The right claimed by miners to gather on a coal company's property and prohibit others from going to work was upheld on Saturday by a jury in the criminal court at Wilkesbarre. A number of menemployed in the Heideberg colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company are Avoca, went on strike on ottober 1 last. Committees were appointed among the men, who, it is alleged, by threats prevented others from getting to work. A riot followed and stones were thrown, but no person aws injured.
The officials of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company ordered the arrest of the leads ers of the strikes. It was also been made by the strikes. It was also shown that the men were on the company's property.
The defense opened shortly before none. Attorney Eugene Ward made the opening plea and said the trouble was caused by excessive docking and that the defendants where then each story of the strikes. The stagnation in the anthracite coal trade, due principally to the inability of the market to take the present large production, is receiving the serious con-sideration of the anthracite presidents, and it is more than likely that a curtail-ment in production for the balance of the year will be agreed upon. The man-agers of the Reading Company, the largest of the anthracite producers, are strongly in favor of curtailment. An official of the company said Friday: "It ought to be done, and is the only pos-sible solution of the difficulty:" He also stated that the matter of cur-vassed among the anthracite presidents, and that he was hopeful that such a course would be adopted very soon.
