

"I'm So Tired!"

As tired in the morning as when I go to bed? Why is it? Simply because your blood is in such a poor, thin, sluggish condition it does not keep up your strength and you do not get the benefit of your sleep. To feel strong and keep strong just try the tonic and purifying effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Our word for it, it will do you good.

Among the many expenses borne by Railroad companies the ice bill figures quite prominently. For instance, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad it is expected it will take over 50,000 tons of ice this year to meet the requirements of the service. The greater portion is used in connection with shipment of perishable goods; the balance in the passenger train service. A great deal of this ice is put up by the company in its own ice houses, but as the past winter has been so warm a very large proportion will have to be purchased.

To Cure Constipation Forever. Take Cascarets Candy Cathartic. 10c or 25c. If C. C. C. fail to cure, druggists refund money.

Congo negroes are remarkable for their thick skin. A case is mentioned of a black slash with a razor in a scuffle. The hospital surgeon broke two needles in trying to put in the stitches, and at last was driven to use a bread awl.

Sierra Leone, Africa. The settlement of Sierra Leone at one time consisted only of the peninsula terminating in Cape Sierra Leone, with an area of about 200 square miles. The colony, with its protectorate, now includes a large extent of country, estimated at 4,000 square miles. The capital, Freetown, possesses the best harbor in West Africa. The scenery of Sierra Leone is said to be very similar to that of the West Indies. The soil is fertile and there is an abundance of pure fresh water. Tropical fruits grow luxuriantly. Pineapples especially are produced very abundantly, while bananas, plantains, avocado pears, mangoes, limes and oranges are not only consumed locally, but are also exported to Gambia, Senegal and Sierra Leone.

THEY WANT TO TELL

These Grateful Women Who Have Been Helped by Mrs. Pinkham.

Women who have suffered severely and been relieved of their ills by Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine are constantly urging publication of their statements for the benefit of other women. Here are two such letters:

Mrs. LIZZIE BEVELLY, 258 Merrimac St., Lowell, Mass., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to tell all suffering women of the benefit I have received from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for what she has done for me. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I was under the doctor's care. Upon examination he found fifteen very large ulcers, but he failed to do me good. I took several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also used the Sanative Wash, and am cured. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine saved my life, and I would recommend it to all suffering women."

Mrs. ANNE THOMBLEAY, Ellenburgh Cr., N. Y., writes:

"I took cold at the time my baby was born, causing me to have milk legs, and was sick in bed for eight weeks. Doctors did me no good. I surely thought I would die. I was all so troubled with falling of the womb. I could not eat, had faint spells as often as ten times a day. One day a lady came to see me and told me of the benefit she had derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and advised me to try it. I did so, and had taken only half a bottle before I was able to sit in a chair. After taking three bottles I could do my own work. I am now in perfect health."

JAP PIRATES PUNISHED.

AN ALMOST UNRECORDED CHAPTER OF OUR NAVAL ANNALS.

The Wyoming's Oriental Battle—Brilliant in Point of Daring and Successful Against Overwhelming Odds—Commander McDugall's Tactics.

Strange as it may seem, the Wyoming's Oriental battle is an almost unrecorded chapter of our naval annals, though it ranks even higher in point of daring and success against overwhelming odds than the defeat of the Alabama by the Wyoming's sister ship, the Kearsarge. But the Wyoming never was in very great luck as a naval star. She had her part throughout the Civil War in all the hardest of blockading and cruising service, and fought well whenever she had the chance, but she did not have the luck of getting into the papers. She was sent off at the same time as the Kearsarge to cruise for that scourge of the seas, the Alabama, and just missed her by the merest chance on two occasions in the China seas.

It was in 1863, toward the end of the dual reign of the Tycoon and the Mikado, when Japan was in the throes of civil war, and the forces of the rebel princes were resisting to the last the passing of the old feudal system. The Prince of Nagato was one of these, and from his tiny kingdom that fronted on the Straits of Simonski he declared himself lord paramount of everything in sight, including the neighboring seas, from which he took generous toll as did ever the pirate chiefs of Tariffa. He had laid violent hands and hot shot upon the vessels of various powers, including Great Britain, France, the Netherlands and the United States.

