I did the ghost unlet, and it was this way: I'd a party of barnstormers who playing week stands through the gi towns in Pennsylvania. We do a brass band at one time, but and skipped out and left us with mg but a bass drum, that was of use as an attraction; still we do it around with us. Well, one we were at a coal town way up shills above the Two Lick, where atives were as green as grass. I'rst night's performance was a success, but at its close a composition of the success, but at its close a composition of the success, but at its close a composition of the success, but at its close a composition of the success, but at its close a composition of the success, but at its close a composition of the success, but at its close a composition of the success where a part of our reperbut that we play 'Hamlet' the sight, Our manager replied that let' was not a part of our reperbut that we'd give 'em a much show. NOT TO BE MENDED AGAIN.

You can take a piece of this that's been broken by the maid.

And can put the thing together if you know the mender's trade.

You can mend the thing so neatly that no one will very know and the mender's trade.

You can take a heart that's broken by some small filtratious girl,

And can mend the fractured pieces till they're smooth as any pear.

An's say that that heart's possessor feels as And forgets that e'er it happened that his heart was ever "broke."

You can fall from a bleycle and make pieces of your nose;

You can fall from a bleycle and make pieces of your nose;

You can smash your cellar-bone or you can smash your either he.

And a dotter he will fix it till it's whole as any egg.

You can smash an ocean record, but that record still is there.

And leave the old one standing just as whole, quite as complete,

As when it sent the jockeys a-huzzaing through the street.

But alas if you are angry, and have angry words to say:

But alas if you are angry, and have angry words to say:

For a slience that is broken, by the women or the men.

La thing that that can't be mended, can't be rendered whole again.
