Government's Old Gold Business.

Hard times can be pretty well estimated by the amount of gold jewelry, old plate and trinkets, says Director of the Mint Preston, presented to the government mints. During the period of extreme depression the amount of metals purchased by the government reached high figures, but in the past year it has dwindled considerably. At the approach of the holiday season the jewelry sent to the mints to be sold increases in large proportion compared to the quantity sold in the dull season. Soon after New Year there is usually a heavy installment at the assay offices and mints.

Within the past week a pair of gold bracelets, which cost $50, were sent to the mint bureau here to be sold for the gold in them. Their owner said he could not keep them, as he required the money, and asked Director Preston to dispose of them at whatever value they might bring. The bracelets, on being melted down, were shown to contain $17 worth of pure metal.

From 1873 down to last year the amount of money paid out by the government for old gold, plate and jewelry has steadily increased. The high-water mark was reached in 1891, when the government paid out for plate and jewelry $4,035,710. The Philadelphia mint melts nine-tenths of the plate and jewelry presented to the government. Payment is generally made in gold when the jewelry is of that metal.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

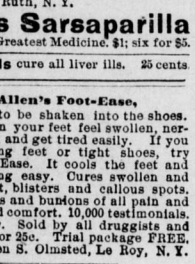
"I DO MY OWN WORK."

So Says Mrs. Mary Rochiette of Linden, New Jersey, in this Letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

"I was bothered with a flow which would be quite annoying at times, and at others would almost stop.

"I used prescriptions given me by my physician, but the same state of affairs continued.



"After a time I was taken with a flooding, that I was obliged to keep my bed. Finally, in despair, I gave up my doctor, and began taking your medicine, and have certainly been greatly benefited by its use

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has indeed been a friend to me.

"I am now able to do my own work, thanks to your wonderful medicine. I was as near death I believe as I could be, so weak that my pulse scarcely beat and my heart had almost given out. I could not have stood it one week more, I am sure. I never thought I would be so grateful to any medicine.

"I shall use my influence with any one suffering as I did, to have them use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Every woman that is puzzled about her condition should secure the sympathetic advice of a woman who understands. Write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her your ills.

Lazy Liver

"I have been troubled a great deal with a torpid liver, which produces constipation. I found CASCARETS to be all you claim for them, and secured such relief the first trial, that I purchased another supply and was completely cured. I shall only be too glad to recommend Cascarets whenever the opportunity is presented." J. A. SMITH, 2920 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

To Clean Tapestry and Cretonne.

Clean tapestry with warm bran, rubbing it on with a piece of new flannel. Clean cretonne with warm flour, using a piece of new flannel on the hand. When clean, brush off the flour with a cloth brush. Another method is to apply a thick paste of fuller's earth and water. Let it lie for five minutes and then brush off.

Apropos of Greasy Soups.

Strange as it may seem, observes Table Talk, women who claim to be good cooks still serve greasy soups, abominations to eye, palate and stomach. A remedy for this is the "soup digester," a kettle with a faucet near the bottom by which the clear liquid may be drawn off without the fat. Without the convenience of this utensil, grandmother's "good old way" is always available—to let the soup stand over night, when the grease can be easily removed in a solid cake. Moral: Greasy soups are without excuse and in evidence of carelessness or ignorance!

How to Clean Glass.

For the annual work of the spring cleaning there is nothing more important to have properly done than the washing and polishing of the windows. While bright weather is regarded as necessary in most branches of home cleaning, a dull, cloudy day should be selected for the windows, as experienced housekeepers say the cleaning cannot be satisfactorily done when the sun is shining on the glass.

When ready to begin, the windows should be well wiped with a soft, dry cloth to free them from dust and smoke, then quickly washed with warm water to which a little powdered borax is added, and dried. To polish the glass: After cleaning, a small muslin bag should be filled with whiting, to which a little borax is added, and the windows freely dusted with it, then rubbed off, and polished with old newspapers. Windows thus treated will be clean and bright, and will keep clean a long time.—Eliza R. Parker.

New House Things.

