Making New Faces.

Half a century ago a child with the most distressing facial deformities was allowed to grow up a dread to himself and an object of pity to all his associates. It was not deemed possible to correct these ills: indeed, nobody gave itany thought; the wretched victim suffered out his miserable remnant of life, and that was all there was about it. Within the past few years a branch of surgery that is of the utmost importance to humanity has been receiving careful attention. And as the art of restoration stands at the present day, there is no excuse whatever for the hideous objects that were formerly looked upon as incurable and therefore inevitable. All manner of changes are now made in the personal appearance. The harelip and distorted mouth are treated scientifically, and the face is restored to its normal condition and even greatly improved by the operations which these blemishes render necessary. Crooked noses are straightened, and ears that extend out from the head are skilifully put to rights with the most astonishingly gratifying results. Flat, humped or depressed noses are made symmetrical and even beautiful. Of course, the treatment is more successful upon the young than when undertaken with those who have reached maturity, but the cather is more successful upon the young than when undertaken with those who have reached maturity, but to move and to present to the world as good an appearance as possible.
