FREELAND, SEPTEMBER 23, 1895.

Cardinal Gibbons' Address.

From the New York Morning Advertiser. No patriotic person can read the newspaper reports of Cardinal Gibbons' eloquent address at the Baltimore cathedral on Sunday, in which he compares the social and religious conditions of the old and the new worlds, without a feeling of profound admiration for the robust Americanism of that distinguished prelate. Cardinal Gibbons is by no means indiscriminate in his praise of things American. He frankly acknowledges that "we have some evils to be redressed, some abuses to correct, some vulnerable spots in our political and social armor." But after making the most liberal allowance for these he finds on the whole that "we have reason to be proud of our nation's past and hopeful of our nation's future." One of the most striking passages in the address is the following: "Thank God, we enjoy in this country the amplest liberty to worship and freedom of conscience. We have a fair field and no favor. We can build churches and schools and parsonages and hospitals and asylums without asking the permission of the government. The only restriction imposed upon us is the limit of our purses. The government holds over us theegis of its protection, without interfering with our God-given liberties or intermeddling in church matters. We are quite content with this state of things. For, if the Government undertook to build our churches and to subsidize our clergy, it might soon dictate to us what doctrines of religion we should preach.

Coming from the head of the Catholic hierarchy in the United States, as this utterance does, it is highly significant. It not only constitutes a distinct disavowal on his part of any desire for a union of church and state, but is a plain prediction that the church would suffer disastrously by closer political relations with the state. Read between the lines one may also detect an argument against state support for sectarian schools. The cardinal's address abounds with other statements of a similar tenor, all of which will go far toward dispelling the prejudice and distrust which have been felt in certain narrow circles in this country against the Catholic church.

TWO STOREKEEPERS OF Selma, Ala., engaged in a novel warfare for some weeks, and at least accounts both were getting apprehensive as to the further developments of the contest. The trouble was started by one merchant making a small present of cake or candy to customers, in order to attract trade. The other merchant across the street promptly served lemonade. Then followed, from first one and then the other, cigars, ice cream, sandwiches, and an elaborate free lunch. Last week one merchant played his trump card by holding a big free barbecue, serving out three carcasses of beef and a hundred loaves of bread. At last accounts he was holding his breath to see what the other man could play against him.

THE more advanced among the new women are agitating for a reform in the use of the word "lady." According to them, the term is misapplied nine times out of every ten that it is used. A lady is always a woman, but a woman is not as invariably a lady, so it is urged, and hence this raid on the misleading application of the term. The reformers will probably frown witheringly on the street car conductor, nevertheless, if he should say to one of them in one of his customary outbursts of politeness: "This way, woman," or "This way, Mrs. Woman."

A most flagrant pension fraud has just been discovered at Macon, Mo., by a special agent from Washington. The alleged veteran had secured a pension of ten thousand dollars on account of total blindness, but the special agent found that the man could see with both his eyes, and was not even debarred from following his business by his alleged disability. He is to be prosecuted for the fraud.

A SINGLE log, 32 feet long, 6 1/2 feet in diameter, and containing 10,158 feet of lumber, was cut from a tree felled in Mason county, Wash., the other day. This log was cut off twenty-five feet from the butt of the tree. Several short logs measuring eleven feet in diameter were cut from the lower part.

CALIFORNIA'S fruit crop in ten years has increased sevenfold, and its value last year was fifty million dollars, ten million dollars more than that of the gold mined in the state. The experience of California shows that the demand for fine fruit is practically unlimited.

MR. TRAMWAY'S POSTERS.

Birdie Sees a Stock of Horrors to Last All Her Days.

Woman and Art at Odds Again—A Man's Efforts Are Unappreciated by a Wife Who Thinks Legs Ought to Be Unseen.

HATS in that package, husband? said Birdie, as Mr. Tramway entered with an unusually important air and a roll under his arm.

"I am beginning, my dear, to collect posters." "How would it do to collect money to pay the gas bill? The agent was here again to-day and says he will turn off the gas on Saturday," answered Mrs. Tramway, always ready with some cheering remark to encourage her other half on his return from business.

"If corporate cruelty should be carried to that extent, Birdie, we must make light of our troubles," retorted Mr. Tramway, with a smile as sickly as his jest. "Fortunately the evenings are short just now. But I knew you'd be interested in this idea, Birdie, for it's the fad of all the fashionables. You remember the article I read you the other evening in the Ladies' Home Magazine? Now, as soon as my collection of posters is large enough we will give an exhibition in the church vestry for the benefit of your sewing circle."