Japanese screens were never so popular. The black ones embroidered in gold are most appropriate for the dining room or library, while for the parlor very handsome ones of white satin embroidered in colored silk are shown, the frame of a simple black and gold brocade. Simpler ones with frames made of a thin band of plain wood hinged ready for use come at very reasonable prices. These can be enameled or stained at home, and then mounted with panels of Roman satin, burlap, denim or embroidered linen.

Milady's dressing table, with its innumerable solid silver furnishings and trinkets, is the chief ornament in her room these days. The old-fashioned mahogany tables of our great-grandmother's day, with the addition of severely plain brass handles and key plates are the most desirable. Failing this, muslin and dimity toilet tables are always dainty and sweet and can be made by a girl herself. Besides, they can be freshened by laundering.

The small ornamental windows with broad sill between two rooms lend themselves well to decorative effects. A sash curtain is indispensable. Striped madras in flower effects or delicate yellow India silk are pretty effects for these. A silk scarf draped gracefully over a gilt rod is uncommon and effective. A jardiniere with small plant put on the sill is good. A figure in plaster, brass candlestick or a Moorish lamp are other suggestions that look well. Another artistic addition to these small places is to hang over the top of them a small plaque, together with a half dozen peacock feathers loosely and carelessly grouped.

Recipes.

Beef Omelet.—Four pounds of raw beef, chopped fine; six well-beaten eggs, five or six soda crackers, rolled fine; a little butter and suet, pepper, salt and sage; make into two loaves, roll in cracker crumbs and bake about an hour; slice when cold.

Sweet Breakfast Muffins.—Sift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with one quart of flour; add one cup of sugar; rub into the flour a piece of butter the size of an egg, then stir in one pint of milk. Beat to a smooth batter, and bake in gem pans.

Bacon Fraze.—Beat four eggs into a batter with one-half teacupful cream and teaspoonful flour; fry some thin slices of bacon and dip them in it; lay the bacon in a frying pan with heated lard, pour the batter over it, and when both sides are well browned lay on a heated dish and serve hot. A good breakfast relish.

Potato Soup.—Boil three potatoes in salted water until tender. Scald one pint of milk, with one tablespoonful chopped onion. Drain and mash the potatoes, add the hot milk and rub through a sieve. Melt half a tablespoonful of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper. Pour into the hot soup and cook ten minutes.

Baked Cauliflower.—Boil uncovered until tender, but not until it breaks; split down the middle with a sharp knife; lay the cut sides down in baking dish and pour over and around it a large cupful of drawn butter. Sift fine bread crumbs on top and set in the oven until it begins to brown. Serve in the baking dish, with vinegar or cut lemon.

Cornmeal Puffs.—Heat one quart of milk in double boiler; stir in eight tablespoons Indian meal, four tablespoons granulated sugar, a teaspoon grated nutmeg. Heat and stir until thickened and smooth. When cool, stir into it six beaten eggs whipped light, pour into buttered cups, bake half an hour in moderate oven, serve hot with lemon sauce.

AGRICULTURAL TOPICS.

Paint to Repel Borers.

All kinds of insects are attracted to the plants which are appropriate for their food, or where their eggs should be laid, by the sense of smell. Any strongly smelling coating over trees which will disguise its natural odor will protect them from attack. White paint has such a distinct odor, and is so permanent that it is perhaps the best coating to apply to tree trunks. But a still cheaper substitute may be found in common whitewash, into which some carbolic acid diluted has been mixed. This also holds the peculiar smell of carbolic acid all through the season.

Eradicating Currant Worms.

The currant worm is a slow traveler, and seldom leaves the clump of bushes where it was born and bred, even when it gets into the moth stage. Where they are once eradicated on a farm some years of exemption may be hoped for, even when the pest is plentiful a few miles away. Still, the use of hellebore every spring, just as soon as the currant leaves appear, and renewing it after every rain, is advisable. It is far better to head off the intruder before the damage is done, than to wait until currant bushes are stripped bare. In the latter case probably some of the worms have gone into the pupa stage before the poison is applied, and will be on hand another spring.

Growing Stocky Tomato Plants.

