FREELAND, FEBRUARY 11, 1895.

The Coal Allotment.

From the Wall Street Daily News. The sub-committee of three which was appointed to collect statistics to be used as a basis for an equitable allotment of the anthracite coal tonnage has made a report. The basis to be used is the output of 1893, as made, under oath, to the mining inspectors of Pennsylvania. In addition to this, each company will report the number of new collieries opened up since that year, and the output of each one. A committee will be appointed to verify these statements, and after this has been done an average will be obtained for each company by a combination of the two reports. It will probably be a couple of weeks before the percentages are definitely arranged, and since all of the presidents have agreed to abide by the allotment the coal officials believe the success of the new agreement is assured.

On the other hand, one of the sales agents said that the proposed basis had been seriously objected to, because the mining inspectors' reports of 1893 did not adequately show the capacity of the collieries opened up that year, and it would be necessary to make a second adjustment.

Persistent rumors have been circulated of late to the effect that the Reading proposes to materially increase its output at the expense of the other interests, and that the new reorganization plan which is forthcoming will be based upon such enlargement of its business. According to the report the company proposes to fight for this increase, and claims that its competitors will be forced either to grant it with a show of resistance, or else adopt the policy which will discontinue dividends on some of the roads now paying them at its expense.

The old residents had to ruminate through their cold-weather reminiscences for some time to bring to their minds the remembrance of a spell of weather to equal to the one which swooped down upon us last week. Not in recent years have we had a more persistent storm, and the continued intensity of the cold made indoor work a most pleasant vocation. Frost-bitten ears, fingers and other members of the body usually exposed, are quite numerous now, and will cause many to remember last week for several days to come. However, there is consolation in the thought that it can't last all the time. In a few months more many a wish will go up for a blast or two of February weather.

In appointing a member of the board of trustees of the Hazleton hospital, Governor Hastings would act wisely if he did not appoint any more operators or mine superintendents. There are enough of that class on the board now. Of course the position is purely an honorary one, but the tendency in most cases is to confer such honors on others than poor men. It would make a better board if there was some variety about the occupations of the members. All classes contribute to its support and being a mine boss or operator is not good reason for an appointment as trustee.—Hazleton Sentinel.

What is the cause of all this secrecy about the junketing tour of the county commissioners? They have been away considerably more than a week, yet the Wilkes-Barre newspapers have nothing to say of the trip. We always gave the county seat reporters credit for being more vigilant, but perhaps the reporters are not to blame for keeping this item from their readers. Anyhow, the seal of silence is enforced, and it no harm to ask why?

The Harrisburg correspondents of the Philadelphia and other city papers state, without exception, that the new county bill will go through the house and become a law. These men are on the ground and have every opportunity to obtain the representatives' opinions. They are considered impartial judges of the feeling of the house, and their judgment is seldom known to go wrong.

PICKED UP BY THE WAY.

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD IN THE TOWN AND VICINITY.

The Saunterer Again Discusses the Proposition to Spend $22,000 for a School Which Will Not Supply the Demand for Additional Facilities.

For a few weeks past I have been trying to coax the Freeland school board to make known its intentions and to give some further information on the proposed new building that the public now possesses, and my efforts have proven partially successful. In a recent issue of the Progress I notice there has arisen an explainer, defender, general advisor and all-round know-all, who considers it part of his duty to tell what he knows of the past, present and future of the board. For all this information the public should indeed feel grateful. Who would have thought that right here in our midst we have a "P. S." who is capable of reading the future and, not prophesying or predicting, but can tell with a positiveness which is almost convincing, of what will be done "once the school board have the consent of the people?"

It is real kind of "P. S." to inform the voters of Freeland of the board's plans, but whatever this modern prophet thinks he knows of the future is not of much importance at present—not until he takes the public into his confidence again and gives some foundation or source for his extraordinary predictions of the good and beneficial work which the board has in view. The question is not whether "all work possible shall be done by home labor" or not. "P. S." says the board intends that this shall be done, but "P. S." should remember the board has not yet come to that part of the contract, and at none of their meetings have the directors authorized him to make this very worthy announcement.

