

An Ancient Custom.
From Republican Traveler, Arkansas City, Kan.

Pilgrimages to some shrine of St. Vitus' dance are no longer made. The modern way of treating this affliction is within reach of every household, as is shown by the experience of Karl A. Wagner, the eleven-year-old son of George Wagner, of 513 1/2 St. Arkansas City, Kan. The father tells the story as follows:

"Over a year ago," he says, "Karl was taken with St. Vitus' dance and continued to grow worse during the months he was under a physician's care. His tongue became paralyzed and we could not understand a word he said. He became very thin, lost the use of his right leg and seemed doomed to become a hopeless invalid. We had about given up hope when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were recommended to me by a lady whose daughter had been cured of a similar affliction by the pills.

"I bought a box of them at once and soon noticed a change for the better in Karl's condition. I pleased that I bought a box of them and when he had taken five boxes the disease disappeared.

"That was six months ago and there has been no return of the disease. The cure was effectual and permanent, and I feel satisfied that no other medicine could have effected so marvelous a result. We feel rejoiced over the restoration of our son, and cannot help but feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the most remarkable medicine on the market."

No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to mankind as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, invigorating the body, regulating the functions, they restore the strength and health in the exhausted patient when every effort of the physician proves unavailing.

These pills are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Prayers for Columbus.
Prof. Park of Andover figures rather amusingly in the reminiscences of the late Prof. Schaff, just published. In 1842 Schaff, being a privat-docent at Berlin, introduced Park to his German friends, among the rest to Kahnis. He relates that, under the continuous pecking of Park's questions, Kahnis finally exclaimed in despair: "God forgive Christopher Columbus for discovering America!"

Encouraging.—Myrtle—Oh, dear! I wish I could think of some new way to say no. I've had to refuse so many men lately that I am positively becoming weary of the old way of declining. Alice—I wouldn't worry about that, dear. The fellows probably enjoy the joke just as much as if you said something original each time.—Chicago News.

Crete's Woeful Condition.
Crete has lost through political disturbances of recent years olive trees to the value of $10,000,000. It will take forty years to restore the orchards to full-bearing condition, and in the meantime 200,000 Mohammedans and 300,000 Christians will have to starve.

For the Finger-Nails.
Even manuring has its fashions, its phases and its reactions. Highly manicured finger-nails are not at all in favor just now. It was all very well when the fad was comparatively new to go to extremes about pinking and polishing your finger-tips, but now that it has had time to season, moderation is to be observed. Nails so blushing and apparently so well polished that you can see your face in them are no longer good form. Hand mirrors at the chateaux are preferred. The thorough-bred digger is all that is dainty, but it never attracts attention through artificial means. But little coloring is used, the polish amounts to hardly more than nature's gloss, and the pointed cut has given way almost wholly to the less obtrusive crescent. There are also variations in the technique of manuring. Where the file with the sand-paper board as finish was formerly used for paring the nail, the sand-paper board is now used exclusively. Everything tends to make the manuring process less of a surgical operation. The cuticle knife is rarely used nowadays, the slender orange-shaped orange-stick accomplishing the same purpose with less of force and friction. Cuticle scissors are dispensed

Test of Colors.

If you want to test which is the best summer color, black or white, put both hands in the sun, one covered by a white, the other by a black chiffon net, and note the result.

A Novelty in Dress Trimmings.

A novelty in dress trimmings is a fine fawn-colored batiste embroidered all over in a minute design of chenille. This is used for cuffs, collars and revers on silk waists. Oriental embroidered insertions, set in between groups of tucks, form another mode of trimming. Waists of plain silk in medium and light colors are striped up and down diagonally across the sleeves with velvet ribbon of a darker shade.

Ingenious Imitation Feathers.

The demand for feathers for millinery purposes has developed the skill of New York artists to such an extent that they are able to imitate many expensive and rare kinds of plumage with the cheapest and commonest kinds of feathers. The tools employed are known as curling scissors, alkali, leather workers' paste and various dyes. The most ingenious application of these counterfeits is the making of an artificial bird upon a frame which was life-like in its naturalness and yet which was manufactured of feathers taken from ordinary barnyard fowl.

The New Gazettes.