Meantime Prince Nagato threw and flourished by the Straits of Simonski, and, failing one day to wring tribute of blackmail by any other means, he fired on the American merchantman Pembroke and killed a couple of her crew. There was another diplomatic protest from the combined foreign representatives to the Japanese Government, and Commander McDugall, who happened to be in port with the Wyoming, suggested that if the Mikado could not take a fall out of his rebellious subject the Wyoming could and would without much urging. This struck the government as a good thing and an easy way out of the international difficulty; so McDugall was given carte blanche to settle accounts with the Prince of Nagato in behalf of all the powers concerned, and he forthwith sailed away.

It was the middle of July when the Wyoming found herself in the Straits of Simonski and in sight of the shore batteries which were a part of the Prince's defenses to seaward. Before she had time to open on the batteries two Japanese gunboats loomed up, one ahead and one astern, in the narrow straits, and presently a third came cruising out from among the neighboring islands. It was a nasty place for a fight, McDugall being without charts or pilots, and the odds were more than enough for Nelson himself, being forty-eight guns of the three Japanese vessels to the twenty-six of the old Wyoming, to say nothing of the batteries on shore. There was still a chance to run, barring some danger of grounding in the narrow channels among the islands, but the idea does not seem to have occurred to any one aboard the frigate.

Working to windward of the nearest Japanese, the Wyoming opened at long range, and worked down on her till, when close aboard, there was nothing of the enemy left standing above decks. The other two vessels had come up in the meantime and engaged the American on either side, but she lay to and gave them shot for shot, port and starboard, till her gunners were smoke-blind and the flame of the guns no longer served to light the battle-cloud that rolled in white billows over the smooth waters of the straits. It was desperate work in the shallow water, but the Wyoming was the best vessel, and she outmaneuvered her two opponents from start to finish, though twice aground, and once afire, with many men knocked out from splinters and heat as from the enemy's shot.

Fighting themselves out of one smoke-patch into another, the three combatants circled around like two crows and a kingbird, till they had drifted down in range of the shore batteries, which gaily took a hand in the game. But McDugall ran across the bows of one of his enemies, raked her as he went and left her a floating wreck, and then turned his attention to the batteries. The Wyoming's men rigged the smith's forge on deck, and tossed hot shot into the works ashore till they set them afire, and the soldiers fled, and the other Japs on the remaining cruiser, deciding enough was as good as a feast, followed their example.

So McDugall mended his rigging and patched his bulwarks, and meanwhile sent word to the recalcitrant Prince to come down and settle or he would sail inland and shell the royal palace about his royal owner's ears. The Prince, who was no less discreet than Colonel Crockett's coon, came down promptly, and of the resulting indemnity $300,000 fell to the lot of the United States. It was many years before this money got into the Treasury of the United States, but meantime the State Department had charge of it and had invested it so well that there was a very little short of $2,000,000 finally turned over to the Government, which, after all, was pretty good pay for one day's fighting, with a loss of only five killed and six wounded.—Washington Post.

THE FLAG OF HAWAII.

Emergencies That Had to Do With Making It What It Is.

All histories that are printed of the Hawaiian Republic fail to tell of the interesting story connected with the adoption of the flag of that country. The adoption of the emblem dates back about twenty-five years, when the country was still a monarchy and Kink Kamehameha II. was on the throne.

The story is handed down by posterity. The exact date of the occurrence is not known, though it was in the year 1873. The King of the "key to the Pacific" awoke one morning to find a French warship anchored safely in the harbor of Honolulu. He became alarmed at the prospect of a conquest, and sent at once for his Prime Minister. He was advised by him to run up a flag, and show the visitors that the country belonged to some one, and was not a "no man's land," to be pillaged at will by the first foreigners who came along. The King, heeding the advice, cast about for a piece of bunting to represent his nation, and fell upon an old British flag. This he had run up to the top of his highest flagpole.