Again, "P. S." volunteers the information that the board will "then ask for bids to construct the building." Has the board decided to do this? If not, how does he happen to know it? Were bids asked for to do the heating of the proposed new building, or did the board make a $3,000 contract for a $22,000 building before the building itself has been authorized? If the public must rely upon "P. S.'s" word that the bids will be asked for, they have a very poor guarantee. The directors may prefer to follow their own sweet will, right or wrong, as it gives some of them an excuse to charge up "expenses," and no one knows this better than "P. S."

The school board's defender talks of the deception carried on in connection with this question, and I thank him for introducing this important topic. He says, "Once the school board have the consent of the people they will get a design which will come within their means." Now, "P. S." why do you make such a statement? Have the directors not placed on exhibition a drawing of the proposed new building, together with the plans, more than a month ago? Is there not something of the kind in a show window at Front and Centre streets? Are they not the plans of Architect Rudrauff, "showing what can be done for $22,000." Why then should you attempt to shield the directors and deceive the people by telling them "they will get a design within their means" when they have one already? Be generous enough to inform the public how you made this glaring error and for what purpose you sacrificed your dignity and reputation to misrepresent the true facts?

You also say, "The school board has made a careful estimate of how many pupils would have to be provided for." In a previous article I gave official figures which showed we had almost 550 borough children enrolled in the public schools on February 1. Now I say we have 700 school-going children in Freeland. If the board has made a "careful estimate" will you, who know so much of the board's affairs, give to the public the facts and figures? If not, show how the directors are going to provide for the number I have specified in an eight-room building, with the future yet to hear from? Don't you think "P. S." that twelve rooms—58 pupils to a room—would be nearer the requirements, and is actually the number of rooms necessary so that justice may be done the taxpayers, the children and the school board? If not, tell the people why. This is one of the important features which demands scrutiny to show whether or not the proposed new building will accommodate all when it is erected.

The Saunterer has no axe to grind in this matter; he has no choice of design, architect, heating apparatus, contractor or location. He has no land for sale nor has he any friends or relatives who have. He is a firm advocate of public education, and believes the public schools should be as free and untrammeled as the empyrean air. He is opposed to school boards awarding $3,000 contracts without inviting proposals from far and near. He is opposed to reducing teachers' salaries at any time, especially if the money is donated afterward to the directors themselves. He regards with distrust men who will not deny it, when openly charged with altering the minutes of the board's meeting. He is opposed to an expenditure of $22,000 for a building that will leave fully 300 children without school accommodation, and he also believes the citizens of every community should denounce all persons among them who would in any way retard the growth of the public schools and the advancement of education.

While they may or may not be doing it wilfully, the latter is the very thing I can without fear of contradiction accuse the borough school board and their abettors of attempting to do. First, the proposed new building will not supply the demand to advance education; hence, if not advancing, it is going backward. Second, if the increase of debt is granted, the bonds with interest can not be redeemed inside of five years at least, and while they are outstanding another increase of debt cannot be made for building purposes. Therefore, an increase of debt under the present proposition will simply mean a set-back for the growth of our schools and the advancement of education for at least five years. Will the friends of a free and unlimited education permit this? Will they saddle upon themselves a debt that will not give them what they now need and which will prevent them for years from obtaining necessary school facilities. Away with a proposition, conceived in secret caucus, which the directors shrink from giving figures to support. The public schools of Freeland want no such blight put upon their future, and all the flowery words, Latin quotations and legal phrases which "P. S." can summon to the aid of the board will not hide the base deception involved in this question.

Next I notice a perplexed "Democrat" "finds it difficult to know whether Saunterer really wants a new school building or not." "Agin or for the school house" he cries, as he pats himself gleefully over the product of his narrow brain. This assumed ignorance of my position is quite in line with the arguments used by the advocates of this $22,000 jobbing scheme. They fear a straight, manly argument of the question, and hide like cowards behind such senseless remarks. If "Democrat" cannot understand the real points of this issue he has less sense than I hitherto gave him credit for, but such is not the case and he stoops to the level he now occupies for the purpose of barking at his peers. Your snide method has no bearing whatever on the matter, and the expressions that are meant to slur a people you cannot dupe merely betray your smallness. Ask the question in the manner and form the directors have given the public to understand it shall be considered, and I promise you an answer in which you will find food for thought until election day.
