Questioned the President.

From the Washington Times. An amusing incident, which caused President Cleveland to smile, occurred one afternoon recently during one of the public receptions at the White House.

After visiting the museums and other public buildings, the party decided that their trip to the capital would be incomplete unless they had a handshake with Mr. Cleveland.

Little nine-year-old Marcella Maloy, daughter of Frank Maloy, accompanied the party to the executive mansion.

"Yes," said the wife of the Pennsylvania editor, "President Cleveland is looking for a third term, I believe, and it is my hope that he will get it."

Now, the phrase "third term" was as Greek or Choctaw to Miss Marcella, and she asked:

"What is a third term?" She was told it was a political matter, which she did not understand.

While proceeding to the White House the "third term" business remained uppermost in Marcella's mind.

At last Marcella's turn arrived. Reaching out her little hand, and gazing earnestly into the president's face, the nine-year-old asked, in an innocent childish fashion:

"Mister Cleveland, is you looking for a third term?"

The president's sides shook and a smile broadened his face as he pleasantly nodded to Miss Maloy.

"Then, Mister President, I hope you will find it."

Before Mr. Cleveland could regain his equanimity and reply the usher, who no doubt wanted to relieve the chief executive from such a direct thrust, took Marcella's hand and led her along.

Words and Actions Don't Correspond.

It is rumored that some of the subscriptions for the bonds of the overall factory are not coming in as rapidly as they might, and it is further reported that some of the bond subscribers are not over-pleased at the actions of those in charge.

Get Them Into the Borough.

The annexation question seems to be taking a nap. This is not as it should be. There is room in Freeland for those lands and buildings which are now a part of the town, but not of the borough.

The Silk Mill Delay.

It is about time that the people of town, especially those who subscribed money, be given some light upon the silk mill project.

Has the proposed modern fire alarm gone to keep company with the bills sent to the Traction Company for publishing ordinances and cleaning snow?

The Salt of the Earth.

A wealthy man died last winter in Philadelphia, whose name was not found on one of the lists of patrons to great public charities.

"I may seem a trivial thing to you," said a well-known druggist, "but one of our greatest annoyances is about corks.

CONSTITUTIONAL AND JUDICIAL OBSTACLES TO REFORM.

Were you looking to be held together by the lawyers? Or by an agreement on a paper? Or by arms?

Story, in the preface to his "Commentaries," speaks of the constitution as "in the highest sense the palladium of American liberty."

In the Hyattsville case protection is afforded to landlords. In the Illinois eight hour case it is the factory owner who is protected against the women and children in his employ.

There are two reasons for this failure of our constitution to protect life and liberty while they go much too far in protecting property.

First.—As to the judges, I am far from believing that they have any intention to render unjust decisions, but all their prepossessions run in one direction.

ERNEST H. CROSBY.

issory note. To do this they have been obliged to turn their backs on a series of decisions looking in the other direction, and the result is that they have denied us the right of levying a tax of the most democratic description, although it has long been collected without question in England and Germany.

APPROPRIATION BILLS OUT OF THE WAY

Butler Bond Measure and Filled Cheese Bill the Subjects Remaining in the Senate—Alcohol Tariff in the House.

Washington, May 26.—Now that all the annual appropriation bills are out of the way, the last, the deficiency bill, having been passed yesterday afternoon, the senate has practically completed its labor for the present session.

The Butler bond bill and the filled cheese measure will probably engross the attention of the senate for several days, the bond measure being on the programme for to-day.

The deficiency bill as reported from the appropriation committee covered items aggregating about nine million dollars; about twice the amount that it carried when it came over from the house.