A frock of one of the new gazettes is a peculiar shade of blue—something between harel and indigo. It is strewn with blurred red and yellow blossoms, the red and yellow melting into the blue, of course, and not spoiling the general tone. The skirt is made over two underskirts, one of white mousseline and one of blue taffeta, and is finished at the bottom with a deep flounce of black Chantilly. Lines of black lace are laid over the material at intervals of five inches apart all the way around the skirt, running from waist to hem. The bodice has the same lines of lace, but here there are insertions, showing the white mousseline beneath. A deep collar of rich cream white lace is edged with long points, which also form epaulets. The pattern of the lace is set off by a light tracery of gold thread. A simple stock, covered with the cream lace, deep frills of cream lace at the wrists and a ceinture of blue taffeta fastening in the back, with a big flat rosette of light blue velvet and a buckle of steel and diamonds complete this odd and pretty costume.

Ladies and the Paris Exposition.

The ladies of the country are demanding a share in the honors and responsibilities at the Paris Exposition. They want a separate organization and $150,000 of the $750,000 that is to be appropriated for the representation of our government. They want their own commissioner-general and staff, and object to being mixed up with the men folk. They have a committee in Washington composed mostly of New York women led by Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, of that city, and command a good deal of social and political influence. They have seen the President, the Secretary of State, Judge Day, and members of the appropriation committees of both Houses. But thus far they do not seem to have made much of an impression. The President inclines to an arrangement by which there shall be a woman's board under the commissioner-general, but thinks that two organizations would result in friction and confusion. The Appropriation Committee is of a similar mind. They are perfectly willing to authorize the commissioner-general to appoint a woman assistant, but they do not see any practical use in having two separate and independent organizations. The ladies, however, will insist upon offering an amendment in the Senate if the Appropriation Committee refuses to comply with their wishes.—William E. Curtis, in Chicago Record.

Even manuring has its fashions, its phases and its reactions. Highly manicured finger-nails are not at all in favor just now. It was all very well when the fad was comparatively new to go to extremes about pinking and polishing your finger-tips, but now that it has had time to season, moderation is to be observed. Nails so blushing and apparently so well polished that you can see your face in them are no longer good form. Hand mirrors at the chateaux are preferred. The thorough-bred digger is all that is dainty, but it never attracts attention through artificial means. But little coloring is used, the polish amounts to hardly more than nature's gloss, and the pointed cut has given way almost wholly to the less obtrusive crescent. There are also variations in the technique of manuring. Where the file with the sand-paper board as finish was formerly used for paring the nail, the sand-paper board is now used exclusively. Everything tends to make the manuring process less of a surgical operation. The cuticle knife is rarely used nowadays, the slender orange-shaped orange-stick accomplishing the same purpose with less of force and friction. Cuticle scissors are dispensed with almost altogether, save in the case of some very refractory "step-mother." That good old standby, the pounce, is in danger of banishment. For insuring the just-right degree of nail polish, many manicures declare that there is nothing, after all, so efficacious as a good rubbing from the fleshy part of the palm.—Harper's Bazar.

The Out-Door Woman.

The subject of bicycle touring is one which has been widely discussed, and in regard to which a great deal of advice has been given. Lists of the necessary articles to be taken as baggage upon the wheel have been made out and a multitude of directions have been laid down governing the proper equipment in general. Nothing that the tourist could possibly need has been omitted, but—and here lies the mistake—a vast amount of things which she could dispense with have been included in the outfit. From this cause largely has come the dissatisfaction which has been expressed regarding bicycle tours. Too many of them have been undertaken by persons so overburdened with alleged "conveniences" that their trip has resembled that of a freight-laden caravan. The secret of a pleasurable tour lies, in a great measure, in the lightest possible equipment. The tourist on a wheel cannot expect all the traveling luxuries to be found in a drawing-room car, and the more strictly she limits her list the more comfort she will have.

A plan which has been followed with much success by a man and his wife who live in the suburbs might well be followed by tourists in general. They carry with them as baggage little else besides a few toilet articles. These are packed into a strong bag of brown linen, made with pockets for the brushes, combs, soap, etc. This bag is put into the flat luggage-carrier, of moderate size, which fits into the diamond frame of the man's wheel. The repair outfit for the two wheels also find plenty of room in this luggage-carrier, so that they need not be strapped elsewhere, and a drinking cup is another necessary article. No attempt is made to carry any extra clothes; but arrangements are made to have these sent on by express to the hotels or houses at which the tourists are to stop on their journey. This plan requires that the route shall be carefully planned before the start is made, and that the cyclists shall adhere faithfully to their programme. Arrived at each night's stopping place they find a bag of fresh clothes awaiting them, and having taken these out they repack the valise with the things they have been wearing and have it expressed home again. If they are to make a stop of unusual length anywhere they order a trunk instead of a bag, to be at the place at the proper time.

