

Stock Raisin and Beets.
In all countries where the sugar beet is made a specialty much consideration is given the value of the beets as cattle food; that is, the residuum, after the sugar is extracted. By feeding stock in connection with the growing of the beets for sale to the factory, carrying home the pulp for stock food, the farmers' opportunities from the growing of beets are increased. Experiments in Pennsylvania show that the yields of beets range from ten to fifteen tons per acre, and the average amount of sugar to exceed 12 per cent. The farmer will have to contend with wet and dry seasons, and his profits will be more years than during others, but it is believed that farmers have neglected the beet as an important food for cattle, independently of its use as a source for procuring sugar, not that the beet is as valuable as grain, but because farmers will find a larger increase in production from cattle by reason of the feeding of succulent food, and although there is some preparation required for all kinds of roots before feeding them to stock, such labor is unnecessary when the beet pulp from the factories is used, the combination of the pulp with grain giving better results than when beets or grain are fed separately.—Philadelphia Record.

His Only Expressed Opinion.
Attorney—Have you formed or expressed any opinion concerning this case?
Ventreman—All I've said about it is, I'd like to make $2 a day settin' on the jury.—Chicago Tribune.

The statement that our national emblem is fashionably used for yacht and hammock cushions has been going the rounds of the newspapers, but few to say it nay. A young girl who recently gave a yachting party rallied her guests of honor, a boyish ensign, because he took an uncomfortable and isolated seat on the bow. "Really," he answered, laughing, "I have punched the heads of so many sailors for getting their heels accidentally mixed up in the flag that I cannot sit on it myself." And he was right. The Stars and Stripes are to be raised aloft, to be wrapped around dead heroes, to be saluted with pride and reverence; not to be made into chair seats, nor to drape bargain handkerchiefs, nor to fly from the lung of whisky-barrels. Against such common prostitution of our flag, each one of us, like the young officer, can make personal protest.

PERIODS OF PAIN.

Menstruation, the balance wheel of woman's life, is also the bane of existence to many because it means a time of great suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical pain, it does not seem to have been nature's plan that women otherwise healthy should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition that produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors. Here is proof:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—How can I thank you enough for what you have done for me? When I wrote to you I was suffering with pain at time of menstruation; was nervous, had headache all the time, no appetite, that tired feeling, and did not care for anything. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of Blood Purifier, two boxes of Liver Pills, and to-day I am a well person. I would like to have those who suffer know that I am one of the many who have been cured of female complaints by your wonderful medicine and advice.

A Fortune From a Scare.
An inventive genius who suffered from attacks by stray dogs when riding his wheel, set his wits to work to devise something which would be an efficacious, and yet comparatively harmless, means of defense. As a result he has brought out and patented a pocket pistol which will shoot ammonia, water or other liquid. The most vicious dog cannot withstand a few drops of ammonia in his mouth or eyes, and yet there is no danger of actually injuring a valuable animal which might playfully annoy a rider. The weapon has proved so much of a success as a means of defense as well as fun-making, that the lucky inventor is realizing much money from his device.

Military Justice.
Old Judge Dole, an early settler of Pike, in the county of Wyoming, New York, was a military man in his early days, having, to quote his own words, "at the Britishers' in the war of 1812. And he carried his habits of military discipline into the management of his farm."

One hot summer day his hired men, five or six in number, decided to take a nap after their luncheon of doughnuts and pie, instead of setting to work again at haying. They selected one of their number to act as sentinel and keep watch for the old judge, and the rest of them stretched themselves at full length in the shade of a big tree. Unfortunately, or fortunately, the sentinel also yielded to the desire for slumber, and at the end of ten minutes was fast asleep at his post. Just five minutes later the judge appeared, to see how the work was going on, and he saw at once the state of affairs. From the sentinel's position the judge knew what duty the man had been expected to perform, and without waiting for any explanation, he proceeded to administer a sound drubbing with his stick.

When he had sufficiently admonished the sentinel, the old judge let him go saying, "There, I guess that'll learn you not to sleep on your post!" And without taking the least notice of the other sleepers, the disciplinarian marched off, perfectly satisfied.

Economy in Housekeeping.
In good housekeeping, as in nature, nothing need be wasted. One might suppose that an old chair had a legitimate ending when the seat was quite gone and the four legs falling apart. Yet see—the four legs will support a square board, and when the whole is stained and varnished there is a most useful little table for the porch, or painted white it may become a stand to keep close by the sewing chair and hold the work basket. A second table may be evolved by using the longest spokes of the chair back as legs, only in this case the shape of the table's top had best be triangular and for it three legs will be sufficient. This will make a very small table, and need not be stained or painted; if a bright cover is thrown over it; but its most convenient use will be to hold a light tea kettle at 4 o'clock. All these handiwork trifles should be handed over to our amateur carpenters—boys and girls—for it is the right of every family of children to possess a tool chest and a work bench set in the garret. A tool chest is an excellent investment in a household.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ARMY'S NEW UNIFORM

OUR TWO TROPICAL CAMPAIGNS NECESSITATE RADICAL CHANGES.

