Special Navy Supplement.
The subject of our navy is one which is all-engrossing at the present time, and the desire for accurate and reliable information concerning our vessels has induced the Scientific American to publish a special navy supplement of forty pages with ninety illustrations. Every effort has been made to explain what the navy is. Comparisons have been drawn, not only between the various types of vessels, but also between different vessels of the same class. The descriptions are couched in untechnical language, and after a careful reading of this number any one can discuss the merits of the various vessels. The clear diagrams showing the difference between these modern fighting machines render analyses of this kind easy. It is beautifully illustrated by half-tone engravings and woodcuts showing not only the naval vessels themselves, but guns, gun turrets, conning towers, steering apparatus, etc. This number has a colored map of Cuba. Price 25 cents. Munn & Co., 361 Broadway, New York, are the publishers.

SCHOLARS WIN PRIZES.

MECHANICAL INSTITUTE PUPILS RECEIVE $240 IN CASH.

Fifth Annual Closing Exercises of the School Were Successfully Conducted on Friday Evening—Some Excellent Addresses Delivered by the Students.
The fifth annual closing exercises of the Mining and Mechanical Institute were held at the Grand opera house on Friday evening. Hon. George D. McCreary, of Philadelphia, occupied his usual position as chairman of the evening, and filled it in the same able manner as on former occasions. With him on the stage were the students of the institute who took part in the evening's program, the faculty of the school, the board of directors, the speaker of the evening—Prof. A. E. Kenney, of Philadelphia—and the most prominent supporter of the institute—Eckley B. Cox, Jr. Through the generosity of the latter the board of directors has been placed in possession of $300 annually, to be distributed entirely or in part in prizes to the scholars who shall merit the same.
The prizes for the term just closed were awarded at the conclusion of the exercises by Prof. John R. Wagner, and consisted of $240. The fortunate pupils and the amounts received were as follows:
First division, scientific class—M. N. Bergin, Bernard Boyle, Roger Dever, Frank Roberts, $25 each.
Second division, scientific class—John J. McMenamin, John Powell, Charles Mitke, $20 each.
Mining class—August Lesser, $20.
Elementary mathematics—Bernard J. Keenan, John J. Gallagher, $20 each.
Mechanical drawing—Torrence Richards, William Lesser, $10 each.
Prof. Kenney delivered the Founder's Day address. This gentleman is one whose name is widely known through his works upon scientific subjects, and he proved to be an entertaining talker. His address in the main was confined to the necessity of the young men of America educating themselves. He exhorted them to lose no time in doing this, to grasp every chance to imbibe knowledge, not alone from books but in all other ways in which learning can be obtained. He predicted that the demand for educated men and women in the near future would be greater than ever, in order that the development of the country can keep pace with its wonderful resources and capabilities as the latter from time to time come into view. Specialists are needed today in every department of labor, business and the professions, and the speaker warned those who fail to equip themselves with learning that they will surely be outdistanced in the race of life which the coming civilization will bring with it.
John J. McMenamin had been chosen to deliver the opening address of the exercises and he did it in acceptable style, deviating somewhat from the beaten path usually trod by salutatory orators. His welcome on behalf of all concerned to the audience and public was comprised in a neat speech that did not fail to have an effect. Following this with his subject proper, "Our Country's Needs," he entertained the gathering with a masterly oration on this all-important question, and his treatment of it showed that no small amount of thought and study have been expended by him in seeking the real needs of the country. The necessity of returning to the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence and strictly adhering to them, and the general development of citizenship on broad lines, such as will make men capable of guiding our country's destiny so that each will reap his proportionate share of the bounties of nature and genius, were brought out in a most convincing manner by the speaker.
The valedictory oration by Bernard Boyle was also well received. He opened with a pleasant and interesting discourse upon the "Conversion of Heat into Mechanical Energy," which subject the speaker proved himself capable of treating in a style that permitted those unacquainted with this mystery to fully understand and appreciate. Mr. Boyle then followed with the thanks of the students of the institute to the directors and faculty for the interest taken and time spent upon them, all of which he rendered in language appropriate to the occasion.
M. N. Bergin's talk on "Mineral Coal" gave to many in the audience new light on this product of our region. Its formation, from the ages prior to man's existence to its discovery by man, was traced intelligently by the speaker, and the description of the many changes it had undergone before reaching its present state was ably told.
"Radiant Matter" was well treated by Roger Dever, who, besides speaking on his subject fully, gave much information on matter of every kind—solid, liquid and gas. The destructibility of matter, or rather of the molecules which compose it, was demonstrated by the speaker calling attention to the various ways in which matter can be disposed of, then proving that not an atom had been destroyed—transformed perhaps, but still remaining as matter in some form.

