Gold Reserve Reduced $6,000,000 in a Day.

A Drain Seems To Have Begun-Speculation as to What the Administration Will Do To Maintain the Reserve-Heavy Exports of Washington, Aug. 13.—The drain upon the gold reserve of the treasury of the United States, foreshadowed in these dispatches for some time past, seemed to have begun in earnest yesterday, when the officials were advised of the withdrawal of $1,050,000 from the sub-treasury at New York for export. This condition of affairs has occasioned much speculation as to the means that the administration will employ to maintain the gold reserve or replenish it should the probable withdrawals reduce it below the amount which it is deemed necessary for the government to hold. It may be stated almost authoritatively that as between another issue of bonds and the calling of an extra session of congress that the former will be resorted to.

Vesterday's withdrawals.

Yesterday's withdrawals were the largest on any one day since the contract with the Belmont-Morgan syndicate went into effect last February. They reduce the gold in the United States treached after the syndicate had made its final payments last month. On July 9 the gold reserve reached $107,541,375, being higher than on any day, according to the treasury's official "ten days" statement since February 20, 1883. Between the two dates named $182,400,600 United States bonds were sold for gold a prices aggregating $183,000,000 and the gold reserve which was something over $85,000,000 in January, 1893, replenished as it has been by these bonds sales amounted yesterday to a little more than $101,000,000, or a net loss of $146,000,000.

terday to a little more than $101,000,000, or a net loss of $140,000,000.

High Rate of Exchange.

Department officials are loth to discuss the effect on the treasury of renewed gold shipments or to express an opinion as to their probable extent, or when the shipments will cease, or when the shipments will cease, or when the bond syn licate will feel itself bound to replace the gold, as it did the first large withdrawals after its purchase of bonds. With exchange at $4.90 1-2-an exceedingly high figure—the opinion is generally expressed that gold exports to the extent of $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 are likely to occur before Oct. 1. The only thing that is likely to reduce the rate of exchange is heavy shipments of American cereals. Aside from the decline in the gold reserve the treasury situation is regarded as encouraging, as the receipts are gradually approximating to the expenditures. The excess of expenditures over receipts for the past two years amounted to $107.000,000 and for the month and a third which has elapsed of the current fiscal year, $15,000,000. But the receipts are increasing, and officials express the hope that by Jan. 1 next they will equal the expenditures or nearly so.

NAVY SHORT OF MEN.
Difficulty in Enlisting Them Causes Embarrassment.

Washington, Ang. 1.—The navy department is finding considerable difficulty in enlisting men to fill existing racancies and to man the new ships that will soon be ready to go into commission. It is authoritatively stated at the lepartment that neither the second class battle ship Texas nor the armored cruiser Maine will be enabled to participate in the drill off Newport. Aside from the delay in procuring crews for the two ships there are other embarrassments which will render it impossible for even the Texas which is in the more advanced condition to be in commission for several weeks.

SUBMARINE MINING

An Enterprise with Some Novel Features in New South Waites.

It is proposed to carry into effect a project which aims at bringing from far below the lowest depths of Sydney harbor. New South Wales, the coal which geologists had predicted would be found there, and which has actually been tested by diamond-drill borings. Transport, in a recent issue, contains a very flattering account of the scheme now being floated on the London market from which the following particulars are obtained:

Important coal fields have been developed both north and south of Sydney—at Newcastle and Bulli—but up to the present the intervening area has been left practically untouched, although plainly shown on the government geological maps of forty years ago. The unquestionable advantages which would follow the opening of coal mines in the very heart of the capital of the colony have led to the formation of a company, and induce our contemporary to take a most sanguine view of the outlook. Sydney is an important shipping port, where the lines of many steamship companies converge, and the coal of the bed in question is in demand for bunker use and export.

The borings were made under the Export.

The borings were made under the superintendence of the miners' department of New South Wales, partly on account of geological interests and partly with the very practical ulterior view of raising revenue. The seam was found within 30 feet of the depth predicted by the geologists, in a bore hole 2,700 feet deep. For 1,500 feet the borings passed through a compact sandstone, claimed to be impermeable to water. The seam itself is 10 feet 3 inches thick, of which 6 feet is clean coal free from sand. The shafts to be sunk will be within 200 feet of deep water, so that the situation will be unique, the saving on cost of transportation from the nearest mines now working being about 75 cents to $1 a ton. The parent company has secured a surface site of small extent, but has concessions over 1,400 acres below ground (and water), and it is expected that several other collieries will be started, for which there is said to be room.