Whether few or many tomatoes are to be planted, we believe the cheapest and best way for all who do not own a hothouse is to buy the plants from a seedman rather than grow the supply for themselves. Even if a thousand are needed, the seedsman can furnish them for less than this number can be grown by some one who builds a hotbed to provide this number. In the hotbed the plants are sure to be crowded, and unless they are transplanted two or three times they will grow up tall and slim, with few roots. The seedsman who grows plants by the million can afford to transplant at least once, and do this under such conditions that the second planting will make hardly any check to growth when the plants are set out on the open ground.—Boston Cultivator.

Manuring Bean Ground.

It is a common mistake to suppose that beans do best on poor land and do not need any manure. Old farmers often say, "the land was too rich," and therefore the beans ran all to vines without producing much grain." But this is the best indication that the land was not rich enough. Beans require phosphate of lime and potash. Many black, mucky soils are supposed from their color to be very rich. But such soils often have a great lack of lime and potash. In fact, an excess of loam means that at some time it has been covered with water, and its mineral fertility has mostly been washed out. Or it may be that the soil is even now wet, and the bean crop is very impatient of too much moisture, which causes many rusts both of the leaves, pods and beans.

Weeds Indicating Soil.

Much about the character of soil may be told by experienced farmers if they can see the kinds of weeds that grow upon it. There are many weeds that are never found on very poor soil, and others that will perhaps grow but will not amount to much unless the soil is very rich. The pigweed and purslane, which is often called chickweed, is very abundant in old gardens, and always shows the presence of a large amount of available nitrogen. So rich are these weeds in nitrogenous nutrition that they are often pulled up and fed to pigs, which will eat them in preference to grass, as they are more nutritious. The common ragweed grows in all kinds of soils. But if the land is poor, it will blossom and seed at a few inches from the ground, while in rich soil it grows a foot and a half to two feet high. The mullein in pastures usually marks the running out of grass, and probably that the land is poor.

Controlling Rot of Plum and Cherry.

Professor N. S. Platt, of Connecticut, writes: There is great complaint each year about cherries and plums rotting on the tree. There is no doubt good cause for the complaint, as sometimes nearly all the crop is spoiled by it. Few people seem to know how to save them. I have had great loss with cherries rotting, yet I do not fear the rot nearly so much as I do the black aphis that I have found unmanageable and the cause of the death of more cherry trees than all other causes put together. My treatment for cherries is to spray with sulphate of copper, one pound to twenty-five gallons of water, once just before the buds open and once with bordeaux when the cherries are one-third or one-half grown, then pick the cherries a day or two before they are fully ripe. If the weather is not persistently bad this will be successful, at least it has been with me for several years.

As to plums, I have never sprayed the Japanese varieties except in a small way as a test, but have depended on picking off the decayed fruit by hand. They might be sprayed with bordeaux or sulphate of copper mixture while dormant, which would kill spores of rot then existing on the bark, but I have found the foliage of the Japanese varieties uniformly too sensitive to admit of spraying with bordeaux while in leaf. The European varieties, however, seem to like the bordeaux. They should be sprayed at least twice with it, the first time when the new growth is three to five inches long and the second when the fruit is half grown. Applied at this time it will not show when fruit is ripe.

A Chinaman eats twice as much meat as a Japanese.

A BALLADE OF LOVE AND THE TIDES.

Over the sea my sweetheart sails,
Swept hither and yon by the varied gales
Over the sea my sweetheart rides,
Trusting her all to the changeful tides
Oh, danger and death be blind to her!
Oh, waters and winds, be kind to her!
Bring all good things destined to her
As over the sea she sails.

Over life's sea my sweetheart rides,
And ever my spirit with her abides.
Over life's sea my sweetheart sails,
And never my prayer for her safety fails.
May sorrow and shame be blind to her!
May all good things be kind to her!
And gladness be ever destined to her,
As over life's sea she rides.

Over the seas my sweetheart sails,
And God's love tempers the varied gales.
Over the sea my sweetheart rides,
God's finger restrains the changeful tides.
Since the heavenly love is not blind to her
Must all good things be kind to her,
And gladness be ever destined to her,
As over the seas she sails.

The Ideal Paste.

