CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Tons of Earth Slide at a Stripping and Two Men Are Killed.

A shocking accident by which two men lost their lives and several thousand dollars worth of property was destroyed, took place at Milnesville stripping, operated by A. S. Wickle & Co., on Tuesday. The accident was practically a landslide, and the first that has occurred about the mines. The names of the victims are John Martin, of Milnesville, and John Risko, of Harleigh. Both are Hungarians. There were usually about thirty men employed around the place where the crash took place. This was a stripping hole about 300 feet deep. The sides rise at an angle of seventy-five degrees, pitching north and south at the top. The opening is 100 feet across, and at the bottom tapers in "V" shape where the two veins meet. Half way down a railroad was built along the risks. Along this road Martin and Risko started with a mule team at noon. The men working below them left at the same time to go to dinner.

When the men reached a point half way across there was a sudden cracking of the rock and the next moment tons of slate and rock began to slide, carrying the unfortunate men down to death. Willing hands were quickly at work digging in an effort to extricate the doomed miners. Two mules were first found. These were crushed to a pulp, and several mine cars which stood at the bottom were smashed to splinters. It was 3 o'clock before the mangled bodies of the unfortunate workmen were recovered.

Lead in Original Advertising.

The Tigers Athletic Club is advertising its ball on New Year's Eve with an unusually pretty design of a show card. It is in the form of a round Chinese lantern, about a foot in diameter, neatly done up in colors, and with the ball announcement printed in an attractive manner. The cards are in great demand, and the club is getting an abundance of advertising through the original methods the members take to place its name before the public. In addition, hundreds of small white and blue badges, surmounted with gold leaves, are being distributed to be worn on the coat lapels of the club members and their friends. These also contain an announcement of the ball, and the event will therefore be made known in many ways. The Tigers certainly lead in the line of original and effective advertising.

Want Money for Schuylkill's Poor.

Commissioners Allen, Rentz and Martin, of Schuylkill county, conferred with the poor directors at the almshouse relative to an additional appropriation which those officers demand. The appropriation of $83,000 made to the almshouse for the year 1895 has been expended. No more outdoor relief will be granted if the additional appropriation is not allowed. A large number of almshouse orders are outstanding, which the county treasurer is unable to meet.

Hancock's Body to Leave the State.

It has been decided to remove the body of General Hancock to Arlington cemetery from Norristown, where it has rested since 1886. None of the projects to erect a monument at Norristown has succeeded and a committee of the Second Army Corps has succeeded in securing the consent of the family to the removal. It is planned to have the burial in Washington take place next spring, when a monument to General Hancock on one of the public squares in the capital will be dedicated.

Death of Patrick Early.

From the Hazleton Plain Speaker.
Patrick Early, an aged resident of Beaver Meadow, passed away at 5 o'clock on Tuesday evening at his home on Second street. Death was due to an attack of asthma. Deceased was elected to the supervisorship of Banks township last spring, which office he was creditably filling when seized with illness. Mr. Early was for many years a resident of Eckley, where he raised a family of three sons and two daughters, namely, John, Edward, William, Bridget and Katie, all of whom survive him. He also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Edward Metcalf, of Locust Gap; Mrs. Patrick Sealon, of Audenried, and Mrs. Catharine Gallagher, of Sandy Valley, and a brother, Joseph, of Parsons. Interment will be made on Friday morning in St. Ann's cemetery, Woodside, after mass in St. Mary's church, Beaver Meadow.

Crushed in the Rollers.

Johnnie Mooney, a young lad of Leiston, who was employed in the breaker of the Cross Creek Coal Company, received fatal injuries on Tuesday evening shortly before quitting time. The unfortunate boy tripped while passing the rollers and fell headlong into them. Before the machinery could be stopped his arm was nearly torn from his body and his head and shoulder badly injured. He was taken to Hazleton hospital, where his injuries were dressed. However, he sank rapidly and at 12:30 o'clock that night he died. The lad was one of two who supported a widowed mother whose husband met a tragic death in the mines of the Evans Mining Company some years ago. The family consists of several smaller children, all of whom have been sustained by the toil of little Johnnie.

The Gorman Murder Unsolved.

The coroner's jury in the case of the murder of Mrs. Catharine Gorman, aged 74 years, who was found strangled to death at her home in Mill Creek, Schuylkill county, adjourned on Monday evening to meet at the call of the coroner. No verdict was rendered as they were unable to fasten the crime upon any one. James and Charles Ryan, aged 33 and 15 years, respectively, the latter from Paterson, N. J., who were arrested at Fraekville on suspicion, because it was proven they were near the scene of the murder on the night it was committed, are now in jail at Pottsville, but will, in all probability be discharged, as there is no direct evidence against them.

A Pure and Instructive Play.

John E. Brennan has made a great success in his latest venture, "Tim the Tinker," the new play which is a grand comedy drama of the purest type, is the work of his pen, and is exceptionally well equipped in all its departments. The cast is unusually strong, and the scenic accessories remarkably elaborate. The great feature of the play is the splendid scenery of Ireland. Eclipses in stage realism and detailed perfection any dramatic appurtenance yet attempted, and the wonderful dancing and sweet singing by Mr. Brennan and others of the company. It will be played here on Monday evening.

SALOONS MUST CLOSE.

Tenants of Girard Estate Notified Not to Seek a Renewal of License.

The wildest sort of consternation is prevailing among the hotel and saloon keepers of West Mahanoy township, Schuylkill county, owing to a circular letter, a copy of which each of them received from the Board of City Trusts of Philadelphia. There are twenty hotels and licensed saloons in the township, and nineteen of them are located on the lands of the Girard estate. The letter in question is a terse but positive notice to them that if they continue to sell liquor on the premises after the expiration of the current license year they will forfeit their leases and render themselves liable to ejection.

