STORY OF THE MURDER.

WITNESSES FOR THE PROSECUTION GIVING TESTIMONY.

Details of the Lattimer Massacre Fill Columns of Newspapers, But Have No Effect Upon the Inhuman Gang Who Slaughtered Innocent Men.

On Thursday morning the first witness in the greatest trial the world has ever known took the stand at Wilkes-Barre. Previous to this Attorney McGahren delivered the opening address on behalf of the murdered and wounded miners, and an able and eloquent presentation of the case it was. The attorney related the facts and promised to show by competent witnesses that the shooting was a disgrace to civilization; that the marchers were attacked by the deputies in West Hazleton, where one striker's arm was broken by a blow from a tumbler's gun; that the deputies lined up on Lattimer road in a form calculated to do the most deadly execution; that before the strikers reached Lattimer the deputies showed their eagerness to kill; that the sheriff was in no danger when the firing began; that the first man to fall was he who carried the American flag; that after the slaughter the murderers boasted of how many they killed and disputed as to who sent the most men to the ground; that five minutes after the first volley strikers were running from the terrible scene were deliberately picked off a hundred yards away, and that malice and hatred actuated the murders. After promising to prove these things, Attorney McGahren explained to the jury men their duty. He said: "There are two indictments, murder and felonious wounding. You may find them guilty of murder or manslaughter, or you may find some guilty of murder first degree, others guilty of murder second degree or manslaughter, and you may acquit others if you find nothing against them."

Andrew Clivar, of Harwood, was the first witness. He told a straightforward story of the affair. He was with the marchers before they started and was with them to their graves. His testimony showed that the Lattimer men came to the meeting of the United Mine Workers at Harwood on Thursday night and asked the Harwood miners to come over next day, and when the latter neared the colliery the Lattimer men would strike. He told how this plan was agreed upon and how every man was warned at the meeting to carry no weapon or club, to disturb no person and to molest no property. He described the details of the murder and told how he escaped death by dropping after being shot in the side. He swore the sheriff snapped his revolver at one of the front men two or three times. His testimony consumed three hours and was given in an earnest and convincing manner, and on cross-examination his evidence could not be shaken by Attorney Lenahan, who is engaged to defend the deputies.

Joseph Mulhala was the next witness, and his story corroborated that told by Clivar. He is president of the Harwood branch of the Mine Workers and told of the orders he had issued to the men to carry no weapons and harm no property. Harry Dryfoos, Jr., of Hazleton, showed photographs taken at the bloody scene after the shooting. He was followed by Rev. Father Aust, a Catholic priest of Hazleton, who saw the dead and injured and assisted to relieve the latter.

The next witness was Rev. Carl Houser, of Freeland, pastor of St. Peter and Paul's Lutheran Slavish church. He told how he had viewed the bodies of eleven strikers, laid on the floor of the stable which was used as a temporary morgue. Michael Ceslik was a trustee of his church, and three of the dead had been in his flock. He had seen three bullet holes in the side of Ceslik's head and another through his body.

When court adjourned for the day one of the most important witnesses of the trial was on the stand. He was Charles Guscott, a school teacher at Lattimer, who from his position at a window of his school saw the preparations made by the deputies to give the marchers a reception of leaden hail. His version of the shooting corresponded in every particular with that sworn to by the men in the ranks.

Mr. Guscott took the stand again on Friday morning. Upon request he identified about a dozen of the prisoners who had guns in their hands after the massacre. He assisted in caring for the injured. Miss Grace Coyle, also a school teacher at Lattimer, followed. Her testimony was practically the same as Mr. Guscott's. She swore to having seen men running from the scene and dropping when quite a distance away. She assisted in relieving the wounded and upbraided several of the deputies for their inhuman work. She told them "to go to Cuba, where butchers were in demand." She is the only woman who saw the murder of the strikers and all the talent, trickery and threatening of the great Lenahan was unable to shake her truthful story.

Dr. Keller, late of the Hazleton hospital, testified to the nature of the wounds of the injured, of which the following is a summary showing the direction of the shots: Direct front fire, 5; indirect front fire, 4; direct side fire, 15; indirect side fire, 6; direct rear fire, 3; indirect rear fire, 5. Total, 41.

Rev. B. F. Stofflet, pastor of Hazleton Reformed church, met the strikers on their way to Lattimer. They were marching peacefully, without noise or demonstration, and had no weapons that he could see. An American flag was carried at the head of the column.

The last witness of the day was Andrew F. Adams, a commercial traveler, of Glen Falls, N. Y. He was in a car going to Lattimer, when twenty or twenty-five deputies armed with rifles boarded it. He heard a conversation among them, but here his testimony was stopped. The attorneys began to argue the question of the admissibility of such evidence. Mr. Scarlett, for the prosecution, made a brilliant plea that the utterance of one or more members of a posse, band or mob on trial for a specific crime should be admitted, without separate identification.