Bernard J. Keenan, with "Opportunity" for his text, made a plea to all to grasp every opportunity in life that might assist in educating the brain or the hand. He commented freely upon the opportunities that lie before the young men and advised each to make good use of every chance to improve oneself ere it is too late.
"Air We Breathe" was the title of Patrick J. Dever's subject, and it is safe to conclude that after he finished many in the audience were better acquainted with this important article of life than before. The necessity of maintaining the purity of the air we breathe, thereby insuring our health against disease, was brought out in striking form, and statistics of air analyzed in various places clinched the speaker's arguments.
O. T. Richards told of the vast amount of knowledge which can be obtained by "Asking Questions." People who see something and do not understand it were advised to ask questions from those who know. Every man's store of learning can be increased in this manner.
Condy Johnson gave a brief but very interesting review of "One of America's Greatest Statesmen (Henry Clay)." The life and work of this noble man furnished the speaker with a theme that was well discussed upon in the short space of time allotted him. Clay's grand stability of character was offered by Mr. Johnson as a model for all others who would rise to prominence in the affairs of state and still retain the respect of the populace.
The opera house was well filled with a select audience. During the evening several appropriate selections were rendered by St. Patrick's band.
The board of directors of the institute consists of the following: President, A. C. Leisenring; vice president, Owen Fowler; treasurer, John Rowland; secretary, William B. Fry; H. E. Sweeney, E. A. Oberender, Walter Leisenring, Harry B. Price, John R. Wagner and John B. Cunningham.
The faculty includes John R. Wagner, principal, and Richard P. Kelley, William J. Schmidt, Harry B. McClellan and H. W. Palmer, instructors.
The term of 1898-99 will open early in September.

New Arrangements on the Valley.

The practice of economy goes steadily onward along the Lehigh Valley Railroad. A number of men who have been drawing good salaries for comparatively easy duty have had their salaries cut to a figure that the company believes fits the duties, while others who have been bent down with burden for years have had them lightened by a very substantial increase. The latest innovation consists of a change in the hours and duties of train dispatchers and operators at Delano. Instead of ten hours a day as has been the practice for years they will work eight hours. Three dispatchers will direct train movements, one for each third of the twenty-four hours, while each will be aided by a copier, a telegraph operator who assists the dispatcher. Heretofore five or six men handled this work by day and a lesser number by night.
To enable one man to attend to all this work at once, all offices on the entire division have been connected with one wire. In this way Delano may communicate with Mt. Carmel, Mauch Chunk, Freeland, Tomhicken or New Boston Junction with the same instrument. It is expected that the new arrangement will go into effect within a few days.

LEISENRING'S BETRAYAL.

How the Ex-Congressman Was Buncoed by Delegates Elected to Support Him.

A staff correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, writing from Harrisburg on the eve of the Republican state convention, tells as follows how the alleged friends of ex-Congressman Leisenring threw over their candidate for governor: "Tonight both Connell and Leisenring are out, this action having been taken to help W. A. Stone. Mr. Connell is here and acted for himself, but the case of Mr. Leisenring, he being absent in Colorado, appears to be an exhibition of bad faith on the part of his alleged friends, who are for the machine candidate. The facts are most significant and illustrates how some of the things are done."
"A meeting of the Leisenring delegates was held this evening. The Leisenring strength was twenty-one votes. Mr. Leisenring had agreed that his name would be presented to the convention, but the Hon. 'Farmer' Kulp, who claimed to be a Leisenring delegate, although he was on the W. A. Stone steering committee, came to the meeting. He opened with a lengthy speech, in which he said that Leisenring had no earthly show and that as W. A. Stone was to be nominated he would not vote for Leisenring.
"F. W. Wheaton, of Wilkesbarre, stated that he was elected in opposition to Leisenring, and was not in favor of having Leisenring's name presented, and that he was in favor of W. A. Stone on the ground that it was practical politics and Luzerne could get no share of the small offices unless the delegates stood by the machine.
"Mr. Harris, of Hazleton, stated that he had to be for W. A. Stone because a friend of his was a candidate for the Hazleton postoffice, and they had to stand with Quay. However, he voted for presenting the name. C. C. Bowman, of Pittston, also opposed the presenting of Leisenring's name, because Luzerne would lose its share of patronage.
"Mr. Davis, of Carbon, and Mr. Halsey, of White Haven, stood by Leisenring to the end, and Mr. Halsey stated he would not vote for W. A. Stone. The truth of the matter is that every personal friend of Leisenring, the men whom he relied on, came to Harrisburg with a determination to throw him over and they succeeded. To 'Farmer' Kulp, more than anyone else, is due the betrayal of Leisenring."

DRIFTON ITEMS.

A cooking school is the latest novelty in town. Mrs. E. B. Cox has employed an expert cook from New York city to teach the maids of Drifton. Much interest is manifested in the lessons, which are given in the Odd Fellows' building.
Louis Orner, of Lehigh university, is spending a few days here with friends.
Edward Gallagher and Miss Nellie O'Donnell, a well-known young couple of town, will be married at St. Ann's church on the 23d inst.
Edward O'Donnell has been promoted to assistant postmaster, succeeding W. G. Toney, resigned.
George Barager, of Lehigh university, renewed acquaintances here on Friday.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Mauch Chunk News says: "If there is a better all around amateur ball player in the country than 'Barney' McFadden, his admirers in this section would like to see him. 'Barney' can play any of the nine positions as they should be played."
The first game at Drifton yesterday was played between the Fernouts and Hazleton Athletics. The visitors forged ahead from the start, and won out easily by the score of 11 to 5.
Lehighton club has disbanded owing to the poor support given it by the town.