"What!" exclaimed Mrs. Tramway, in her shrillest treble (three times as piercing as her common or garden-calling-bird voice). "What! exhibit those oh—pictures in the pure air of our church vestry! Why, Anthony Comstock would have the house dragged!" So saying she held up the first sheet that caught her eye, a design in red, yellow and blue, by Cheret, portraying the dancing figure of a bold female in a costume too simple to describe—a kind of a cross between the summer bathing dress of a Hotentot and a brand-new baby, fresh from the mint.

"Oh, that," said Mr. Tramway, patronizingly, "that you know, is French!" "French!" shrieked Birdie; "well, I don't know French, but I know that woman oughtn't to be let out of the house without at least a petticoat and corset cover on!"

"Petticoat?" interrupted Mr. Tramway; "corset cover? Why, my dear Birdie, that is called the best that the famous Cheret has ever executed!" "Well, he ought to be executed, and I'd like to be the one to pull the rope."

"Oh!" interrupted Mr. Tramway, "you always draw the line so sharp, my dear. You women can't appreciate art, if it's anything out of the common—"

"I can't appreciate things that are uncommonly improper," agreed Mrs. Tramway, looking far from acquiescent as she fished another picture from the roll. "Now, husband, what might this be?"

"Well," responded Mr. Tramway, "it might be Napoleon crossing the Delaware, or it might be Trilby discovering Moses in the bullrushes, but it isn't. Now, if you will give up your usual custom of looking at a thing upside down, and simply turn that poster round, or, if you prefer, stand on your head and look at it, you will find that it is one of the world-renowned designs of Baudrey Tansley."

"Well," said Birdie, reversing the picture, "I can't say it looks much more intelligible this way."

"You see," retorted Mr. Tramway, with acid in his tones, "Mr. Tansley does not agree to furnish brains with his designs."

THE WORLD OVER.

BERLIN, by a census just taken, has 1,616,381 inhabitants, 120,000 less than had been estimated.

NEARLY every man, woman and child in Egypt is a smoker of cigarettes, and a pipe is never seen in the mouth of a native.

WOMEN are now employed as letter carriers at Aix-la-Chapelle; their uniform is a black skirt, yellow belt and a flat glazed hat with a yellow band.

CHILD is succeeding in converting her paper currency to a gold basis much more quickly than was expected. The rush for the gold predicted by the opponents of the measure has not taken place.

AT Bremen, the largest sailing ship afloat has just been completed. She is called the Potosi, is a five-master, 394 feet long, 50 broad, with a draught of 25 feet and a carrying capacity of 6,150 tons.

PRINCE LOUIS LUCIEN BONAPARTE of the collection of 25,000 volumes, for which his executors have more than once tried to find a purchaser at $200,000, is again offered for sale en bloc.

DUTCH spelling reformers are destructive. They not only wish to simplify spelling by dropping silent letters, but propose to abolish genders and the distinction between masculine and feminine in the articles and pronouns.

RUSSIA is so anxious to colonize quickly the Amur district with Cossacks, in order to watch the Chinese frontier, that she offers each male settler eighty acres of land free, a loan of $325 without interest for thirty-three years, and exemption from taxes for three years and from military service for five.

BERLIN will have an exhibition of its own in 1896, even manufacturers from other German cities being excluded. It will be held in the great Treptow park, to the east of the city, the buildings will be temporary, like those at Chicago, and amusements and entertainments will be very prominent features.

BLOOMERS AND BICYCLES.

In a ballet called "Venus," performed at La Scala, in Milan, the principal scene brings in a corps of women bicyclists arrayed in costumes which are less than "rational."

BICYCLES are said to have seriously affected the sale of pianos in England. The reason is that when a girl is asked to choose between the two for a present she invariably selects the wheel.

JAPANESE postmen whose routes carry them into the country use bicycles. Their wheels are made by local manufacturers, who have appropriated improvements from both British and American patents.

SEVERAL bicycling girls at Coldwater, Mich., have outgrown the bloomer stage, according to a Detroit newspaper, and now ride in the streets and suburbs wearing complete masculine wheel costumes—knickerbockers, golf stockings and short jackets.

NEARLY $100,000 is the amount obtained from the bicycle tax this year by the French government, the number of machines declared being just under 200,000. They are well spread over the whole country, since Paris and the Department of the Seine return 38,000, less than a fifth of the total.

A FASHIONABLE tailor of New York, who makes garments for those who can afford to pay his prices, predicts that the donning of knickerbockers by wheelmen will lead to the revival of the old custom of wearing knee breeches; but it is not every dude who would like to display his calves on Broadway or the Bowery.

ODDS AND ENDS.

If the earth were equally divided among its inhabitants each person would get about twenty-three and one-half acres.

A TYPESETTING machine that can set 50,000 ems an hour has been invented by Father Calodoli, a Sicilian Dominican monk.