Those who keep scrap-books and wish to preserve their peace of mind from the spoiling of their flour paste should add a small quantity of salt and a half teaspoonful of crude oil of cloves or sassafras to the flour and water while boiling. A very handsome but expensive adhesives is the fresh white of an egg. Most mucilages turn dark in time and discolor the thickest paper.

Development of the Transvaal.

In 1892 the main trunk line from Cape Town was pushed forward from its then northern terminus to Johannesburg. The distance from Cape Town to Johannesburg by rail is 1,013 miles. In 1894 the road was completed from Delagoa Bay, a port in Portuguese territory on the southeast coast of Africa, to Johannesburg—a distance of 377 miles. The third road reached Johannesburg a year later, from Durban, a port in the British colony of Natal, distant 483 miles.

From 23,000 ounces of gold in 1887, the annual output has risen to 3,000,000 ounces in 1897, giving the Transvaal the second place in the world's gold production. There is no doubt that the present output of the country will rapidly increase; and probably within a few years, notwithstanding the increased output of other countries, the Transvaal will rank first as a gold producer.

The town of Johannesburg may be taken as a good index of the wonderful expansion of the gold-mining industry of the district. From a few huts in 1886, it has developed into a town unexcelled, if indeed equaled, in the imposing character of its buildings by any of the enterprising mining towns in Western America. Indeed, Johannesburg has but little of the aspect of an American mining camp. In its general appearance it reminds an American more of Spokane or Salt Lake City.—John Hays Hammond, in the Engineering Magazine.

Tea at $143 per Pound.

One hundred and forty-three dollars a pound is what Ceylon tea of a certain kind brought at auction in London some time ago. This is stated, says the Buffalo Courier, on the authority of J. H. Grairo, of the Ceylon Importing Company, who says planters of Ceylon were as much surprised as you or I or the next person at such fabulous price. Owing to certain peculiarities a pound of that tea probably represents, approximately, one hundred and forty-three dollars' worth of labor; but the figure it fetched is so extraordinary as to give the tea or the sale absolutely no commercial value whatever. This is particularly so because this tea has no appreciably finer flavor. It is named "the golden tips." The leaves, when only twenty-four hours old, are picked from the top only of tea bushes. They are very small, not half as big as your finger nail, and extra expert pickers are required to gather them. It can be imagined that three hundred or four hundred people on the plantation must pick over several acres of bushes to get enough green one-day-old tea leaves to make a pound of tea when dried. Ordinary tea is from leaves which are ten days old, and consequently very much larger.

Women in Business.

From the Free Press, Detroit, Mich.

A prominent business man recently expressed the opinion that there is one thing that will prevent women from completely filling man's place in the business world—they can't be depended upon because they are sick too often. This is refuted by Mrs. C. W. Mansfield, a business woman of 58 Farrar St., Detroit, Mich., who says:

"A complication of female ailments kept me awake nights and wore me out. I could get no relief from medicine and hope was slipping away from me. A young lady in my employ gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I took them and was able to rest at night for the first time in months. I bought more and took them and they cured me as they also cured several other people to my knowledge. I think that if you should ask any of the druggists of Detroit, who are the best buyers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills they would say the young women. These pills certainly build up the nervous system and many a young woman owes her life to them.

"As a business woman I am pleased to recommend them as they did more for me than any physician and I can give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People credit for my general good health to-day."

Suddenly Prostrated.

No discovery of modern times has done so much to enable women to take their proper place in life by safe-guarding their health as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, invigorating the body, regulating the functions, they restore the strength and health to the exhausted woman when every effort of the physician proves unavailing.

For the growing girl they are of the greatest benefit, for the mother indispensable, for every woman invaluable.

For paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and other diseases long supposed incurable, these pills have proved their efficacy in thousands of cases.

The "Ivory" is a favorite shaving soap because it makes a profuse rich lather, which softens the beard to be removed and leaves the skin unharmed.

It costs about one-fifth as much as the so-called shaving soaps and many who have used it for this purpose for years, will not have any other.

The vegetable oils of which Ivory Soap is made, fit it for many special uses for which other soaps are unsafe or unsatisfactory.

A WORD OF WARNING—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.
