MASSACRED MINERS STRIKING AT LATTIMER.

Sheriff Martin's Gang of Deputies Fired Upon a Body of Harwood Strikers on Friday Afternoon, Killing 22 Men and Wounding Over 40 Others.

to prevent men from marching on Hazle township road.

Triday's massacre was the result of a deliberate laid plot, hatched early last week in the private offices of the coal corporations of this region, to aggravate the striking miners of the South Side and entice them to commit some overt act which could be used as a pretext to call out the state militia; and then, with the citizen soldiery of the state behind them, the coal corporations could reassert their long undisputed title of supreme master of every living being in their territory.

Sheriff Martin was used as a tool, and apparently not an unwilling one, to carry out this murderous scheme. He readily agreed to use his high office to further the nefarious work, by swearing in as deputies, and arming them with Winchester rifles, hordes of the lowest and basest specimens of human nature that the corporations could gather for the purpose; and, when enough of these could not be found, the Dritton companies placed at his disposal all of their employes who lacked the necessary manhood and human spirit to refuse to sully their characters by engaging in such an annworthy cause.

So far not a cent's worth of property had been harmed, not a drop of blood had been shed. The South Side minerstaunted by the false promises of conferences made by Superintendent Lawall, another party to the plot, had behaved admirably and had been successfully inducing the employes at other collieries to join them in demanding living wages; the sentiment of the region was with the men; their peaceful methods and orderly conduct were winning them friends.

Then came the armed thugs known as deputies. With their glittering guns dependence of the collection of the dead and wound-derighted were viruled by he delale professed forward to learn the cause of the dead on human scheme. He remove with the men; there is not now known.

A score of men were deliberately murdered on the public highway near Lattimer on Friday afternoon by one of the bands of armed thugs which have been parading the region for a week past. Twice as many were seriously wounded in the slaughter. The band was under the personal direction of Sheriff Martin, and consisted of seventy unprincipled and cowardly assassins who had been sworn in as deputies by that official. The dead and injured were striking miners from Harwood collieries and all were foreigners.

In consequence of the sheriff's inability to kill off more than a score a day, Governor Hastings has granted the request of the operators to send the National Guards here, and the entire Third Brigade, consisting of 3,000 troops, is now quartered in the Lehigh Tegion, fully prepared and under instructions to exterminate all who dare to seek redress from the conditions forced upon them by the now blood-stained corporations of this district.

REGION FULL OF SOLDIERS.

All the Lehigh region, except this town and vicinity, is filled with militia, and there is no reason known for their presence. The Third Brigade began arriving Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The Ninth regiment was first on the ground, followed shortly by the Eighth, Thirteenth and Twelfth regiments. Later the Governor's Troop came in, then Battery C. The City Troop, of the First Brigade, arrived at 10 p. m. Saturday. Brigadier-General J. S. Gobin, of Lebanon, is in command.

Peter Jasinski, of town, represented Freeland in the convention.

Offers of services from attorneys in all parts of the state have been tendered.

Only here and there can a person be found who upholds the deputies work, and these, in almost every instance, are people who are owned bodily by the coal corporations and are paid to shout for the broadcloth anarchists who are morally responsible for the murders.

UPPER LEHIGH NOTES.

The collieries here shut down this morning. When the employes assembled for work at the different slopes the indignation at the Lattimer massacre was so great that the men decided unanimously to return home and attend the funerals at Harwood. The Slavonian and Polish employes heartily endorsed the move, and the works came to a sudden ston.

Many years ago Reese fell in love with a young woman who returned his affection and they were to be married. Time passed on and they looked forward to their wedding day with happy anticipations. Later the prospective bride grew cold. This brake Reeso's heart. He deserted all his friends, opened the little shop and lived there in the seclusion ever after.
