BRIEF ITEMS OF NEWS.

PARAGRAPHS GATHERED FROM ALL PARTS OF THE REGION.

Synopsis of Local and Miscellaneous Occurrences That Can Be Read Quickly. What the Folks of This and Other Towns are Doing.

Hallow E'en was celebrated on Saturday night by the juveniles in old-time style.

The St. Patrick's cornet band and several couples attended a ball in Hazleton on Friday evening.

Andrew Roarty, of Drifton, on Saturday fell down the steps of the breaker and sustained painful injuries.

N. E. Peters has tendered his resignation as manager of Sandy Run store. He intends to engage in business in Allentown.

Frank Wilson, of Hazleton, has been awarded the contract to place lightning rods on all the Lehigh Valley Railroad depots and buildings in this region.

A man claiming to be A. P. Zane, of Freeland, swindled Ashland people by means of bogus checks, last week. He escaped before the victims learned of his dishonesty.

The ballots for tomorrow's election have been delivered to the judges throughout the county. A new ballot-box has been received by the officers of the Second ward, this being a new district.

William Gallagher, a son of Anthony Gallagher, of Washington street, had his collar-bone broken on Wednesday night. With several companions he was playing Rugby and the accident happened during a "rush."

The Stogmaier Brewing Company, of Wilkesbarre, was granted a charter at Harrisburg last week. The capital stock is $600,000. Charles Stogmaier holds 5,400 shares of the 6,000 and four of the children have 150 shares each.

A pretty line of fall dress goods can be seen at Oswald's. Latest patterns and lowest prices.

Sharon McNair, of Hazleton, has been engaged by the street committee of council to give grade on Birkbeck street from Front to Main (South Heberton), and on Carbon from Centre to Ridge, Johnson street and Walnut, west from Ridge, will also receive attention.

Sheriff Martin's gang of indicted deputies held a secret meeting at Hazleton Friday evening. Several are getting nervous over the outlook and some disappearances may soon be noted. The corporation agents are trying hard to encourage them in the belief that money will procure their acquittal.

The survey of what is said to be a branch line of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Wilkesbarre and Williamsport is in progress. It is said that the Lehigh Valley tracks will be used as far as Tunkhannock, where the line will branch off westward, crossing Sullivan county, and thence to Williamsport.

James Doran, the well-known pugilist, met his death in a horrible manner near Wilkesbarre on Friday. He was employed as a rockman at the Exeter mine. He missed his hold in getting into the bucket and fell down the shaft a distance of 550 feet. Death was instantaneous, every bone in his body being broken.

A. Oswald returned home from Bethlehem hospital on Friday evening. He is still receiving treatment for the injuries sustained, and will not be able to engage actively in his business for some time. His appearance, however, is a pleasant surprise to his friends who have called, and he has been congratulated by all upon his improved condition.

The members of the Tigers Athletic Club held a banquet at their club-house on Saturday night. Covers for forty-six were laid on a large table built in the form of a T, and every seat was occupied. Full justice was done to every course, from oysters to ice cream and cigars. The interior of the building was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

DEATHS.

Gaylor.—At Hazleton hospital, October 31, Daniel Gaylor, of Eckley, from injuries received October 25. Funeral on Wednesday. Arrangements not yet completed.

LARGE LABOR MEETING.

Men of National Fame Delivered Strong Addresses Here Last Night.

An enthusiastic mass meeting of the miners of the North Side was held in Yannes' opera house last night. The meeting was addressed by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; P. J. McGuire, secretary of the Typographical Union, and John Fahy, general organizer of the United Mine Workers. President Gompers' speech was a strong enunciation of the benefits of organized labor, and the strong points of his discourse were cheered with fervor. He referred briefly to the cause that led up to the Lattimer shooting, and denounced the conduct of Sheriff Martin and his deputies in its strongest language. He also promised that the indicted men would feel the power of the Federation in the prosecutions. Mr. Gompers was unwell and had to retire early.

The speech of the evening was Mr. McGuire's. He kept the meeting in an enthusiastic condition, and the audience, which filled the big building, greeted his remarks with vigor. Mr. McGuire gave some inside history of the labor legislation of the past year, and Organizer Fahy enlightened those who were anxious to learn of the benefits of the Mine Workers.

The St. Patrick's cornet band discoursed music at the meeting. It was the largest labor rally held on the North Side in years.

