BURIAL OF THE VICTIMS.

TWO FUNERALS ON SATURDAY AND TWO MORE YESTERDAY.

TWO MORE YESTERDAY.

The Remains of the D. S. & S. Railroaders Who Were Killed Last Wednesday Were Followed to the Graves by Large Numbers of People.

The four men killed by the exploding of a D. S. & S. engine last Wednesday have been buried. The two brakemen, Michael Boyle and Frank P. O'Donnell, were taken to their last resting place on Saturday morning, and their companions, Engineer John Chambers and Fireman Jonas Stewart, were interred yesterday. All the funerals were attended by large numbers of people, and the sympathy of the community went out to the relatives and families of the deceased railroaders.

The funerals of Messrs. O'Donnell and Boyle took place at the same hour. That of the former was attended by the Young Men's C. T. A. B. Corps and a elegation of Lodge 133, Brothershod of Railway Trainmen. Both societies presented beautiful floral tributes, the former a pillow and the latter a broken wheel.

mer a pillow and the latter a broken wheel.

The Tigers Athletic Club and the Citizen's Hose Company attended Mr. Boyle's funeral. From the latter was presented a ladder, crossed by axes, symbolical of the corps to which he was attached in the fire department. The Tigers Athletic Club's tribute was the hopeful emblem, "Gates Ajar." The fire alarm was tolled as the funeral procession passed down Centre street.

At Luzerne street both funerals met and proceeded together to, St. Ann's church, where Rev. E. A. O'Reilly read a requiem mass. He also preached a touching sermon upon the uncertainty of death and the reason all should be prepared to meet the call at any moment.

The joint funeral content was one of

The joint funeral cortege was one of the largest that has ever left town.
Work was suspended at all the surrounding collieries, and it seemed that every one who could possibly attend was present to pay their last respects to the young men.

At 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning the funeral of John Chambers left his residence and proceeded to the D. S. & S. station at Drifton, where a special train convoyed the body and friends to Catawissa, the dead engineer's former home. The corpse was followed to Drifton by hundreds of people, including a large delegation of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. At Catawissa services were held in the Methodist church, followed by interment at that place.

In the afternoon the remains of Jonas Stewart were taken to the grave in Free-land cemetery. This funeral was also a large one, notwithstanding the stormy weather. At the residence Rvs. Benner and Kuntz conducted services, and also at St. John's Reformed church. The funeral was in charge of Camp 147, P. O. S. of A., which presented a beautiful wreath.

Superintendent L. C. Smith, of the D. S. & S., presented flowers at each of the funerals, consisting of the following designs: To Mr. O'Donnell, a cross; to Mr. Boyle, a lyre; to Mr. Chambers, a wreath, and to Mr. Stewart, a pillow. Many other floral offerings were made by private parties and friends of the men.

menuty Coroner McCombs, of Hazleton, empanelled a jury on Thursday and viewed the bodies that evening. They will meet latter to arrive at a verdict. The men selected are: Thomas Monroe, A. S. Monroe, Robert Martin, William, Powell, August Schoebener and H. C. Mills.

Mills.

William J. Timney, who was injured, is making rapid progress towards recovery. His cuts are healing as quickly as could be expected, and his left arm, which was twisted about considerably, is also doing well. His right foot, however, is still causing him some pain, and the swelling is yet so great that a thorough examination of the injury cannot be made. It is now believed that the foot is not broken, and if this proves true he will be able to leave the hospital sooner than at first expected.

Goddess of Liberty to Marry.
From the Philadelphia Record.
The Goddess of Liberty is going to enter the holy bonds of matrimony.
Not the ideal goddess but the one whose face adorns the silver Gollars turned out by the United States mint. In private life she is Miss Anna Willess Williams, and she is a Philadelphia school teacher.
In 1876 the treasury department engaged the services of George Morgan, an engraver and designer, who for years was an attache of the Royal mint of England. His first assignment was the creation of a design for the silver dollar about to be issued. He completed the reverse side first, hoping all the time to be inspired with a suitable design for the Goddess of Liberty, which, all agreed, was most appropriate for the obverse side of the coin. Thomas Eakins, the well-known artist, was a friend of Morgan, and also a visitor at the house of Miss Williams' parents. It was through his influence that Miss Williams was induced to pose for Mr. Morgan. The sittings took place at the home of Mr. Eakins, in November, 1876. Miss Williams has steadfastly refused to disclose the identity of her fiance.

Resolutions of Condolence,

Freeland, Pa., March 11, 1896.
At a special meeting of the Tigers Athletic Club on the above date the following was adopted:

Whereas, Among those whom God chose to call from life today was Brother Michael Boyle, a member who had endeared himself to this club by his faithful, active and earnest work for its success, and whose presence we will sorely miss from our business, social and pleasure gatherings. Therefore, be it Resolved, That while we nequlesce to the will of the Great Father, whose judgment and wishes are not for us to question, we cannot refrain from giving expression to the sorrow which fills our hearts at the unexpected loss of this, the second member of our club, one whose companionship we cherished so deeply, whose friendship we knew to be true, and whose integrity and honesty was such as to deserve the high esteem in which he was held by his brother members.

such as to deserve the high esteem in which he was held by his brother members.

Resolved, That by his death the Tigers Athletic Club has parted with one of the most valued names on its rolls, and, while we will keenly feel the loss, we are thankful for the knowledge we possess—that in his daily life his relations to us and to the community at large he faithfully followed the teachings of Him before whom all must sooner or later appear.

Resolved, That the sincere sympathy of the club be extended to the parents, brothers and sisters of our deceased member, that we offer our services to them in their trouble and do what is in our power to lessen their burden upon this sad occasion.

Resolved, That the club attend the funeral in a body, that our flag be draped and placed at half-mast on our building for live days, that these resolutions be entered on our minutes, a copy presented to the deceased's parents and a copy hung in our rooms, and that they be published in the Firekland Thirden.

A public meeting of Luzerne District 4, P. O. S. of A., was held at White Haven on Saturday evening, and was addressed by several state officers of the order. A special train over the Valley road conveyed the members of Eckley. Drifton, Drums, Sandy Run and Freeland to White Haven and returned to town at a late hour. The state officers are making a tour of Pennsylvania, and report the order in a very good condition everywhere.

Besides the statistics published last Monday, from the state secretary's report, the following shows the condition of the principal camps of this section of the state: Camp 147, Freeland, had 216 members on its roll on December 31 last, and its cash valuation was $3,166.29; Camp 259, Drifton, had 179 members and $3,33.77; Camp 9.33, Sunmit Hill, 213 members and $2,943.77; Camp 252, Lansford, 421 members and $9,432.76. The banner camp of the order is No. 254, of Lebanon, which has 642 members and $20,602.96.
