A CRAFTY LITTLE MERCHANT.

A CRAFTY LITTLE MERCHANT.

But then It Was in Philadelphia that He Worked His Scheme.

He was about the fattest roly-poly of a boy that one would see in a long day's walk. As he waddled along excitedly attempting to whistle after a York and Dauphin street car he aroused the laughter of all who happened to be in sight of him, says a Philadelphia paper. The conductor of the car finally saw him and yanked the bell to stop. The fat boy puffed up and rolled on board. "Pretty hard fur a fat feller to have to run fur a car!" he puffed, grinning good-naturedly upon the carful of passengers. Everybody grinned back at him, and two or three passengers squeezed up to give him a seat. He sat down, with his round face still læaming good-humoredly upon his fellow passengers. The latter watched him amusedly. The boy carried a small basket on his arm, and after a while, when he had recovered his breath, he took a handful of chocolate candles from this basket and walked along the aicle, giving each passenger a piece. Then he resumed the seat, and the passengers, laughing across the car to each other, began munching their candy. The fat boy walted until nearly all the candy had been eaten, whereupon he rose again and with outstretched palm went the rounds again saying, "One cent apiece, please." The passengers were simply dumbfounded, but they had all eaten their candy, and there was nothing for them to do but "cough up" their pennies. The boy collected about 10 cents, and at the next street he got off the car, whistling merrity.

MRS. PINKHAM'S ADVICE. What Mrs. Nell Hurst has to Say

Rev. George H. Gutterson, New England Secretary of the American Missionary Association addressed the Women's Missionary Society at St. Louis on the status of the Chinese in the United States.

According to the census of 1890, said Mr. Gutterson, there were 100,475 Chinese in the United States.

According to the census of 1890, said Mr. Gutterson, there were 100,475 Chinese in the United States. They are found in every State in the Union. The largest number, however, namely, 72,472, is in California, and more than one-third of this number in one city, namely, San Francisco. A constructive estimate of Chinese in certain of our larger cities gives the following results: St. Louis, 380, divided into the "Jen and Lee" families, "Freemasons" and "Highbinders;" the latter class are commonly supposed to be bound together by certain oaths, in the carrying out of which they do not stop even at murder. They, with the "Freemasons," are not ou good terms with the "Jen and Lee" factions. The last census allows 2648 as the number of Chinese in New York and Brooklyn, yet there are supposed to be at the present time nearly 10,000 in the two cities. Philadelphia reports 2000, but it is the trading headquarters for Something like 5000, who come from all parts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. There are about 809 in Boston proper, and probably 500 or 600 more who go there to trade. There are but three or four Chinese women in Philadelphia and six in Boston.

The Chinese in the United States are nearly all from the province of Canton. The reason of this is probably due to the fact that this was the first district open to European trade. The principal occupation of these people is that of laundrymen. They are also employed in importing Chinese groceries, market gardening, paperhanging and painting; they also make eigars. Very few have found their way into American families as servants. One of them in New York invented and patental a laundry stove which he manufactures in his own foundry. Five young Chinamen have been put into the Bald year $260 to the support of Christian institutions.—Springfield Republican.

Men as House-Workers.

It is an interesting development of the woman-suffrage agitation that Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, editor of the Woman's Journal, Boston, is devoting a good deal of her time and attention to finding situations for men as kitchen/maids. She says that the chief difficulty she meets in the way of getting housework for her proteges is the conservatism of woman.

In her experience there are always more young men willing to take domestic service than there are Yankee housewives willing to give them a trial. She affirms that it is as hard to convince some women that men can do housework as it is to convince some women that men can do housework as it is to convince some women that men can do housework as it is to convince some women that men can do housework as it is to convince some women that men can do housework as it is to convince some women that a woman can be a principal of a public school. But, she continues, the women who venture upon the new departure are sometimes rewarded by finding in it a perfect solution of the vexed "domestic problem." Mrs. Isabel C. Barrows, who is one of the innovators, proclaims that the young man now doing her housework is the best help she has had in thirty years. The man giving such distinguished satisfaction is a college graduate, who finds his education most useful in the kitchen.

Cover During Sleep.

The reason that it is necessary to be

college graduate, who finds his education most useful in the kitchen.

Cover During Sleep.

The reason that it is necessary to be well covered while sleeping is that when the body lies down it is the intention of nature that it should rest, and the heart especially should be relieved of its regular work temporarily.
So that organ makes ten strokes a minute less than when the body is in an upright posture. This means 600 strokes in sixty minutes. Therefore, in the eight hours that a man usually spends in taking his night's rest the heart is saved nearly 5000 strokes. As it pumps six ounces of blood with each stroke, it lifts 30,000 ounces less of blood in this night session than it would during the day, when a man is usually in an upright position. Now, the body is dependent for its warmth on the vigor of the circulation, and as the blood flows so much more slowly through the veins when one is lying down the warmth lost in the reduced circulation must be supplied by extra coverings.

A Lock of Napoleon's Hair.

A unique souvenir of the great Napoleon is kept in the family of his old nurse and attendant, being now in the possession of Prof. Bagley, of Abliene, Kan. He is a native of the island of St. Helena, and his mother was one of the intimates of the guardians of Napoleon. When the Emperor lay dying his old nurse stole to his side and clipped from his head a lock of hair. Part of the lock she gave to Mr. Bagley's mother and she gave it to her son. It is kept in a bottle and is black and gray, with a trace of brown. For forty years the bottle has been kept in a dark room, that the hair may not be injured by the light. There are about forty strands in all. The relic is held at a great value by the possessor. He has also some cloth from the coffin, a medal given by Napoleon and some other minor souvenirs from the island of St. Helena.

The only other portion of the body of minor souvenirs from the island of St. Helena.

The only other portion of the body of Napoleon known to be on this continent is a single hair that Richard Watson Gilder once owned. He kept it in his watch case. When the watch was repaired he forgot to tell the jeweler of the precious contents. When he went to get it he asked: "Did you find anything in the case?"

"Yes," replied the workman, "there was a hair in there, but it is all right now—I blew it out."

"You blew out a plece of Napoleon Bonaparte," said the editor of the Century.

These two words emphasize a necessity and indicate a remedy.

Spring—the season when the blood is most impure as a result of the winter's closer confinement, higher living, slower action of the kidneys and liver; when humors of all kinds, boils, pimples and eruptions are most liable to appear; when the weak, languid condition of the whole bodily structure demands and welcomes help.