This action on the part of the Board of City Trusts was a surprise to those who received the letter. The leases under which they hold possession contain a clause prohibiting the sale of liquor on the grounds, but the clause has always been violated with impunity, and the present lessees had no intimation that the prohibitory clause was ever to be enforced until the notices came to them from the Philadelphia office of the Board of City Trusts.

Several of the hotelkeepers have valuable properties, which will be rendered almost worthless by the enforcement of the order. December 16 is the last day for filing license applications, and as the exact language of the circular is that they must not apply for a renewal of their licenses they are at a loss to know what to do.

Prominent Pioneer Dead.

One of the pioneers of the northeastern part of the state, George B. Chase, who was in his eightieth year, died at his home in Scranton on Tuesday, after an illness of three days. Mr. Chase came to Scranton in 1853. In 1869 he was appointed United States gauger for the twelfth internal revenue district and he held that position until 1887, when he was removed by President Cleveland. He was reappointed by President Harrison and served two years, being obliged to resign on account of an accident. A noteworthy feature of his career is the fact that he was elected president of the first Republican club formed in this part of the state. It was the first Republican club in Luzerne county, and was organized in 1856. He was one of the oldest Odd Fellows, and was to have been tendered a reception by the Odd Fellows of Scranton tomorrow evening.

Collector Herring Wants Advice.

Revenue Collector Grant Herring wrote to the internal revenue department at Washington this week for instructions as to what he shall do with 3,700 pounds of oleomargarine which was seized at Meyersburg, Bradford county, because the tubs did not contain revenue stamps. In accordance with the rules of the internal revenue department the imitation butter was to be disposed of at auction sale in Scranton to pay the tax, but as there is a state law prohibiting the sale of oleo in Pennsylvania, Collector Herring has written to the department suggesting the condition of affairs and asking for instructions. The state authorities will prosecute him if he sells, and the national law says he must sell. Herring, therefore, proposes to go slow before he acts.

Suit Against a Borough.

Congressman Brumm and ex-District Attorney James have entered a trespass suit in the Schuylkill county court against the borough of Ashland in behalf of Sarah Bolch, a widow, and her son, Harry G., claiming $50,000 damages for the life of the husband and father. Howard G. Bolch, who it is alleged died from the effects of injuries received last March by being violently thrown from his horse while he was riding. The animal stumbled over a pile of stone and dirt which the Ashland authorities, it is alleged, negligently allowed to remain on the principal street of the town at night without erecting a danger signal and contrary to the borough ordinances.

We are very busy, thanks. J. C. Berner.

AGNES T. PRYOR CLAIMS THAT GOD RESTORED HER EYESIGHT.

An Accident at School Caused a Child to Lose the Power of Vision, But by Unswerving Confidence in God's Promises It Was Restored.

A remarkable case of what is claimed to be faith cure has occurred in Wilkesbarre, and is described in a despatch from that city to the Philadelphia Press. It is that of a girl named Agnes Theresa Pryor, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Patrick Pryor. Seven years ago, when a child of 10, she attended St. Mary's parochial school, and at recess one day while playing with some other little girls one of them accidentally struck her finger in Agnes' left eye. Before she left school the little girl who had caused the accident asked forgiveness and also implored Agnes not to tell on her, as she was afraid her parents would punish her. Agnes, with a Christian spirit remarkable in so young a child, promised she would not tell who did it, and she freely forgave her. At home she merely said her eye had been hurt while playing.

Physicians were called in and they relieved the pain, but could not restore the sight. In a few days the optic nerves of the right eye, becoming affected by the injury to the left, failed of their functions and the sight of the right eye gradually grew dim, until a week after the accident happened she was quite blind.

Her parents were poor, but raised money to send her to Philadelphia to a noted specialist. He examined her eyes and said that she could never recover her sight. Despite the dreadful nature of her affliction, the child remained bright and happy and was such a favorite at school that the other children took her under special charge and each morning would call at her home to lead her to school and take her back again.

Three years ago while listening with her parents to a sermon one Sunday, Agnes was greatly impressed. Her parents have forgotten the text, but the priest spoke of the power of God, saying He would do anything for those who had faith in Him. When they reached home the little girl, then fourteen years old, said she had faith in God and was going to pray to Him every day to restore her sight. The parents, though they had no hope, encouraged the girl and every day for the past three years she has made a special prayer that her eyesight be restored.

As month after month passed and there was no change, the child did not relax her prayers, but said she had faith and would pray every day. When it was fine and she could get some one to lead her, she would go to the church and other times she prayed in her room.

A few weeks after starting her special prayers she confessed to the priest and told her parents she had kept from them the knowledge of how the accident happened. This she said was the only sin of her life and she wanted to take its burden from her conscience.

The long-hoped for change came last Sunday. During the early morning, she felt a peculiar itching in her eyes and mentioned the fact to her parents. In the afternoon the itching continued and she lay down on a sofa. Suddenly she electrified the household by exclaiming: "Why I can see. There's mamma. There's papa. There's sister," pointing to each one in turn.

Then she arose and walked unaided around the room, placed her hands on several articles, said what they were and then, overcome with joy and thankfulness, gave thanks to God.

As the hours passed her sight improved. She can now see clearly with the right eye and dimly with the left. She says she will continue her prayers until she can clearly see, and after that will continue to give thanks each day.

The house has been crowded with neighbors since Sunday, and the girl is able to see and greet each one.
