Borough Business.

Council Paid Some Bills and Referred Everything Else to Committees.

The members of the borough council met in regular monthly session Monday evening. All were present except Messrs. Keck and Zemany. The regular order of business was suspended to allow Charles Seckelman, the representative of the Fabric Fire Hose Company, of New York, to speak on hose and apparatus. Mr. Seckelman exhibited samples and prices, and stated that if council would take 1,000 feet, terms could be made satisfactory to council as to the time of payment. Mr. Seckelman agreed to give prices of the hose and hose carts in writing for the inspection of the committee.

A communication was read from the Citizens' Hose Company, relinquishing their right to the use of the Public park and offering to sell to council the fixtures on the ground. The matter was left in hands of the park committee with power to confer with the fire directors as to the purchase of the material.

Timothy Boyle, on behalf of Maj. C. R. Cox Post, asked council for permission to use the Public park on Grand Army Day. This request was granted.

A petition from residents of Johnson street and vicinity was read, asking that that street be opened to its full length. Referred to street committee.

A communication was read from William Wehrman, relative to the impounding of his dog, and asking to have some of the fine returned to him. It was referred to the police committee.

J. D. Myers, on behalf of the trustees of the K. of L., appeared in answer to a notice to put down a sidewalk and stated that they would comply with the order but as there was no reservation for a sidewalk on the Centre street side of the lot, he asked council to authorize the street committee to meet with the trustees and if possible an amicable adjustment will be made by which the borough can procure ground for a sidewalk along Centre street. The matter was referred as requested.

A communication was read from John Burton, regarding the taking of land on West Walnut street by the council which Mr. Burton claimed to belong to him. It was referred to the street committee.

Laubach was paid by Agent Stroh the full amount of his insurance on his barn and stable, $150, and $100 on the stock, $250 in all. On Tuesday Agents Taylor & Clark, of Hazleton, paid M. Zemany $1,500 for the loss of his bottling house and contents. The building and stock had been insured for $2,400, but considerable liquor had been removed previous to the fire, and the amount paid is said to represent the value destroyed.

Two Prominent Men Dead.

Hon. E. R. Ikeler, president judge of the Twenty-sixth judicial district, composed of Columbia and Montour counties, died at his home in Bloomsburg on Monday. He was a prominent Democrat and had a state reputation as a judge.

Hon. Seth Orme, a prominent legislator of the Schuylkill region, died at his home in St. Clair Monday afternoon of congestion of the brain. He was born near Manchester, England, in 1847, and came to America in 1854. He was an active Republican.

Foster Township Sued.

Foster township has another damage suit on its hands. A suit in trespass for $5,000 damages was entered by Jacob Habel on Monday against the township. The plaintiff states that while he was driving from his home in Foster township to the Sandy Run colliery his horse became frightened at a large iron pipe and ran away. Habel alleges he was thrown from his wagon and was seriously and permanently injured about the back, hips and thighs, and has been incapacitated for work.

Dishonest Officials Must Suffer.

The superior court has affirmed the sentence and judgment in the trial of Nari Dietrick, of Schuylkill county, charged with taking a bribe of $600 from Dr. John M. Gray, of Cressonia, for the appointment of physician at the almshouse. The case was heard before Judge Archibald, of Scranton, who, on September 10 last, sentenced Dietrick to pay a fine of $600 and costs and undergo an imprisonment of one year and six months.

Newspapers Reducing Expenses.

Owing to the heavy advance in the price of white paper, made by the paper trust as a result of the opportunity given it by the Dingley tariff law, newspapers in all parts of the country are increasing their subscription rates or reducing their size. The Hazleton Standard is the first of the papers of this vicinity to change, it now appearing as an eight-column folio instead of a six-column quarto.

A Young Man Missing.

A week ago on Monday Joseph Reese, aged 25 years, a son of Shadrach Reese, of Silver Brook, wandered away from his home and since that time has not returned. About 10 o'clock in the morning he told his mother that he was going out for a walk and with a pleasant good-bye he started off. In the evening of that same day Samuel Fudge, the watchman at the Hauto dam, near Nesquehoning, saw the young man and spoke to him. Mr. Reese asked him the road to Silver Brook, a distance of seven miles, and receiving his instructions disappeared down the road. Since that time nothing has been seen or heard of him. His father and over one hundred friends have searched everywhere, inquiries have been made through the police, but no information can be obtained.

At home his grief stricken mother waits for news, and sleepless nights and anxious days attest her sorrow. Any information will be gratefully received and considered a favor. The young man did not drink but was subject to epileptic fits. He is a five feet seven inches tall, slim built and pallid smooth shaven face. He wore a red, white and blue badge on his coat and two eagles. When last seen he wore a brown-nixed coat and vest, black pants, calico shirt and a broad-brimmed hat of light color.

Pretty State of Affairs.