Brown Duck Suits Provided For the Men—The Trousers Reach Only to the Knee—Leggings Worn to Afford Protection From Tropical Insects.

Among the specifications for the warm weather army clothes upon which bids have been invited by the Quartermaster-General's office in New York City, the prominent and picturesque item is that of trousers reaching only to the knee, or but a trifle below, says the Sun. As the number of suits to be contracted for is 40,000 this order means a general revival of knickerbockers in the American military uniform. The results will differ from anything seen since the days of the Continental army.

In practical significance the new knickerbockers will be the first outward symbol of the transformation that has taken place in the army itself. Instead of a handful of scouts and frontier police there is now a military force equipped and eager for service in any part of the globe. It came into existence with the first sudden expansion of the great republic of a hemisphere into an imperial power of world-wide influence. In future it may be decreased in numbers, but the varied character of its equipment and service will remain as long as the Stars and Stripes are upheld in Manila Bay.

The uniform that has been ordered for use by the regular army in warm or tropical regions is a suit of brown canvas, plain in cut and peculiar chiefly for its knickerbockers. The plain jacket is distinguished for cavalry, artillery and infantry by the use of the respective colors, yellow, red and buff, as facing for the pocket flaps and shoulder flaps.

Patterned after the fighting costume of Great Britain's soldiers in Africa and the East, the new American uniform preserves a Yankee individuality by retaining the soft felt campaign hat. The white helmet familiar in pictures of military forces on the upper Nile has not been adopted. Of the canvas knickerbockers a fair idea is to be obtained from any of the London illustrated weeklies that picture General Sir Herbert Kitchener's Egyptian campaign. Similar conditions have evolved similar costumes for an American army in Cuba.

"More like bicycle trousers than like the regulation long trousers," runs the official description. A sample suit is shown at the Army building.

Canvas is in itself somewhat of a novelty for the army, it having been more generally used for naval uniforms. United States troops in Texas, however, as well as other parts of the Southern frontier, have long been accustomed to a summer uniform of brown duck. The trousers there used were long, while the tops of the leggings were correspondingly low. A change to knickerbockers will involve leggings long enough to cover the entire lower leg wherever high boots are not used.

"The burden and heat of a tropical day," remarked a veteran who has served with the army in Texas, "is exactly what we seek to overcome by a material as light and cool as the brown canvas of army wear."

"Insect pests of the tropics constitute, however, a far more important factor in determining the style of uniform. The cut of the trousers is the main thing. You require protection from such pests as red bugs, ticks and like insects of warm climates that attack you wherever you walk."

"There are times in Texas when you cannot put your foot down upon the grass, but that your clothing becomes infested with minute red bugs. The same is true in Cuba. Swamps and low-lands in that island abound with the tiny mosquitoes called jejeones, and with a variety of scorpion called alacran."

"Protection from these pests is to be secured only by having trousers tight over the ankle and calf. Whether this is the custom of the Spaniards in Cuba I do not now recall. Their uniform, except on gala occasions, is of canvas, however. The insurgents wear whatever uniform they can get."

"A fine canvas suit that I do happen to know about was that used by Lieutenant A. S. Rowan, of the Nineteenth Infantry, who landed in Cuba and made the trip to the insurgent headquarters. Brown duck was the material, and, as usual, the trousers wore the special feature."

"Lieutenant Rowan's duck trousers were long and were not unlike riding breeches. Fitting loosely over hip and thigh, they narrowed at the knee, buttoning snugly from there to the ankle and continuing in a strap that bound them like gaiters over the instep of the foot. The protection against insect attack was thus as complete as it could be made."

"The knickerbockers ordered for our regular army will do precisely similar service if leggings are used with them, and such will doubtless be the case. Canvas or duck material will give the necessary freedom from heaviness and warmth, while the leg protection will decrease the annoyance due to attack by the insects to which loose clothing gives easy lodgment."

"This is the immediate significance of the revival of knickerbockers. The broader fact is that we are now equipping our army upon a plan that provides for all climates and all conditions. The visible change is symbolic of the new era upon which our nation has entered."

Spain's Last Victory.
Lepanto was the last naval battle of any consequence in which the Spanish were victorious, and Lepanto occurred in 1571.

THOMAS JEFFERSON'S DAY.

His Name is Inseparably Linked With the Glorious Fourth.

