Lord Charles Beresford has startled England by saying that money is the open sesame to the highest society of Great Britain.

The Minnesota Agricultural School teaches our girls how to sow wheat, but how many of them know how to gew a cotton patch?

Those individuals who take pleasur Those individuals who take pleasure in statistics of the clongated kind will be pleased to know that Lord Kelvin calculates that the number of mole-cules in a cubic inch of any gas is 100,000,000,000,000,000,000. He also declares that in each of these molecules there are several atoms moving among themselves at the rate noving among themselves at the rate of seventy miles a minute. If any man ought to know all this it is Lord Kelvin. But is he quite sure of the number of these liftle molecular fel-lows to within, say, a million?

"Don't tell me more about that friend of yours.—Staukeviteh," and, sneeumb-ing to an overflow of emotions, she burst out, sobbingly: "I know you. I have your photograph, Staukevitch was my father!" "Ma-ma-marusia! Is that you?" the old man shrieked, jumping to his feet and seizing her by both hands. "Dear, little Marusia! Why, when you were a morsel of a thing I used to play with you." "I know," she rejoined, "and now that you say it I can recognize your face by the faded old portrait I have in my album. You were photographed together with my unhappy papa. Mamma left me the picture." I did not remember your name, but I heard to me that it was you, but now the identity of it is as clear as day to me." She invited him to her lodgings, where she introduced him to heral ad-lady as the best friend of her dead father. They had a long and hearty takk over the portrait and about the persons and things it brought to the old man's mind. And on the follow-ing evening, when he came to the french rostaurant for his supper, he found: "Dear Aleksey Alexseevich.—It was not yourself but an utter stranger some 220 volumes 8vo per annum." A Carious Pocket Piece. A Union Pacific engineer has a fashion of making unique pocket pieces for his friends. He runs a passenger engine west, and when oiling, previous to a run, he drops a nickel five-cent piece into the brass oilenp on the crosshead of the piston rod. His run is 300 miles. When he reaches his destination he unscrews the top of the oilenp and takes the nickel out. It has been metamorphosed into a curi-ous little button with an evenly turned rim, within which, on one side, is the countersunk head of Liberty divested of her stars, and on the other side the V and the wreath. The edge of the rown is as perfect as if it had been pounded on an anvil by an expert sil-versmith. The perfection of this is due to the erown is as perfect as if it had been pounded on an anvil by an expert sil-versmith. The perfection of this is due to the even vibration the coin has been sub-jected to. The motion of the piston is horizontal, and it ravels forty-reight inches, back and forth, with every revolution of the wheels. The interior of the oileup is round, and the edges of the nickel as it travels back and forth and the oil striking the sides of the onckel as it travels back and forth and the oil striking the sides of the onckel as it travels back and forth and the oil striking the sides of the oup, are turned over and pounded into perfect roundness. Sometime a nickel is left in the one during the out it is a nickel bullet, a perfect polished sphere. Who discovered this unique mathed of turning the edges of a nickel is not known but many en-gineers know of it.—Chicago Tribune,
