A Philadelphia boy smoked cigarettes, on a wager, against time. It took him only half an hour to absorb poison enough to kill him. He died in a few hours. Death followed as surely as if a deadly weapon had been used. It is none the less suicide when a fatal result follows a long use of cigarettes. Such suicides are not rare. Insane asylums and graves bear witness to the indious and destructive power of this

The physicians of California are much aroused over the spread of consumption in the state. A general quarantine against invalids is recommended. This is undoubtedly due to the great number of invalids that for many years have been seeking health in the golden state.

A five-year-old boy of Kenton county, Ky., fell head foremost into the sandy bottom of a well 40 feet deep a few days ago and had managed to elimb nearly to the top of the well when he fell back. He started to elimb again, however, and succeeded in getting out safely. There is pluck for you.

For two months a certain writer dictated literary notes to a phonograph.

At the end of this period, when he wished to put his work in manuscript, the machine was thoroughly out of order, and the too trustful author had to mourn the waste of the entire two months' time and eloquence.

The inventor of the latest flying ma-chine insists that getting down to the earth's surface after a flight is quite as important as soaring up from it. As the man said who fell from the top of a ten-story building, it was not the falling down which injured him, but the stopping so suddenly.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, December 4, 1896.
The White House is about the only place in Washington one can go without meeting one or more senators and representatives. Secretary Olney has been overrum with congressional callers, especially since the circulation of the rumor that he had a short time ago notified the governer of Spain that this government intends to bring about peace in Cuba if the revolution was not putdown in three months, all anxious to know the exact Washington, December 4, 1896. months, all anxious to know the exact status of Cuban matters. Members of the senate and house foreign committees are said to have received some definite information, but to all the rest it was stated in general terms that no immediate change was contemplated in the policy of the administration towards. Cuba, and it is expected that the president's message will treat the matter in same style. The other members of the cabinet have also had numerous congressional callers, some on business for their constituents and some merely to months, all anxious to know the exact their constituents and some merely to pay a friendly visit; but President Cleve land has not had much of his time taker up by them and is not likely to have.

Speaking of the probability that one or more senators may be asked to join McKinley's cabineta veteran Republican senator said: "Well, everybody must judge for themselves, but the senator who has been in office for more than one term who is willing to enter the cabinet must either have been blind to what must either have been blind to what went on under his nose or imagine that he posseses the ability to make his ex-perience different from that of other perience different from that of other men who have tried the same thing. Many senators have been persuaded into presidents' cabinets, but I don't believe there was ever one of them who did not regret it. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who has been mentioned as a cabinet possibility, says he would not leave the senate for any position in McKinley's gift. Lodge many not have a level head on everything but on this subject he has. There is nothing in official life, except the presidency, better than a senatorship.

The president's message is not ready to be sent to congress, and the usual precautions have been taken to prevent its premature publication. If it be fair to judge from the lack of curiosity as to the contents of that document this year, these precautions were hardly necesprecautions were hardly neces-It will, of course, be printed as a matter of news when it goes to congres matter of news when it goes to congress, but it is doubtful wether an advance copy of it could be sold to any paper in the country, not because of the belief that it will be any less interesting than Mr. Cleveland's previous messages, but because of the knowledge that the situation in congress is such that no matter how wise or how important the recommendations of the message may be there is no possibility of their being car-ried out by legislation at the present

There are all classes of men in most professions, but the increase of men who conduct their business upon the who conduct their business upon the green goods man's theory, that "a new new sucker is born every minute," in the ranks of the patent solicitors has aroused the honorable patent lawyers to the necessity of taking some action that will protect the inventors of the country and their own profession from the degradation and demoralization of the methods adopted to cajole money from the pockets of the inventors without any attention of giving any equitable return attention of giving any equitable return therefor. Under present laws and rules the commissioner of patents can do nothing to protect either the honest patent lawyer or the inventor, except in cases of the most flagrant nature.

Senator Cullom, the gentleman who was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination because of a fancied facial resemblance to Abraham Lincoln and who has been "mentioned" Lincoln and who has been "mentioned" for the cabinet, has set up as a financial oracle. He said: "The Republican party will settle the silver question within the next four years to the satisfaction of everybody." When asked to state how this wonderful settlement was to be brought about the oracle replied: "Just what plan will be followed I cannot say, but I feel sure it will be settled." Now isn't that convincing.

