Death of Another Old Resident.

Neal McNelis, who for a quarter of a century resided here, died at his home on Front street early Friday morning. He had been in poor health for some time past. Atan early age Mr. McNelis came to America from his native country, Ireland, and resided for some time at Buck Mountain, after that at Jeddo and came to Freeland in 1870, when the town was a mere hamlet. The deceased took an active interest in the welfare of this place in its young days, and was a man who was respected by the people of the community. His wife and two sons, James and Roger, survive him.

After a suspension of many months, within the next few weeks there will be a resumption of the Pottsville Iron and Steel Company's mammoth plant, comprising iron and steel rolling mills, puddle mills and blast furnaces, which went into the hands of receivers some time ago. This will give employment to about 600 hands instead of the 100 or more who have been working less then half time for the past few years. During the suspension brought about by the depressed condition of the iron trade the mills have been kept in good shape and but little exertion is necessary to place them in full operation. The preliminaries have also been begun toward taking the concern out of the hands of receivers.

CLAIMING A VICTORY.

Confident of Winning Today.

The Republican primaries on Satur day evening, when delegates were chosen to the district convention at Hazleton today and to the county convention as Wilkesbarre tomorrow, did not settle the question as to whether the delegate who will go from the fourth district to the state convention will be instructed to appropriate the system of the system of who will go from the fourth district to the state convention will be instructed to support the governor or the senator. Both sides this morning are claiming a victory, and until the convention is held this afternoon it will be doubtful which faction will succeed.

The contest was undoubtedly the most bitter ever participated in by the Republicans of this district, and the manner in which it was conducted will remain for years in this vicinity as a disgrace to the party. It is alleged that money was used freely by both sides, but this rumor the TRIBUNE is not prepared to substantiate. From appearances there are many indications that it is true to some extent.

The part of the campaign to which citizens in general objected most vehemently was the united stand taken by the coal and railroad corporations of the district. The men at the head of them, with very few exceptions, threw their influence on the side of the governor, and some, not satisfied with going so far, stooped to coercion. Many Republicans on Saturday had to forego the privilege of voting as they desired, and in no part of the district was this fact more apparent than in Freeland borough.

The Hastings delegates here were more apparent than ongh.

The Hastings delegates here were strong personally, and all of them might have won on their own merits but the corporations took no chances and to make doubly sure of success they overan the town with their lieutenant who drummed up the voters and march ed them to the polls with Hastings tickets in their hands.

How the Quay men managed to pol

tickets in their hands.

How the Quay men managed to poll the vote they did is surprising, as the most powerful influences that could be brought to bear upon men were used by the corporation heelers, and the showing made by the friends of the senator under the circumstances was better than any one could hope for.

The vote in Freeland by districts was as follows:

First—Koons (H), 92; Jones (O), 25.

It is said that in the surrounding mining towns the coal companies pursued the same insulting polley, and made a farce of the words "free American citiens." In some districts Quay delegates had to leave the field, and where they were allowed to solicit votes the mine bosses stood at the polls and in many instances compelled miners in their employ to vote contrary to the men's intentions.

ploy to vote contrary to the men's intentions.

In Hazleton city the Quay men swept everything. They carried the ten districts with ease, polling over 1,000 votes for their delegates to 27 for the combine. Jeddo and West Hazleton boroughs also elected Quay delegates. In the townships it is impossible to tell how the delegates stand, and it will not be known until this afternoon.

Forty-one delegates will attend the district convention today. Reese Lloyd, of Freeland, is the combine's choice for state delegate, and William Powell, of Hazleton, is the Quay candidate.

Legion of Honor Convention.

The eleventh biennial session of the grand council of the American Legion of Honor of Pennsylvania was held last week in Philadelphia. Each of the 150 delegates present wore the highly prized decoration of French Legion of Honor, the order founded by Napoleon. The badge of the famous French order is used by the American organization through the kind permission of the French government, granted to Darius Wilson, of Boston, when he founded the order in this country in 1878. Since its organization the American Legion of Honor has paid out $30,386,341.21 in death benefits, and $691,288 in sick benefits. The membership, which extends intevery state and territory, numbers about 50,000.

German Hare in Carbon County.

The Carbon County Game and Fish Protective Association received forty German hares, or Belgian rabbits, which will be carefully guarded until fall, when they will be allowed to run in the woods of Carbon county. German hares multiply very fast. One buck and two does were brought into the county about five weeks ago. These three have already increased to over twenty, and pretty soon they will begin to multiply so fast that it will be impossible to keep count of them.