The commonwealth said they would prove by the witness that one deputy said on the car: "Why did the sheriff not give us a chance to shoot at Hazleton?" Another replied: "This would be a good place to mow them down."

It was a matter of fact that this body of men boarding the car armed with rifles was a part of the band of deputies. Ex-Attorney General Palmer, for the defense, argued that the defendant must be proved to be such, and fired by name or recognition. Judge Woodward sustained the objection and refused to admit Mr. Adams' testimony.

The fifth day of the trial, Saturday, began by calling to the stand Michael Nicholson, who rode on the electric car with the deputies from Hazleton to Farley's hotel. He arrived on the scene of the shooting about five minutes after it occurred. He heard Joe Costello say to Deputy Hess: "It is scandal to do such a thing to human beings," and Hess raised his gun and said, "Shut up, or I will do the same to you."

John Eagler, one of the strikers, repeated the details which took place before, during and after the shooting. He saved himself by lying on the ground until the deputies had emptied their guns.

As court was about to adjourn for the day, District Attorney Martin called for the commitment to jail of the murderers or else that their bail be renewed immediately. He said: "At the November session the bail in this case should have been forfeited. It was not done. These defendants are here now without bail and I ask that the bail be renewed at once or the defendants committed."

The attorneys for the defense objected to this. Attorney McGahren, for the prosecution, protested against allowing their social standing to have any weight in the question, but Judge Woodward decided that bail could be renewed this morning.

The arguments on this point led to a very disgraceful scene in the court room enacted while the court was still in session. Attorneys Lenahan and Garman were disputing the matter when the former, who bears the ex-district attorney considerable ill-will for having superseded him as the representative of Luzerne Democracy in national and state councils of the party, used language which astounded all present and which was the most disgraceful ever heard in Luzerne's courts. Garman replied to the deputies' defender with words similar to his own, and both were about to meet in a fist encounter in open court when mutual friends interposed.

FOSTER'S TROUBLES.

Political Contest Decided in Favor of the Richards' Wing.

The objections filed against allowing the use of the Republican column of the official ballot by the candidates named at the second convention held by the Republicans of Foster township were aired in court on Saturday. Judges Bennett and Lynch were on the bench and the decision of the court was rendered by the first named, who sustained the objections.

The objections to the Woodring-Lesser ticket, which was the first ticket filed in the commissioners' office, were made by the Richards-Boyle wing of the party. It was alleged that the delegates who named the candidates on that ticket were seceders from the regular Republican convention, and therefore their nominees were not entitled to be considered the candidates of the party.

Considerable testimony was heard by the court, the case occupying two and one-half hours. The regularity of the Richards convention was proven, and the irregularity of the second convention was also shown, as the delegates in the second withdrew and organized another, instead of remaining in the first convention and appealing from the decisions of the chair and continuing to do so until some parliamentary or party rule was violated. As the first convention did not overstep its limits, the action of the Woodring-Lesser delegates in withdrawing debarred them from all claims to regularity.

Attorneys John M. Carr and E. F. McGovern handled the case for Mr. Richards and his friends, while Lawyer G. A. Halsey looked after the interests of the Lesser people. After the irregularity of the second convention was proven, Mr. Carr called the attention of the court to the fact that there were no objections on record to the ticket named by the first convention. This was found to be correct, and the decision of the judges was immediately given in favor of the Richards ticket.

It is understood that nomination papers had previously been filed by all the candidates named by the second convention, and that three full tickets will be on the ballot.

PERSONALITIES.

Frank Wenner returned last week from Jefferson hospital, Philadelphia, where he received treatment for the past six weeks.

John J. Ferry, of Wilkes-Barre, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. Denis Ferry, Ridge street, several days last week.

Stephen Eroh has taken charge of the saloon conducted by Daniel Snyder on Front street.

Edward Goodman has returned to Freeland after spending two years in Missouri.

Attorney C. F. McHugh, of Wilkes-Barre, attended to business here last week.

Miss Kate Mulhearn is visiting relatives in Philadelphia.

Commissioners Are Guilty.

After being out twenty-two hours, the jury on Saturday brought in a verdict of guilty in nineteen of the forty counts against the old board of Schuylkill commissioners, embracing charges of misdemeanor in office. The members of the board are Frank Rantz, John P. Martin and Charles P. Alden. The jury recommended the defendants to the mercy of the court. Counsel for the defendants will move for a new trial. If this is refused sentence will be imposed, when the matter may be carried to a higher court. The costs go on the defendants. These at the lowest calculation amount to $1,000. The case has been on trial for nearly four weeks.

Firebugs Burn Public Schools.