The Anthracite Coal Trade.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer. An exceptionally mild autumn and distrust of present methods of management have combined to make the anthracite coal trade dull and uncertain. Everywhere the retail demand is light, and everywhere confidence is lacking in the future of the business. It is now generally conceded that two great mistakes have been made by the trade managers: First, that the consumption has been overestimated, an insufficient allowance having been made for the displacement of anthracite by low-priced bituminous, and for the necessity of economizing, owing to the business depression, and second, the large overproduction in July and August, following an unwise advance in prices.

As the October output will be large, and as the companies are understood to have agreed to push the production in November and December, so as to make good earnings statements for the year, confidence in prices is entirely lacking.

Sheriff and Deputies Indicted.

Indictments were on Thursday returned by the grand jury against Sheriff Martin and his deputies for the Lattimer shooting. There is one true bill for each man killed, and one for the victims considered collectively, and these bills all charge murder. Thirty-six true bills were found in the same way for felonious wounding against the same defendants. It is understood that from this the defendants can claim separate trials or can elect to be tried together. It is likely that Sheriff Martin and his deputies will elect to stand together. There is some talk that the indicted men will ask that they be tried in some other county.

There is no question but that the prosecution will be pushed vigorously. Every effort will be made to have a proper verdict rendered and have the punishment fit the crime.

Vote Tomorrow and Vote Right.

Tomorrow every qualified voter is expected to do his duty by going to the polls and voting for the candidate of his choice. Every voter, not physically disabled, should do this, his duty. Every Democrat in this county ought to go to the polls and vote tomorrow, casting his ballot, of course, for the party candidates. Then in addition, he ought to see that not a Democratic voter in his district fails to get to the polls. Show what you can do when you are in earnest, and the result will be the election of the entire Democratic ticket. It can be done.

An Invitation from Pottsville.

L. Olsho, who until recently was one of Freeland's business men, extends an invitation to all persons of this vicinity who may be in Pottsville at any time to call at his place of business in that town. He is located in the Centennial Building, 210 Centre street, where all Freeland people, whether former patrons or not, can make themselves at home during a visit to Schuyllkill's county seat. Mr. Olsho is extremely grateful to the people of this section for the manner in which he was treated while here, and desires to be given an opportunity to return the courtesy to all who may visit Pottsville.

Interstate Firemen's Carnival.

Trenton, N. J., November 10. The Lehigh Valley Railroad will sell tickets from Freeland to Trenton, N. J., and return at the rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets on sale November 9 and 10, good for return to and including November 11, on all trains except the Black Diamond Express. Consult Lehigh Valley ticket agents for particulars.

Masquerade Ball Tonight.

A grand masquerade ball will be held this evening at Krouse's hotel, South Hetetown. Prof. Mayberry's orchestra will furnish the music. Admission, 25 cents. Free lunch will be served all night. Everybody is cordially invited.

VICTORY IS IN SIGHT.

Democrats Will Triumph in Luzerne Tomorrow If the Vote Is Polled.

The campaign is closed. The voters of Luzerne are about to record their opinions at the polls. From the outset of the canvass the Republicans have been alarmed. And with good reason. They knew, in the first place, that their party would suffer this year because of the broken pledges of its leaders. It will be readily recalled what promises they made last year in behalf of McKinley. They told the workmen especially, that his election would be rapidly followed by good times, steady work and higher wages. They faithfully promised all these things in the event of McKinley's election.

Well, McKinley was elected and what followed? He, at the command of Mark Hanna and other millionaire monopolists, called congress together in special session to pass a tariff bill which greatly enriched the fat trusts and speculative corporations and doubled the cost of living to the poor man.

Did the good times come? Have the miners better wages? Not much. All that has been done by the McKinley administration, so far, has been done to make the rich, richer, and the poor, poorer. These are facts which every man in this section of Pennsylvania fully understands.

Again, the renomination of Fell and Llewellyn was a bad thing for the Republicans in Luzerne. There were men as fully as deserving who asked for the nominations, but who were turned down in favor of the second terms. The result was that hundreds of honest Republicans turned away in disgust and have shown no concern in what might result to their party in this battle.

The voters of Freeland know the qualifications and many virtues of the Democratic candidates. They have been working for the principles they represent from the day they were nominated. Enthusiastic meetings have been held and evidence has not been lacking that the Democratic spirit is thoroughly aroused throughout the county. Democratic victory is in the air if the vote is gotten out.

Apathy has seized upon the Republicans. They have not held a single meeting during the whole campaign. They dared not, because they felt assured that the apathy referred to would be revealed in a universal desertion at such meetings. The Republican leaders are not only downcast but terribly alarmed. They know their cause this time is not a good one. They realize the honesty and justice that have characterized the labors of the Democrats this year and they feel that the people are against the Republican machine.