The bunting had hardly had time to unfurl itself to the breeze when one of the chief advisers of the King came running to him and told him that he would have to take the flag down, as the first thing he knew if he did not an English man-of-war that was expected at the island, would arrive, and the commander finding his nation's colors flying over Honolulu, would take possession in the name of the Queen. This frightened Kamehameha, and he started another hunt for a flag. This time searchers unearthed an American emblem.

Taking the two flags, the ruler had them made into one. The jack in the corner of the English emblem was left, while the stripes of the American flag were added to it. Thus the Hawaiian flag at first had thirteen stripes and a jack, the same as the English. The King, when he had disposed of his French visitors, had time to think over the matter. It was decided that it would be better to have only eight stripes, representing the eight islands of the nation. The extra pieces were cut off, leaving the eight stripes, with a white one on the top. The jack still carries the St. George's cross, the St. Andrew's cross, and the St. Patrick's cross, the same as the English.

Soon after the adoption of this flag the whites, who had begun to settle on the island, came more and more into power each year until, as a result, the monarchy was finally overthrown and the Republic placed on a firm basis, with white men at the head of the Government. The natives, who are superstitious, believe the change in power from the copper-colored people to the whites is directly due to the fact that the white stripe is directly over the red in the flag. They say that had the red been first the whites would never have gained foothold on the island sufficient to warrant their taking the reins of the Government in their hands.

As a result of this superstition the Legislature of Hawaii scarcely ever meets but what some new bill to change the position of the stripes on the flag is brought up. The wisest of the men among the natives are kept constantly at work on the drawing up of such measures, and their members in the Congress are ever busy trying to put the bills through. The belief is that as soon as the order of the stripes is changed, the red having the preference, the copper-colored natives will again ascend to power and have full sway in the Government.

Angkor-Wat's Mysterious Temple.

The great mystery about Indo-China, and one which must ever be insoluble, is the story of the lost race and the vanished civilization of that strange country. The mighty walls of Angkor-Wat, rising in the midst of sparsely populated jungles, remain as the memorial of a great empire which has utterly disappeared and is altogether lost to history. No one will ever know who planned this gigantic temple, or what tyrant bounded on his myriads of people to build up those immense blocks of stone and cover them with the most elaborate sculptures. Angkor-Wat is one of the most astonishing monuments in the world, and this forgotten temple was built so as to endure as long as the earth itself, were it not for the irresistibly destructive effect of plant life on the strongest walls that man can raise. Only a highly civilized and very wealthy people could have erected Angkor-Wat—a very different race to the Annamites of modern days. The whole Nation has disappeared as utterly as the busy myriads who once populated the wastes and solitudes of Memphis.—Singapore Free Press.

Ancient Records.

The authentic records of the Chinese race began about 4000 years ago, though the traditional history extends back much further. As a matter of fact, however, the reliable record of China does not go back further than 2205 B. C., and it is believed by chronological authorities that the Chinese annals do not antedate those of Egypt. The earliest dynasty of China, that of Han, dates from 206 B. C. to 220 A. D., and the long list of dynasties is believed to have little better foundation than in the imaginations of the Chinese historians.

A White City.

There could not possibly be a whiter city than Cadiz, unless it were built of snow. As you near the coast you see in front of you a white mass, which appears to be floating upon the water. The first thought of a foreigner is that he is in sight of an iceberg.—New York Telegram.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

Honeyed Apples.

Select smooth, ripe apples. Do not pare unless the skin be very tough. Core them, but do not break through the skin at the lower end. Set them upright in a pan, touching each other. Put into each cavity a teaspoonful of honey and a teaspoonful of butter. Put a scant half-teaspoon of sugar, a scant half-teaspoon of water and a teaspoonful of butter together and pour into the pan. Cover and set into a brick oven for fifteen minutes. Remove cover and bake till tender—fifteen minutes more will be sufficient.

Savory Potatoes.