Fashion Notes.
Silk shirt waists are completed with a stock and long tie of the same silk.

Neckties of white chiffon trimmed across the ends with gathered narrow white satin ribbon are the latest fad.

Flower gardens on the head in the shape of hats will be prominent this summer. They will be made of old garden posies and no ribbons will be used.

A novelty in long watch chains is made of black sewing silk, with either gold, coral, turquoise or some other variety of fancy bead at short intervals the entire length.

Veils are worn in dots and large blocks, and are the proper accompaniment of every big hat. They come down below the chin and knot comfortably at the back.

Never were finer woven or more daintily fascinating designs and lovely color blendings produced than are shown in the organdies brought to view for the summer of '98.

Purple in one or other of its many tints and tones, including plum, violet, orchid, heliotrope, petunias, iris, lilac and wistaria, is everywhere in evidence in the exhibit of dress fabrics, ribbons and millinery.

The riding habits are excessively simple, the skirt narrow and only long enough to cover the feet, with a tight-fitting, single-breasted coat of three-quarters length. These are made up in dark cloth and light-weight cloths, devoid of ornamentation, their beauty depending entirely on their cut and fit.

The big dotted veil is a thing of the past. It is not even carried in stock at really swell places. The complexion veil has ousted it. This is very properly named, but it might be even better to call it the complexion beautifier. It is astonishing how a piece of plain black net of crisscross or diamond design can enhance a plain woman's looks.

For golfing costumes the circular skirt of double-faced material is much used, and the simple golf cape is considered better style than the fanciful shawl cape. A new golf dress is made of smooth brown cloth, finished with rows of stitching. The jacket is quite short and is worn with a scarlet waistcoat, which opens in a square at the neck over a stiff shirt and a mannish tie. Of course, there is a brown cape with a tartan lining.

The Late Dr. Evans's Jewels.
Dr. Evans, the famous dentist who died a few months ago in Paris, had mentioned in his will a number of jewels which he wished to bequeath to certain heirs. A casual examination through the doctor's effects did not reveal their presence, and it was supposed that they had been disposed of some time prior to his death. The other day, however, they came to light. The lawyers of the estate were making a careful inventory of the contents of the dentist's late residence in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, when, upon opening an old document safe, they came upon a secret drawer quite unexpectedly. In the drawer was an enormous collection of precious stones, including two magnificent sets of diamonds, besides a quantity of remarkably large and pure unset diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other precious stones, together with a profusion of jewels. The diamonds were, it is said, presented to him by Napoleon III, the Emperor Frederick, the Empress Frederick and other crowned heads. The value of the treasure has been placed at $50,000.

"Your manner and demeanor are altogether charming. I swear it."
"Am I not what you would term an interesting conversationalist—one who talks well but not too long on any topic and sparkles in a crowd as well woman as in a tete-a-tete?"
"Fatally so for me, I fear, dear heart!"

"And taken all in all, tell me, and tell me with truth, am I not a pleasant enough companion for anyone?"
"Indeed you are!" he cried with fervor.
"Thank you!" she gratefully murmured; "I just wanted to reassure myself. That brown woman next door is trying to get my cook."—New York Journal.

Russian Gold Production.
Russia holds the third place among gold-producing countries. Gold is only found in large quantities in the Ural mountains and east and west Siberia; the very limited output of washed gold in Finland is not of any importance. It is only natural that the Russian government should do all in its power to advance the gold-mining industry. Its plan is to train up a staff of mining engineers, and to let these experts visit North America, south Africa and Australia. It is also proposed to attempt a second extraction of gold from some of the vast quantities of residue, etc., in the various mining districts.—Philadelphia Record.

SINGULAR STATEMENT.

From Mrs. Rank to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. RANK, No. 2,354 East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says:

"I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me, I knew not what, but kept getting worse. I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone.

"Indeed, I thought I would lose my mind. No one knows what I endured. I continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine.'"

Mrs. Pinkham invites all suffering women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. All such letters are seen and answered by women only.

INSOMNIA