The people of Miners' Mills were much excited on Thursday over an attempt to burn their two public school buildings. The upper district building is situated on the hill overlooking the town, and it was in this building that fire first broke out. The local fire company responded very promptly to the alarm. While they were fighting the fire another alarm was sounded, fire having been discovered in the lower district building, over a half mile distance from the other. The fire company by this time had the first fire under control, and before they hastened to the second building they made sure they had the first about subdued in the first. They then hurried to the other burning building, where they extinguished the flames before much damage was done.

The lower district school house contained the school library, which has long been the bone of contention and litigation in that borough, and for which the Miners' Mills school board expended in the neighborhood of $1,000, which sum a number of citizens think exorbitant, and consequently brought suit against the board. It is believed that this library is the prime cause of the fires.

A. O. H. Consolidation.

In Hazleton on Saturday 242 delegates, representing the A. O. H. societies of Luzerne county, assembled to perfect the consolidation of the two branches of the order. The meeting was a harmonious gathering and the delegates completed all their work except the renumbering of divisions which have the same numbers in both branches. This was laid over until the next meeting.

The following officers were chosen: County president, Gilbert V. Curry, Avoca; vice president, Lawrence Kilduff, Plains; recording secretary, James L. Corrigan, Sugar Notch; financial secretary, John Kieley, Inkerman; treasurer, John Dougher, Wilkes-Barre; chaplain, Rev. E. S. Phillips, Hazleton.

The convention was addressed by County Presidents Curry and Kilduff, Fathers Phillips and Burke, James E. Dwyer, Esq., and other prominent members of the organization.

An Upper End Opinion.

The present status of the trial of Sheriff Martin and his deputies is summed up in the following paragraphs, taken from the Wilkes-Barre Newsdealer: On the side of the prosecution comment of the street is as follows:

First—That the complexion of the jury is unfavorable, and leans wholly on the side of the defendants.

Second—That with the firm of Woodward, Darling and Wheaton engaged in the case it is in very bad form for Judge Woodward to preside on the trial.

Third—That the district attorney is not taking that active interest in the case expected from a man in his position.

Fourth—That the case is practically decided in advance of trial.

Division 19. A. O. H. is making preparations to hold a ball on the evening of March 17.

Bobby Mack's Company played to small houses here on Friday and Saturday evenings. The show was worth the admission.

George Maue, of Hazleton, has been awarded the printing of the ballots to be used in the Fourth legislative district on February 15.

The building erected for factory purposes by the borough of McAdoo was opened on Friday evening with an entertainment and ball.

Patrick F. Gallagher, of Centre street, is nursing a very sore hand, having had the cord between the thumb and index finger cut while at work.

The New York Journal on Friday contained an excellent picture of A. W. Washburn, of town, who is one of the jurymen in the deputies' trial.

W. H. Witmer, until recently one of the publishers of the White Haven Journal, has taken charge of the Ashley Bulletin and injected some new life into that paper.

The remains of John Marshman, of Wilkes-Barre, who died on Thursday of pleura pneumonia, arrived here on Saturday morning and were interred in Freeland cemetery.

Philip McCloskey, of Hazle Brook, was removed from his home to Laurytown asylum on Friday. His mind is slightly unbalanced, but his recovery is looked for.

Patrick Gilden, aged 22 years, employed as a stationery engineer at Honey Brook strippings, fell under a mine locomotive on Friday and his body was cut in two.

Patrick Cannon, of South Centre street, has been awarded the contract to carry the mails between the postoffice and the Lehigh Valley station. His proposal to do the work was the lowest.

Evan and Silas Woodring on Friday evening received word of the death of an aunt, Mrs. Reuben Thomas, which occurred in Hughesville. She was aged 78 years. Several Freeland people are attending the funeral today.

Miss Eliza M. Tosh died at Hazleton on Saturday, after years of suffering with Bright's disease. Deceased was formerly a resident of Ekeley and enjoyed a large acquaintance throughout the North Side. A brother, Thomas Tosh, died recently in Oneida.

The "Golden Browne" is the appropriate name chosen for the little overalls made by the Freeland Overall Company. Orders for these goods are pouring in from all quarters, and the enterprising managers intend to lead this season in style, quality and appearance.

In court on Saturday the following sentences were imposed: Roman Van Loven, for breaking into Jonas Lang's store in Wilkes-Barre, two years and three months in the penitentiary and $50 fine; Constable Denis Gallagher, of Wilkes-Barre, extortion, costs and three months in jail.

Slighting parties coming to town have been annoyed by crowds of young boys who pelt them with snowballs. Burgess Gallagher on Saturday arrested one of the archers while at this work and took him before Squire Buckley. The boy was discharged after receiving a reprimand from the justice.

Samuel McClure, who died in Jeddo last week, will not be sent to a medical college, as intended, but will be given a decent burial. Some years ago his father deposited $100 with the Carbon county court on the conditions that his son be given a Christian burial and that the unexpended balance be divided among his heirs.