Finely slice three large potatoes, put them into a basin with plenty of salt and pepper, a pinch of grated nutmeg and a whole egg well beaten. Add two ounces of grated cheese and nearly a half pint of boiled milk, and well mix these ingredients. Pour them into a fire-proof dish of suitable size and shape (previously rubbed with garlic), sprinkle with more grated cheese, lay some tiny pieces of butter over the top and bake in a moderate oven for at least thirty minutes. This is a most uncommon dish, but it is a delicious one. The quantities can, of course, be increased proportionately. The above suffices for three or four persons.

Chocolate Cream Pudding.

Boil four heaping tablespoonfuls of grated, unsweetened chocolate in half pint water; add half cup of sugar and one tablespoonful of vanilla; soak one ounce gelatine in one cup cold water fifteen minutes; remove from the fire, and when cold and beginning to thicken, pour it slowly into one pint of whipped cream, while beating constantly with an egg-beater; rinse out a two-quart mold with cold water; pour in the pudding mixture and set in a cool place. Vanilla sauce.—Put one quart of milk into a double boiler; add four tablespoonfuls sugar and one teaspoonful cornstarch; add the yolks of five eggs; place over the fire and stir till just about to boil; then instantly remove; add two teaspoonfuls vanilla extract and serve ice cold.

Cucumber Fritters.

Select very ripe cucumbers, peel and grate. Press the pulp free from juice and for each pint stir in three tablespoonfuls of sweet cream, one tablespoonful melted butter, one-half cupful sifted flour, one-half teaspoonful salt and a dash of cayenne. Whip two eggs to a light froth and add to the batter. Drop a teaspoonful at a time, into smoking hot lard, fry a rich color and drain on thick brown paper. These should be eaten immediately.

Tomatoes stuffed with macaroni may be new to some. Choose large, solid tomatoes and slice off the stem ends. Then with spoon carefully remove all the seeds, cut cold boiled macaroni into small pieces and season with salt, pepper and onion juice. Fill the cavity in each vegetable, with this, lay a piece of butter on top and bake in a hot oven for half an hour.

Stuffed Egg Plant.

Select three small egg plants, cut each one in half, making three incisions inside of each, drop into deep hot fat, and fry two minutes; then remove, scoop out the fleshy part, leaving half inch thickness on the skin; fill each with fine veal forcemeat; sprinkle over some grated bread crumbs and a little grated butter; lay them in a buttered pan and bake till light brown, then serve with cream tomato sauce, prepared as follows: Melt half tablespoonful butter, and one tablespoonful fine chopped onions, cook three minutes, add half tablespoonful flour, stir and cook a few minutes; then add half can tomatoes, one teaspoonful sugar, half teaspoonful salt, one-quarter teaspoonful pepper; cook ten minutes, then run the sauce through a sieve into another saucepan; mix the yolks of two eggs with two tablespoonfuls cream, add to the sauce, stir for a few minutes over the fire, not letting it boil, and serve.

Household Hints.

Plan meals to have heavy cooking one day and lighter the next.
For chocolate stains, use cold water first, then boiling water from the tea kettle.
The dampers of a stove must be pushed in when only a small fire is needed.
Apples are less liable to break when being cored if they are not peeled till afterwards.
If you use a water cooler in summer you can cool your lemonade in it by putting the beverage in a bottle and setting it inside.
Old gloves protect the hands in doing the dirty work of the house, but rubber gloves cannot be specially recommended, as they make the hands sensitive.
After fruit stains have been in table linen for some time, it is, as a rule, impossible to remove them, as the washing with soap and water seems to indelibly "fix" the discolorations.
If the walls of the bathroom must be papered, instead of painted or tiled, it is an excellent plan to varnish over the surface after the paper is put on. The walls can then be wiped down with a wet cloth, without doing injury.
A mixture of vinegar and rock salt is useful to clean the inside of decanters. Dissolve a handful of salt in about a gill of vinegar; pour into the decanter and shake thoroughly until the stains have disappeared; then rinse well in clear water.
Dandelions, spinach, dock, cowslips or marsh marigolds, used for grout, are the better for lying an hour in cold water before being cooked. They are also improved by a slight parboiling when cooked, the acrid taste being thus removed.