A USE for compressed air in the foundry in addition to cranes and hoists, which are being introduced everywhere, is in providing a sand blast for the cleaning of castings.

IN London the German Reed entertainment has been revived, with no German Reed and no Corney Grain, by Mr. Rutland Barrington, who offers Gilbert and Clay's "Happy Arcadia" as the chief attraction.

FIVE years ago the 4,000 tourists who visited Egypt were nearly all English; last season out of 7,500 arrivals, only 45 per cent. were English, while 45 per cent. were American and 10 per cent. were German, or of other nationalities.

PLANTS AND FLOWERS.

When Properly Dried They Make Very Pretty Winter Ornaments.

For winter use as bouquets, immortelles, grasses, sedges, berries, etc., preserve a fresh appearance and enhance the beauty of the home. Now is the time to make the selections for drying and preservation. There is a class of plants called everlasting, immortelles, and the like, which from their strawy nature are particularly adapted to winter use, retaining their colors fully as well after drying as when growing. An old favorite of this class in times gone by is the Globe Anemone, with several colors. It was useful as a garden flower and excellent in the winter bouquet. Now it is almost a rarity. Then there are several colors of acroclium, very graceful in outline. The amobiums, aelichrysum or eternal flowers, the rhodantems, xeranthemums or straw flowers, all were common garden plants a few years ago.

Drying these flowers consists simply in cutting at the proper time, which is when in full bloom and before seeds have formed. Where practicable the whole plant may be cut or pulled and hung bottom up in a partially darkened room or shed. Usually, however, the flowers come out at different times and must be cut as ready, leaving on as much stem as possible.

Tie in bunches and hang up. The immortelles imported in such quantities from France and Germany, originally yellow, but now to be had in various colors, are charming herbageous plants. Unfortunately they are not hardy with us. There are, however, several natives of the same genus, guaphaliums, in English, endweed or common everlasting, which may be preserved in a similar manner.

There are also the purple cutweeds and the perly everlasting, often found in dry, gravelly or sandy soils, which may be had for the gathering. All the work necessary is to hang up in the spare room until the whole collection is harvested or the material is wanted for making the winter bouquet.

As flowers in themselves will have a somewhat stiff appearance alone, dried grasses of various kinds will be found very useful. Hang bottom up to dry, as directed for flowers, for the reason that all plants when first cut wilt and are unable to hold their parts erect. They soon become rigid and when fully dried have a quite natural appearance.

If flowers are allowed to even partially ripen seed, they will fall to pieces when taken into a warm room. Among the best grasses are foxtail, cat-tails, bents, feather grass and numerous marsh grasses and sedges. The many brizas or quaking grasses are all well known. Even wheat, rye and oats, if collected early enough, are quite desirable, as are also a number of summer grasses—Edgar Sanders, in Farm and Home.

How to Make Breadsticks. Mrs. Rorer's formula for making breadsticks is: Four half a pint of boiling water into half a pint of milk. Add a teaspoonful of warm water. Now stir in sufficient whole-wheat flour to make a stiff dough. Turn it out on the board, knead until soft and elastic and free from stickiness. Place in a bowl, brush the top lightly with butter, and stand aside for three hours. Then turn out on the board, cut off a small portion and roll it out under the hands about ten inches long and twice the thickness of a lead pencil. Place in greased pans, stand aside one hour, and bake in a quick oven ten minutes. Special pans come for these sticks, but they are not necessary, as they will bake in any bread pan.

Out of Love for His Mother. A notable case of filial love came to light in Pittsburgh a few days ago, says the New York Sun, when a seventy-six-year-old son came to the office of an aid society to claim his mother, from whom he had been separated by the long illness of both. It was shown that the man had remained a bachelor all his life in order to care for his mother. They came from Ireland thirty years ago, and had lived together since that time, as they had previously in the old country, until five months ago, when both were taken sick and had to be removed to a hospital.

Nebraska Girls Have Queer Pets. Two queer pet animals are owned by Misses Lillian F. and Agnes C. Myers, of Omaha, Neb. Miss Lillian has a white horned toad from California, which seems to understand what is said to it and obeys like a pet dog. Miss Agnes has a true wildcat, which is, nevertheless, tame. The pets make a strange combination, and his toadship takes many of his naps in the long hair of his big playmate. The animals occupy a massive cage together.

Toothsome Breakfast Cakes. One quart of sour milk, one teaspoon of soda, two eggs well beaten, flour enough to make a good batter, bake in griddles, make each cake about as large as a pie plate. When each cake is done butter well, and spread with sugar and cinnamon, pile up like a layer cake, then cut down in quarters. It is fine.
