DRIFTON ITEMS.

A serious cavein took place in No. 1 mines on Saturday afternoon. About two acres in the Moore tract, which lies towards Jeddo, went down from the surface. The tracks of the Lehigh Traction Company went down from two to fifteen feet for a distance of sixty yards, and the schoolhouse at Japan was disturbed sufficiently to crack the plaster on the walls and make the building unsafe. A car had passed oyer the spot on the waits and make the building un-safe. A car had passed over the spot only a few minutes before. The Trac-tion Company set to work immediately to raise the track, and when this was accomplished a car was run over the road. This car now runs to and from Peccland, and passengers are transformed to it at the schoolhouse from the cars from Hazleton. There was not much damage done to the mine, as the place where the cavein occurred is about the South Carolina Senator Greeted by an Enthusiastic Audience at Hazleton Thursday Evening—Free Silver Had a Big Night and the People Enjoyed It.

HEARD TILLMAN SPEAK.

THOUSANDS LISTENED TO HIS AD-

Carloads of North Side voters mad Carloads of North Side voters made another journey to Hazleton on Thursday evening for the purpose of hearing Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, deliver an address. This time they were not disappointed. With thousands of their fellow-citizens from other parts of the region they congregated in front of the Central hotel and gave him a rousing welcome. The fame of the who is despised and hated by the m who is despised and hated by the money powers of the world, because they are unable to muzzle him, had preceded him into the coal region, and when he ap-peared before the vast andience he was greeted as the common people only can greet a man whom they instinctively feel is a true friend to the principles which will being them relief

He apologized for his bro-ken voice, caused by so much outdoor speaking the past month, but for the statements which followed he had no apologies to offer. Instead, he defied contradiction of what he said, and it is almost unnecessary to state that he was not contralicted.

The speaker began at what he termed not contradicted.

The speaker began at what he termed the "A B C" of the money question, showing what money is, its uses and how it obtains its value. His explanations of its various qualities were clear and intelligible, there was no mist surrounding his meaning, and when he concluded on that point many of his hearers felt that what they had then learned was well worth the trip. His reason, he stated, for making an exhaustive explanation on that particular portion of the issue, was to enlighten his tion of the issue, was to enlighten his nearers, claiming that what they hav

The results of this act were vividly pic-tured by the senator, and his illustra-tion of how money has been growing dearer every year since silver was stricken down was one of the clearest that any writer or crater has attenuted that any writer or orator has attempted to give the public in this part of the

that any writer or orator has attempted to give the public in this part of the country.

Likening the gold and silver of the world to two plates of butter, one yellow and one white, and asking the audience to suppose itself as constituting all the people of the earth, he described how there had been sufficient butter for every man's biscuit, and each could use white or yellow, as he preferred, one being as palatable as the other. One day a servant of the proprietor of this great eating establishment is approached by the makers and owners of the yellow butter, and is bribed by them to accomplish the removal of the white from the table. He, by underhand and unexplainable methods, performs this, and in a short time the scarcity of butter is noticed. Many of the eaters find they must do without butter, or sacrifice a much greater part of their labor or products to set it. and they must do without outler, or sacrifice a much greater part of their labor or products to get it. The point was illustrated so clearly, forcibly and logically that every man present appear-ed to realized instantly how the demone-tization of silver has affected the coun-

Senator Tillman asked who it was that took away the white butter. An answer from the audience gave the name of John Sherman. Mr. Tillman repeated the answer, and then deliberately accused his colleague from Ohio of being the man who accomplished the crime of 1873. Speaking further upon the subject, he told of how Sherman was the staunchest, advocate of paying the staunchest, advocate of paying the