Gold Fish.

In a store where home aquarium supplies are sold there are, besides the usual varied assortment of glass globes, a number of larger tanks of various shapes and sizes, in which stock is kept for sale. The tanks themselves are, of course, sold if there is a demand for them.

Lying across the corner of the largest of these tanks is a little net, the hoop no more than five or six inches in diameter, and the handle about a foot long. This is to scoop up the gold fishes when they are sold. When a new outfit is sold complete the fishes are delivered in the globe or tank. It often happens, however, that the person already owning a globe wants to replace fish that have been lost, or to add to his stock, and he goes to the store where such things are sold and buys one or more gold fishes, just as he would buy any merchandise, except that instead of sitting down at a counter to make his selections, he bends over a tank and indicates among the fishes swimming about the ones he wants. As he makes his selections the dealer scoops them out with the little net, and as likely as not the purchaser carries the fish he has bought, a single fish or half a dozen, or whatever the number may be, right away with him in a tin pail.

Little gold fish of the commoner kinds can be bought for a few cents apiece. Some of the rarer varieties cost dollars.—New York Sun.

A Long Tramp Back.

Smith—Pshaw, man. You mustn't be daunted by trifles. The distance to the Klondike is no obstacle whatever.
Brown—I know that. It's not the distance up there that I'm thinking about.
Smith—What is it, then?
Brown—The distance from there here.

A Startled Mother.

From the Freeport (Ill.) Bulletin.
While busy at work in her home, Mrs. William Shay, corner of Taylor and Hancock Avenues, Freeport, Ill., was startled by hearing a noise just behind her.

Turning quickly she saw a creeping shadow toward her four-year-old daughter, Beatrice. The child moved over the floor with an effort, but it seemed filled with joy at finding her mother. The rest of the happening is best told in Mrs. Shay's own words. She said: "On the 26th of Sept., 1896, while in the bloom of health, Beatrice was suddenly and severely afflicted with spinal meningitis. Strong and vigorous before, in five weeks she became feeble and suffered from a paralytic stroke which twisted her head back to the side and made it impossible for her to move a limb. Her speech, however, was not affected. We called in our family doctor, one of the most experienced and successful practitioners in the city. He considered the case a very grave one. Before long little Beatrice was compelled to wear a plaster Paris jacket. Prominent physicians were consulted, electric batteries were applied, but no benefit was noticed until we tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. "Busy in my kitchen one afternoon I was startled by the cry of 'Mamma' from little Beatrice who was creeping towards me. I had placed her on an improvised bed in the parlor comfortably close to the fireside and given her some books and playthings. She became tired of waiting for me to come back and made up her mind to go to me, so her story, 'My Pink Pills made me walk,' which she tells everyone who comes to our house, was true for the first time verified. She has walked ever since. She has now taken about nine boxes of the pills and her pale and pinched face has become growing rosy, and her limbs gained strength day by day. She sleeps all night long now, while before taking the pills she could rest but a few hours at a time." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all druggists.

In a Lady's Autograph Album.

A valuable lady's album was recently offered for sale in London. It was the ordinary quarto volume, with embossed pages, gilt-edged, and nicely bound, like those with which our grandmothers used to victimize their friends years ago. It was an ordinary book, but it had extraordinary contributors. Among the writers might be found Douglas Jerrold, Mark Lemon, William Macready, Mrs. Amelia Opie, Mrs. Howitt and W. M. Thackeray. The artists comprised Sir David Wilkie, Westall, Sir Edwin Landseer, Cartmole, Prout, John Leech, Sir John Tenniel and Thackeray. There were many sketches by the last-named, in which might be recognized some of the original designs for "Pendennis" and other of his books. After a spirited competition, the volume was knocked down at £180.—Tit-Bits.
