the Democratic delegates ought to have used better judgment. Their action does not represent the Democratic party in Freeland, neither does it represent the views of the men nominated. Three of the six candidates on the ticket are outspoken new county advocates, for their names appear on the general committee which is working for the division.

The Republicans do not seem to be "getting together" any better now than they did the day after their convention. Unless a change of feeling sets in the Democratic ticket will go through with flying colors.

The borough school director election will bring out a full vote. The people have awakened to the fact that a change is needed, and they propose to do it properly. Schools should be managed only by honest men.

Not Yet Under Control.

The fire at Hazle Mines colliery is now burning fiercer than ever. When the men went to enter it on Friday morning they found the place filled with gas. It took several hours to clear the opening sufficiently to permit the men to get into it. The fire is not under control by any means and from present indications it means a six months' fight for the officials. The company began boring artesian wells through which they expect to get at the heart of the fire. The water now being flushed into the opening causes much trouble for the men fighting it from below. The ashes and gases which it carries down almost smother the men. The heat is intense and the condition of the mine is dangerous.

Weatherly Sleighting Party.

A sleighting party from Weatherly was entertained at Mrs. R. A. Dodson's residence on Thursday, comprising Mr. and Mrs. George Beers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beers, Mrs. Luther Beers, Mrs. Herbert Beers, Mrs. Dreishach, Mrs. Grill, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Koch, Mrs. Gangwere, Miss Sharp and Miss Craigie. The merry party had an enjoyable ride to town and were delighted with the trip.