As a result of the so-called reforms inaugurated by the Republican officeholders who were swept into office a few years ago, Schuylkill county is practically bankrupt today. Monday was pay day for the county officials and the many clerks, but they did not receive their salaries because County Treasurer Davis and Controller Snyder have notified the commissioners that the county treasury is empty. The commissioners refuse to negotiate any more temporary loans, this amount having reached over $250,000 and owing to the hard times in the coal region it will not be possible to collect sufficient taxes to pay current expenses. The commissioners advertised a new bond issue of $229,000, but the Taxpayers' Association, which is composed of coal land and mining companies, filed a bill in equity. Judge Koch decided in favor of the new loan.

The association then appealed the case to the supreme court, and no decision can be secured before October. Until that time little or no money will come into the county treasury, and there will be no funds to pay salaries or the expenses of the September term of court.

Explosion in a Mine.

An explosion of gas occurred in No. 5 lift of the Parrish colliery at Plymouth Tuesday morning. The gas was set off in the gangway driven by Daniel Reese. This gangway is about 3,000 feet long and has been well opened up. At the time of the explosion five men were working in toward the face of the gangway. They were David Phillips and John Evans, who were employed as company hands; Daniel Reese and two laborers, Adam Viski, one of Daniel Reese's laborers, was standing along the gangway and was struck by a door which was hurled along the gangway with terrific speed. Paul Masnovich, another of Reese's laborers, was slightly burned and was overcome by aftordamp. John Evans was badly injured, but managed to reach home with the assistance of two men. Phillips was buried under a stone wall, which was thrown down. He died yesterday.

VERY SUDDEN RELAPSE.

Prince's Family Summoned to His Bedside Early Saturday Evening and Present at His Death.

"Thanks, My Child," Were His Last Words as Countess Rantzau Wiped His Lips—He Talked Politely to the Morning and Ate Well at Lunch.

Friedrichshagen, August 4.—Prince Bismarck died of congestion of the lungs Saturday night at eleven o'clock. The end came peacefully. His last words were:—"Ich danke dir, mein kind!" addressed to Countess von Rantzau, who wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

Immediately after his death, the windows of his room were thrown open, and the household could see from the garden their master lying at rest on the pillow of his bed, covered with a white cover, and Herbert Bismarck bending grief-stricken, gazing into his father's face.

The elements, as at the death of Napoleon I., seemed to participate in the tragic occurrence. A storm raged that night along the North Sea, and there was a bitter autumnal cold next morning.

Bismarck humbled Austria and made the North German Union. He conquered France and founded the German empire. His shadow lay over the states and statesmen of the Continent for full thirty years. In it reputations withered and powers waned, small men grew great and nations were created. The Hapsburgers were thrust aside and the Bonapartes were de-throned. The laurels of the Metternichs and the Schwarzenbergs died away and the Gagarins, Manteuffels and Camphausers were forgotten. Mere association with him, mere opposition to him was fame, and the names of Crisp, Gortschakoff, Kalnoky, Andrassy and Giers were known to all the world. His heavy hand was felt in every Cabinet and Court. His life became the history of modern Europe.

From the beginning of the present year Bismarck was constantly under the surveillance of his physicians, and, whatever it may have been called, his life was that of an invalid. Few persons were allowed to see him, and every precaution was taken to prevent any disturbance of his rest and quiet. This was in a measure the result of the experience of a Hamburg reporter who went to Friedrichshagen to inquire after Bismarck's health and was received by Count Rantzau in such a way that the reporter won a suit for damages from the Count. He contributed only two articles to his organ, the Hamburger Nachrichten, during the past year. These were dictated to the editor, who came to his house. He sent many memorandums to the editor, however, and these he usually dictated to his private secretary. Dr. Chrysdauer used to read the papers to him, and learned Russian for the purpose of translating to him articles from the two principal newspapers of St. Petersburg. In addition to these—which he sometimes through his small knowledge of Russian was able to read in the original—Bismarck regularly read three London newspapers.

He usually rose late, ate a hearty breakfast without the accompaniment of tea or coffee, but frequently including as much as a pound of meat. He always took this alone, reading some of his mail at the time. He was able to ride only a few times last spring, and then for only a brief period. Last January he undertook what was for him an unusual exertion. He stood as godfather to twins born of one of the workmen in his sawmill. This was done in order to show the other workmen, who are largely socialists, how much he appreciates the service of his more faithful employees. The dinner hour was with him the principal event of the day, although the number of guests was limited. One glass of Moselle wine at dinner and two of beer after dinner constituted his allowance in recent months. He obeyed the restriction generally, but on one occasion so far broke his regimen as to drink five bottles of Moselle and as much beer as he wanted.

His political interests during the last years of his life were almost wholly confined to his own country, and the war between Spain and the United States, as well as other questions of foreign politics, are said to have had but little interest for him.

Bismarck left two sons. Count Wilhelm is a country squire. Count Herbert has tried public life and failed. With the death of the Iron Chancellor the political dynasty of Bismarck became extinct.
