After an interesting sermon from Hebrew 12:1-2 to a packed audience at the English Baptist church last evening the following persons of Upper Lehigh were baptized by the pastor, Rev. J. T. Griffiths: Mrs. Ellen Thomas, Miss Eliza Thomas, Miss Islaella Thomas, Miss Sarah Williams, Miss Mary Williams, Miss Ellen Jones, Thomas Thomas and Evan Thomas. In the above group is a brother, two sisters and a sister-in-law of the Thomas family, and a brother and two sisters of the Williams family. This makes twenty-nine persons that have been added to the church since November, a record that speaks well for the energy and unceasing work of Rev. Griffiths.

Hungarian Down the Steps.

An exciting struggle over a corpse took place at Georgetown, near Wilkes-Barre, one day last week. Stanley Comiskey, a Hungarian miner, was killed in the Blackman mines. He was firing a blast, says the Nevesdealer, and cut the squib so short that the charge exploded before he could get out of the chamber. Four men carried the body from the mine to the house of Mrs. Alexander Bowaski, where he boarded. There was no one in when they arrived and they put the body down on the floot and were moving away with the stretcher when the woman came up the street.

put the body down on the floor and were moving away with the stretcher when the woman came up the street.

They told her what had happened and she at once exclaimed that she did not want the body in the house and would not have it. She asked them to take it away and they refused, whereupon she rushed into the house and threw the body down the steps.

The men, horrified at her action, remonstrated, but she would not yield and they then resolved to force here to take the body in the house, and lifting it up, ran up the steps. They put the body on the floor again and threatened to have her arrested if she touched it. Not in the least disconcerted she threw the body down the steps and this time barricaded the door. For the third time the men lifted it and tried to get in, but the woman would not budge, and incumbered as they were with the body they could not force their way in.

Two of the men, James Woods and Andrew Dailey, then went before Squire Ford and asked for a warrant to arrest the woman. Ford argued that the house was her own and they could not legally compel her to receive the body. The men then appealed to Poor Directors Max Long and Louis Tisch and they sent an undertaker for the body which was lying in the yard during the proceedings. It was buried in the Potter's field.

UPPER LEHIGH NOTES

The fishermen of town believe they see danger ahead for the fish in the Honeyhole dam and the Nescopeck creek. A tunnel has been started to drain the water from No. 5 slope, on the north side of Green mountain, and the natural flow of the water, when the tunnel is completed, will be direct to the Nescopeck. The Honeyhole is the only fishing ground of any account in lower Luzerne today, but within a few months after the "sulphur" water of the lower Luzerne today, but within a few months after the "sulphur" water of the mines reaches it the finny tribe will be scarcer than hen teeth. This should interest not the fishermen of this place alone, but the people of every town for miles around. Hazleton intends some day to obtain its water supply from the Nescopeck, and if Free-land continues growing as it has the same source must be relied upon to fur-nish your town, but if this great body of land continues growing as it has the same source must be relied upon to fur-nish your town, but if this great body of water is allowed to be contaminated, even for a week, by the impurities of the mines, both towns must seek else-where. The tunnel will save a few hundred feet of pipe and the expense of pumping the water over the mountain, where it could flow into the Upper Le-high sulphur creek, thus doing away with one man's labor every day.

where it could now into the Opper Le-high sulphur creek, thus doing away with one man's labor every day. The idea that our fishing grounds and the future water supply of 50,000 people should be sacrificed for an item like that is preposterous. If the intention of the company is to destroy the Nescopeck, and that your correspondent is reliably informed will be the consequence when informed will be the consequence when the water runs from the tunnel, there should be no delay in preventing it. The public streams are now too scarce, and those that are still pure should be kept so at all hazards.

and those that are still pure should be kept so at all hazards.

The people here regret that the White Haven Odd Fellows' Relief Association will not run their annual excursion next August. It was always a day off for Upper Lehigh folks. The balance held by the society has been distributed among the churches of White Haven Each denomination, Protestant and Catholic, was given $50.

The old workings in No. 2 slope were broken into from No. 9 on Thursday by a party of laborers. No. 2 has been filled with water for a long while, and the men were not aware that they were so near it. The flood rushed in rapidly and the employes had to leave the place. Consideaable damage was done and work will not be resumed for a week or so.

in the Dispute Over Tonnage.

From the Philadelphia Times.

The Anthracite Coal Operators' Acciation, at its meeting in New York

ciation, at its meeting in New York on Thursday, sharply criticised the Reading for refusing to arbitrate. It was asserted that the company is losing money on every ton of coal that it is mining at the present time, where, if it would accept the percentage which it mined during the past year, it would, by an advance of only 50 cents a ton, make $4,00,000 clear profit. The deadlock over less than half a million tons of coal has cost the companies many millions of dollars. The meeting passed resolutions to take radical action if the presidents of the anthracite railroads do what can be done towards acquiring an efficient interest in the control of one of them by stock ownership or otherwise in order to accomplish their purposes.

It is regarded as a significant fact that Coxe Bros. & Co., who own the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill Railroad, were represented at the meeting, and it is not unlikely that this is the company that the operators might activity arrangements with the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which gives the former the right to haul its coal trains to tidewater, to so that for all practical purposes the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill has an independent line to the seaboard.

Well-Known Ball Player Killed.

Walter S. Hayes, a well-known ball player in this section of the state, was killed on Thursday night at Bloomsburg by Casper Thomas, a man 79 years old. Mr. Thomas lived with his son near the county jail and Hayes boarded with him. The old man was alone in the house last night and had been told by his son to keep the door locked if Hayes came home. At 9 o'clock Hayes returned drunk and demanded admittance, which Thomas refused.

Hayes then broke in the door and began kicking and striking at the old man, who begged him to let him alone and tried to make his escape by leaving the house. Hayes followed him as far as the jail where he again kicked him. Thomas called for help, but no one coming to his aid he drew a pocket knife and stabbed Hayes twice; once in the side and again in the thigh, the latter cut severing an artery and causing death in a few minutes.

The murdered man has a wife and child living at Williamsport. He was tents Did the Finest Work, But Ragged Fielding Lost the Game for the Freeland Boys.

The Hazleton State league team, in its preliminary practice at Hazle park on Saturday afternoon, presented a formidable appearance against the Tigers, but after the game had been in progress a few innings, it was plainly evident that the professionals were not greatly above the Tigers class. The league men had the advantage of several days practice and a practical game, whilst the Tigers found themselves on the field for the first time of the season. The wide difference in the chances of the two clubs had the effect of slightly discouraging Freeland's boys, but notwithstanding the odds against them the Tigers picked up their equilibrim as the game progressed, and by the time play was over were in better trin to start a game than to finish one.

Hazleton secured a start in the first inning by making a run on a combination of errors. When the Tigers came to the bat in their half they began immediately to find the ball in a manner that surprised both players and audience. Herron, the first batter up, knocked a long fly, which was, however, gathered in. McGeehan came next and he also succeeded in hitting the ball, and as the next batters stepped up in order they seemed to find the sphere with ease. The effect of their batting netted them two runs in that inuing.

Had the Tigers, when they again took the field, handled the ball enert yas well with their hands as with the bat, a different tale would be left to tell. As the field, handled the ball nearly as well with their hands as with the bat, a different tale would be left to tell. As it was errors crept in at responsible times, and by simply taking advantage of their opportunites, and without other exertion Hazleton was enabled to pile up three runs in the inning and repeat the act in the next.

The game continued throughout pretty much the same as the first few innings. The Tigers continued to bat well, and
