COUNCILMEN DECIDE TO IMPROVE SOME OF THE STREETS.

Many Other Matters Considered.

The members of the council met on Tuesday evening, with all present except Councilman Rutter. The meeting was called for the purpose of formulating the report of the committee which viewed the borough on the 14th ult., for for the purpose of taking action upon several claims made by citizens for extra light, water plugs and grading of streets. Twenty-three items were gone over, and the committee's report will be presented to council at its next meeting for approval.

The men who do these writings neither copy our nature nor our life; neither paint the matter nor represent the operations of our intellect. It would be violence done to a man's conseience to discover the object of much of what is written about Freeland, its industries and its government. Much of the mystand its government is government. Much of the mysta they might have gained with less extravagance and affectation.

Is it wonderful then that Freeland people speak feelingly of the misapplication of the genuis of these correspondents? The complaint so often made, and here repeated, is not the want of power in these men, but the waste of it; not the absence of genius in some of them, but the abuse of it. A writer can be sportive in irony, if he will, yet he should never trespass on modesty.

Mr. Editor, there is no valid excuse for the silly nonsense we see so much indulged in from Freeland. There are other and more beneficial lines for newspaper correspondents to follow. Will they do it? The town is heart-sick of the pessimists and scolds; weary of the incessant pen-pictures of gloom and despair, and anxious for rest and a return to neighborly confidence and trust. The Peeping Tom's of Coventry must be suppressed.

DRIFTON ITEMS.

FREELAND, PA., THURSDAY, JULY 1, 1897.

The residents of No. 2 had bushels of fun last night. Shortly after supper a Hazleton Hebrew peddler called at the home of Paul Brusack, who was married a week ago, and asked if he wanted to buy anything. Paul replied that he would buy a horse, and the peddler immediately offered his for 5 cents. The nickel was tendered and accepted, but when Paul went outside to examine his purchase the Hebrew protested and claimed the sale was only a joke. Brusack failed to see the joke and with several of his countrymen, who were witnesses of the transaction, demanded the animal. Failing to obtain it peacefully, Paul invoked the aid of the law by procuring a warrant from Squire Shovlin, of Freeland. The peddler, however, in the meantime had become alarmed at the prospect of facing a Freeland justice, and lifting his packs from the wagon carried them to the trolley station and filed homeward on the first car. Brusack took possession of the horse, leaving the harness and wagon on the street. During the rumpus escitement ran high. Those who know claim Brusack has a good claim to the horse—at least he has possession and there are witnesses who saw him pay his nickel.

Some of our bloods went to Freeland on Tuesday night and became entangled in a brawl about midnight. They entered a Hungarian saloon, where a christening celebration was in progress, and distributed cowhage among the gnests. When the Hungarians found what was troubling them they made things lively for the jokers, and the Struck by a Freight Train.

James McNamara, a single man of Highland, aged about 25 years, was struck by a Lehigh Valley freight train early Wednesday morning near that place. He had spent considerable part of the previous night here and it is said he was intoxicated when he started for Highland. How he escaped death seems a miracle. As it was, he was thrown from the track and severely cut and bruised. He was taken to Hazleton hospital at 9.35 a.m., and the right arm was amputated near the elbow at that institution. He is still in a precarious condition.