THE DOG NEVER SPOKE AGAIN.

And the Ventriloquist Received Three Hundred Dollars for Him.

There was once a ventriloquist so poor that he was obliged to travel on foot from town to town to save expense, much after the manner of the gentleman of adventure in Grimmis tales, says Harper's Young People. One day he was joined on the road by a dog as forsaken as himself but who seemed desirous of becoming his companion. They journeyed together to the next townand entered the tavern tired, hungry and penniless. Not being troubled with the inconvenient refinement which comes from a long line of gentle ancestors, the man had developed the quality known as cheek, so he and the dog sat down to eat a supper for which they could not pay.

The room was full of loungers and the stranger took a conspicuous seat. "What will you have?" asked the only waiter the place employed, and the order embraced nearly everything on the bill of fare.

"What will you have?" asked the only waiter the place employed, and the order embraced nearly everything on the bill of fare.

"But I want something for my dog, too," he added. "Ask him what he will have." The waiter muttered something about "Whatcher giving us," so the stranger said: "What, don't you like to? Well, Bruno, will you have beef or fish?"

"Beef every time," said Bruno, looking with mild brown eyes at the waiter. "And what do you drink?"

"Water, thank you," said Bruno. By this time the landlord and everyone in the place were eager with suppressed wonder and gathered about to hear the dog talk.

The ventriloquist feigned indifference by eating with avidity, while the landlord was evidently considering something. His cogitation resulted in his offering the stranger three hundred iollars for his wonderful talking dog. The ventriloquist appeared to hesitate a moment, then said, abruptly: "Yes, you may have him for three hundred iollars."

lollars."
When the money was paid and the ventriloquist was about to leave he turned to the dog, patted him affectionately, and said: "Good-by, old fellow; cou've been a good friend to me."
"You are no friend of mine," returned the dog, "to sell me to another master. As you were mean enough to serve me such a trick I'll have revenge. I'll never speak another word as long as f live."

Lynch Them Unsuccessful.

Wagoner, I. T., Aug. 12.—With the exception of one, the gang of Indians who have committed a series of diabolical crimes since July 30 in the territory were captured near Okmulgee last Thursday after a desperate fight and started for the Fort Smith, Ark., jail, to avoid being lynched. News has been received here that a number of Muscogree citizens have gone across country to Fort Gibson to intercept the Missouri Pacific train carrying the fiends and their captors for the purpose of dealing out summary justice. The gang which began its heinous operations by murdering Deputy United States Marshal John Garrett at Okmulgee and escaping to the hills of the Creek nation was led by Rufus Buck, a Uche Indian. His followers were Samuel Sampson, Meorna July, Bud Lucky, alias Lucky Davis; Albert Stake and Levy Davis.

The day after murdering Garrett the gang met a white man and his daughter in a wagon. Covering the man with their guns the Indians took the girl from the wagon and each assaulted her within sight of her father. Their next victims were Ben Callahan and a negro boy, whom the gang met on the road. They murdered the boy and beat Callahan so that they believed him to be dead when they left the scene after robbing the man of money, boots and saddle. At the country stores of West and J. Nerrburg, at Oileck, the murderers and robbers held up the owners and took away everything they could carry. Next in their path of crime they met two white women and a girl fourteen years old. All were repeatedly assaulted by the fiends, who added another murder to their list. The girl's feet and hands were tied and the unfortunate creature was assaulted until life was extinct.

By this time the country in the vicinity of these crimes had become aroused. Federal and Indian posses, including the Creek light horse guards, in command of Capt. Edward Barry, and Deputy Marshals Jesse Jones, M. D. Irwin, Samuel Hayes and other determined officers, started at first to capture or kill the murderers of Garrett that being the first crime heard of. Thursday afternoon the pursuers came up with the gang twelve miles from Okmulgee and divided, one half going to a place of ambush, into which the summit of a hill. A fight with rifles and revolvers followed, in which Capt. Barry fell from his horse, a bullet grazing his head, and three horses were killed. Five of the gang were expured alive, but the sixth, Lucky Davis, sscaped.

In the possession of the murderers were l.000 rounds of ammunition and a great quantity of stolen property. They were taken to Okmulgee, where a mod of citizens, bent on lynching them, surrounded the officers, but the latter exaptined alive, but the sixth, Lucky Davis, sscaped.