It is well for Democrats to be on their guard and put no faith in election day rumors. No doubt such will be circulated, as the enemy is desperate and will stop at nothing to turn the tide of Democratic enthusiasm aside. But the Democrats are sure winners if they stand together and see that the full party strength is polled.

Death of Henry George.

Henry George, author of "Progress and Poverty" and candidate of the Jefferson Democracy for mayor of New York city, died at 4:50 o'clock on Friday morning, of cerebral apoplexy. The end was peaceful, and he died without pain. This man of mighty brain and undaunted courage was physically frail, and the strain of an exciting campaign, requiring speech-making at points many miles apart, night after night, was more than he could stand. He kept up to the end, and only a few hours before the dread messenger cried halt, Henry George had addressed several enthusiastic audiences at different points in Greater New York.

Mr. George died fighting for the noblest cause for which man can die—the cause of humanity. His doctrines and his teachings, as he gave them to the world in his famous book, will live forever. The great social struggle for the emancipation of man will continue, and some time in the future, when "equal rights for all and special privileges for none" shall become the basic principle of every civilized government, his true worth will be recognized and history will accord him his proper place among the real benefactors of mankind.

Mr. George was known personally to many Freeland people, and the single tax theory, which he so ably developed and successfully defended, has hosts of advocates in this section. In 1886 he delivered a public address under the auspices of the Knights of Labor at Donop's hall.

A fund has been started in New York city to erect a memorial to Henry George. The TRIBUNE on Saturday received the following telegram from the New York World, and all who wish to contribute can do so through that paper: New York, October 30. EDITOR TRIBUNE.—The World has opened a subscription for a public memorial to the late Henry George. Mayor Strong heads the list. Will you help this movement by noting in your columns subscriptions forwarded to the World by telegraph, mail or letter will be promptly acknowledged? The World.

RELIC OF A BIG NIGHT.

ALDERMAN DONOHUE'S HAT CLEARED THE TITLE TO A FORTUNE.

Celebrated Cleveland's First Election with a New Silk Tie—Had a Memorandum of Marriage Inside and This Established a Widow's Claim.

A silk hat, crushed and battered by rejoicing Democrats on the night of November 7, 1884, when Grover Cleveland was first elected president of the United States, has just proved the means of giving to a despairing widow a snug fortune and proving that she was legally married. The hat is the property of famous Alderman Donohue, of Wilkesbarre, and its story is an interesting one.

Donohue was one of the most enthusiastic of Cleveland supporters during his first presidential campaign. On election day in 1884 Donohue was busy around the polls, and so well did he do his work that he won a fine silk hat on the big Cleveland vote polled in his ward, and in all the glory of this hat he waited around town for the returns from all over the county. Cleveland the squire celebrating the receipt of each one in the approved manner.

In the midst of the glad news Donohue was hastily summoned to the Bristol House to marry George Bounds and Miss Mary Rogers, who had just reached town. Eager to get back to the bulletin boards, the squire galloped through the ceremony, kissed the bride, and, having no paper, hastily made a note of the marriage in the white silk lining of his new hat, promising to send a marriage license to the happy couple the next day.

Among the incidents of that night of jollity of which the squire has no clear recollection must have been a heated argument. At any rate, when he arrived home in the morning the and bright. It looked very much as if it had been through a foot ball game, and Mrs. Donohue, after removing it with some effort from the depths of a dark and musty closet.

A year ago Donohue received a letter from a Mrs. George Bounds, of Montana, stating that her husband had been killed on the railroad where he was employed as a brakeman; that he was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and that before she could get the amount of the insurance carried by her husband in the lodge she must produce her marriage certificate. She asked Donohue to forward the long-delayed paper.

The alderman examined his books and found no record of any such marriage, and replied to that effect. Then Mrs. Bounds came on to Wilkesbarre and recalled the circumstances of the case, but Donohue of the night except that Cleveland was elected. The widow returned to Montana in despair.

Now comes the hat once more. About six weeks ago Mrs. Donohue, in cleaning house, ransacked an old closet and discovered an old and battered silk hat, the same one put away there some thirteen years before. She dusted it and accidentally saw the writing on the lining, legible and distinct. Then the alderman remembered, and the next day the hat and the marriage certificate started westward.

Donohue received a letter a few days since from the grateful Mrs. Bounds, saying the court had accepted the evidence thus strangely tendered, and had decided in her favor.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J.