At the general election of 1808 Dr. Temple took an active part in Warwickshire in support of Mr. Gladstone's measure for the disestablishment of the Irish church, and the premier nominated him to the bishopric of Exeter in succession to the late Dr. Philpotts-an appointment which caused considerable commotion in clerical circles. The confirmation of Dr. Temple's election took place December 8, 1869, at the Church of St. Mary-Le-Bow, Chenpside, when Bishop Trower, a representative of a portion of the clergy who were opposed to Dr. Temple because he was the author of one of the "Pssays and Reviews," instructed counsel to oppose the election. Device Intended to Prevent the Hand

At last a champion has arisen who is to care for the tired fingers of the pretty typewriter. Many people seem to think the typewriter girl takes life easy, without giving a single thought to a sort of paralysis of the fingers which is sure to come if the keys of the machine are hammered long enough.
But now Robert Barclay, an inventor of Green Bax, Wis, has contrived a simple Green Bay, Wis., has contrived a simple little machine which, when used by the typewriter, counteracts the effect of the work on the machine and so pre-vents that form of paralysis, of which cramped fingers and a numbness of the hands are the first invariable symp-

Punishments Inflicted by Him on Armenian Prisoners.

1 Few of the Tortures Which Are te So Borrible in Their treme Barbarity as to Be Unprintable.

The following is an account taken from the British consular reports of the various tortures and punishments inflicted on the Armenians by the sultan of Turkey. Some of them are so horrible in their extreme barbarity that they are unprincipally.

ble in their extreme barbarity that they are unprintable:

The twitch is made of two pieces of wood with a cord pecsed through one end and forming a loop. This used to be employed in England to hold a refractory horse if it was necessary to administer medicine. When an Armenian is safely in prison and will not speak but the twitch is applied in exactly the same way until the cord cuts into the flesh and the blood spurts.

Two pieces of flat board, with a couple of notches on each side of the board, are fastened together just like a pair of nut crackers and then used to compressecretain parts of the body.

are bound tightly and the eggs changed when they begin to cool.

Mashers are the little tongs used to lift pieces of charcoal from open fires in mangols. These tongs are made redhot and applied to the body in the same way that Edward II. was done to death in Berkeley castle.

At the Turkish prisons in Constantinople the chair torture is in daily foreas applied to recalcitrant Armenians who will not speak out regarding the whereabouts of their fellow countrymen who are "wanted" by the officials.
There is a cell in every prison, in which is a pit capable of holding water.
An armchair is placed in the pit and the back of this chair is made to lean forward by meuns of serews. An Armenian is put into the chair, and a band of iron, the ends of which go through the holes of the chair, is fastened across his addomen. The water is then let in and the chair screwed forward until

I have seen in Constantinople an unfortunate Armenian bound and thrust into a cesspool in the yard of the Prison. The ordinary procedure of the Turkish officials is to leave the victim until he sinks and is suffocated or else makes a sham confession.

Iron bands are made with a screw at the back to go round the forehead, trunk and limbs: then the ends are screwed together and the unhappy Armenian forced to speak. The man is kept for a few days, until the merks have worn off, and it is impossible to say that he has been tortured.

Another method of torture is to sever the skin of the scalp and insert living vermin beneath it. Men have been known to go mad under this frightful torture.

This form of torture is one of the

This form of torture is one of the most prominent in the whole list, and is probably used oftener than any of the others: It consists of lashing the bare sales of the feet of the prisoner, who has been previously fustened to the ground, so that he cannot move a muscle. The whip is laid on until the flesh is cut and bleeding, and the victim seldom goes through the ordeal without losing consciousness.

The alleged father of the present sultan was put to death by this method: A large V-shaped wedge with sharpened edge is raised ten feet from the ground. The victim is held suspended in the air, straddling the wedge. Huge weights are tied on each foot and at the word of command the rope holding him is cut. The weights pull him down and he is split in two halves.

It is a common occurrence when a prisoner refuses to tell what is wanted of him to cut off a limb, and with the stump bleeding and sore thrust him into prison to reflect, and if he decides whether or not be prefers to change his mind or suffer another amputation. The mutilated prisoners often die under this treatment from blood poisoning, caused by lack of attendance or use the mind or suffer another amputation. The favorite death for women of the harem who have incurred the displeasure of their master is for the guards to sew them up in a canvas sack. While the poor woman is begging for mercy two or three fiere Turkish cats are thrust into the bag and it is then taken to the Bosphorus.

Country Preacher Gets a Practical Insight Into Chicago Affairs.