Death of Patrick Boyle.

Patrick Boyle died at his home on Ridge street on Saturday afternoon. Death was due to old age. The deceased was the husband of the late Bridget Boyle, who died here on May 11. He was a genial old man, and enjoyed the respect of a large number of people. One daughter, Mrs. Edward P. Gallagher, survives him. Mr. Boyle was aged 76 years. The funeral will take place this afternoon. Interment will be made in St. Ann's cemetery.

Another Freak.

"That young man of yours," said the observing parent, as his daughter came down to breakfast, "should apply for a job in a time museum."
"Why, father," exclaimed the young lady in tones of indignation, "what do you mean?"
"I noticed when I passed through the hall late last night," answered the old man, "that he had two heads upon his shoulders."

A Boxful of Orders.

It is stated that the King of Siam, who recently visited Europe, has had to have a special box made to hold all the insignia of the distinguished orders conferred on him by brother monarchs.

MINE WORKERS TAKE ACTION.

The movement begun recently to boom anthracite was discussed at a meeting of the Mine Workers Union at Hazleton on Saturday, and District No. 7 passed the following resolutions:

"Whereas, It being apparent that distress has for some time and does still exist in the entire anthracite coal region, owing to the dullness in the anthracite coal trade, and
"Whereas, In consequence many of the people in our midst are sorely in need of the necessities of life, be it therefore
"Resolved, That we appeal to our congressmen to have an appropriation made by congress that will relieve the people in need and to ask our government to use anthracite coal wherever it may be practicable to do so; and be it further
"Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent throughout the entire anthracite region for signatures by the business men and the public at large."

Actors Were Warmly Received.

A quartette of young men, claiming weatherly as their home, attempted to give a free show at the Cottage hall on Saturday evening. They said the performance was intended to draw a crowd to whom the wonders of Kickapoo Indian medicine could be related, but the show became so "yellow" that the actors had to ring down the curtain and escape via the secret exits before the program was concluded. It was, without doubt, the most horrible burlesque on variety acting ever inflicted on Freeland, and if an admission had been charged the stage-struck young men would have fared badly at the hands of the audience. As it was, every movable article in the hall was going stageward when some considerate person extinguished the lights and dismissed the "actors" to disappear.

Republican State Candidates.

The following ticket was selected by Matt Quay last week for the Republicans of Pennsylvania, and the convention on Thursday nominated it:
Governor—William A. Stone, of Allegheny.
Lieutenant governor—J. P. S. Gobin, of Lebanon.
Secretary of internal affairs—James W. Latta, of Philadelphia.
Judge of the superior court—William W. Porter, of Philadelphia.
Congressmen-at-large—Galusha A. Grow, of Susquehanna; Samuel A. Davenport, of Erie.

A Suicide's Preparations.

Berlin S. Kunkle, of Kresgeville, Monroe county, committed suicide in a peculiar manner. He shot himself in the mill race at that place. Kunkle first took a coil of rope and fastened one end to a staple on the bank, then tied the other end around his waist. In his belt was a revolver, to which was tied a string. He had written a note which read: "You will find my body at the head of the mill race. A suit of clothes is in my valise to bury me in when the undertaker has me in presentable shape." The letter further said he wanted no tombstone and provided for every detail of his burial, even to the giving of $2 to each of the grave diggers. Kunkle was twice married, his first wife, who came from near Pittston, having also shot herself to death.

Hanged Till He Stopped Kicking.

A case of youthful depravity has recently come to public notice at Turners Falls, Mass. It appears that several boys from "Tough end," who had heard the particulars of the execution of O'Neil, concluded to try one of their number for the crime of murder. An empty freight car was used as a court room, and the trial proceeded with judge, jury, and full complement of officers.
After the trial, in which the accused was found guilty, the sentence of death was pronounced upon the accused, and preparations taken to carry out the decree of the court. The death watch was set and a gallows improvised in the car. When the time drew near for the execution the condemned boy was mounted upon a box and the noose adjusted. The box was knocked out from under his feet, and the victim was told that when he stopped kicking he would be cut down. He was soon unable to kick, and the breaking of the rope probably saved the boy's life. Some little time was required to bring the boy around.
The ages of the boys are given as from 10 to 15, and the victim's age was about 12. The matter has been kept very quiet, and it was only by accident that the affair became known.

300 Miles Between Drinks.

There is not a saloon between Florence, Ala., and Paducah, Ky., on the banks of the Tennessee River. The distance is more than 300 miles, and is said to be the longest of its kind on any navigable river in America.
Ladies, don't fail to see those fancy 25c skirts at A. Oswald's. He sells lots of them and they are dandies.