Thomas Jefferson, as near as any one man, may be called the patron saint of the Fourth of July because he wrote the instrument whose adoption signals that holiday, and his name is further associated with the date because on this day in 1826 he died. The briefest summary of the events in his life is as follows:

"Thomas Jefferson was born at Shadwell, Albemarle County, Va., April 13, 1743. On his tomb at Monticello is, 'Born April 2d, 1743, O. S.' He died at Monticello, near Charlottesville, Va., at 1 o'clock p. m., July 4, 1826, at more than eighty-three years of age."

"Before 1766, in Virginia, he began to agitate against the misrule of King George, and joined Patrick Henry, George Wythe and others in determined opposition to tyranny."

"He advocated common schools and the abolishment of slavery. He caused the passage of a law prohibiting the importation of slaves into Virginia."

"With George Wythe and James Madison in the Virginia Legislature after September, 1776, he spent three years in revising and adapting the laws of Virginia to the new conditions under liberty."

"He drew and caused to be enacted the statute for religious liberty in Virginia—the first one ever enacted by Legislature, and the first by any government."

would have been done by others, some of them, perhaps, a little better. Then follows his account of what he did. Abridged they are:

THE HOUSE IN WHICH THOMAS JEFFERSON WROTE THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

"He improved the navigation of the Rivanna River."

"He wrote the Declaration of Independence."

"He disestablished the Established Church in Virginia and secured the freedom of religion."

"He was the father of the act putting an end to entails, of the act prohibiting the importation of slaves, of

THE PATRIOTIC SUMMER GIRL OF '98.

"He suggested the dollar as the unit of value."

"He was largely responsible for the location of the capital at Washington."

"In Congress in 1783-1784, he voted to ratify the treaty of peace with Great Britain—settling the war his Declaration of Independence had helped to make, and presented to Congress the Virginia deed of cession of her lands northwest of the River Ohio to the United States for public domain."

"March 1, 1784, in Congress, he reported from a committee and all in his handwriting a plan for the temporary the act concerning citizens, and establishing the natural right of man to expatriate himself at will, of the act changing the course of descents and giving the inheritance to all children equally, and of the act for apportioning crimes and punishments. He introduced the olive tree into South Carolina from France in 1789-1790, and brought upland rice into South Carolina from Africa in 1790. He makes no mention of his service in Congress or his acts while President and does not mention having founded the University of Virginia. He was a modest man in respect to his public acts. While President he purchased the province of Louisiana from France in 1803.

"He sent Lewis and Clark and Pike to explore the Western country. He tried to enforce national rights by embargo instead of by war. He reduced the public debt, aided trade and commerce and provided a system of sea-coast and tidewater defenses."

The house in which the Declaration of Independence was written was No. 230 High street, afterwards No. 700 Market street, and located on the southwest corner of Seventh and Market streets, Philadelphia.

A Guardsman's Trouble.

From the Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

The promptness with which the National Guard of the different states responded to President McKinley's call for troops at the beginning of the war with Spain made the whole country proud of its citizen soldiers. In Detroit there are few guardsmen more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. Ho."

Ho" has been a resident of Detroit for the past six years, and his home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was connected with the well known wholesaler and druggist for sale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, in the capacity of book-keeper.

"I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mr. Davies, "but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily."

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work."

"I tried the hot-water treatment thoroughly, but it did not affect my case. I have tried many advertised remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend of mine recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but I did not think much of them."

"I finally was induced to try the pills and commenced using them. After taking a few doses I found much relief. I do not remember how many boxes of the pills I used, but I used them until the old trouble stopped. I know they will cure dyspepsia of the worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

The Head Clogger.
Jacob Schontag, for forty years head of the claque at the Vlnena Opera House, is dead. He knew all the operas of the repertory by heart, knew the strong and weak points of all the artists, and held a rehearsal of his subordinates in the afternoon before the production of an opera, when he drilled them on the parts of a production where their work was to be put in. He watched them during the performance from a seat that commanded a view of the whole house, but never applauded himself, save in desperate cases.

PROTECTION OR FUN.
SHOOT AMMONIA, WATER, COLOGNE, OR OTHER LIQUID.

It is a weapon which protects bicyclists against vicious dogs and foot-pads, travelers against robbers and fugitives from justice. It is adapted to many other structures. It does not kill or injure; it is perfectly safe to handle; makes no noise or smoke; breaks no law and creates no lasting regrets, as does the bullet pistol. It is simply and amply protected by compelling the foe to give individual attention to himself for awhile instead of to the intended victim.

It is the only real weapon which protects and also makes fun, laughter and fun of its foes, now and for many times without reloading, and will protect its appearance in that of a bicycle, although loaded only with liquid. It does not get out of order; is durable, handsome, and nickel plated.
