The reason why ships are not struck by lightning is attributed by German authorities to the general use which is now made of whe rope for rigging purposes, as well as to the fact that the hulls of ships are usually constructed of iron or steel. Thus the whole ship forms an excellent and continuous conductor, by means of which the electricity is led away into the ocean before it has time to do any serious damage.

New Use for Peanuts.

A new use for peanut is developing as the peanut butter industry becomes better understood. The product of the peanut answers in the place of ordinary butter for the table use, and is said to be excellent for shortening purposes, and for gravies, sauces, etc. In point of purity it is well designed for the use of vegetarians who strenuously object to anything animal. There is already a considerable demand for this butter substitute, and it is very probable there will be an enlarged marker for the nuts. At present the product of the United States is about 500,000 bags annually, and that of the world is 600,000,000 pounds.—West Const Trade.

A Chinese Typewriter.

A missionary at Tung Chow has intended a Chinese typewriting machine. The characters number about four flowers and are on the edge of wheels about a foot in diameter. Twenty or hirty wheels are required to carry all he characters, and two keys must be truck to make an impression. The first urns the wheel, and the second stops t at the required letter, which is then prought down to the paper. The machine is complicated, but the inventor Dr. Sheffleld) hopes to make it more dimple. There are 18,000 characters in the Chinese language, each representinese language, each represent istinct word. The 4,000 in com-e have been selected for the new

RELIEF FROM PAIN.

The A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before taking your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untoid misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell itwas doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

"Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorthea and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not he sitate one minimum in telling them what has brought about this great change. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

About the middle of the present sentury, when Dumas the elder was at the height of his career, and theorigin of many an interesting piece of French literature was delightfully uncertain, a couple of works appeared that drew attention to the mysterious and far-off Philippines, In his "Thousand and One Phantoms," issued serially in the Constitutionnel, Dumas made free with a fellow countryman who had been the hero of certain surprising adventures in the Pearl of the Orient, and the hero thereupon not earing to figure as a phantom in a feuilleton, got out his "Adventures of a Gentleman of Brittany in the Philippines." Some persons, however, thought the hero would have been truer to life as the creation of Dumas; that as a real gentleman of Brittany he was only another living liar, and that, in fact, his romantic narrative was the work of a new Selkirk and Defoe combination.

Paul Proust de la Gironniere was counted in the pedigree of an ancient Piedmontese family that came over the St. Bernard and into Brittany in the days of Louis XIV., and soon became rich enough to have access to the nobility and to contract "the most fattering alliances." Paul's father was born at Nantes, where his ancestors had held high office under the crown. His wealth was swept away by the revolution; and he died on a piece of landowned by his wife. Paul's mother gave the boys such education as she could, and then they went to seek their fortune. One died in Madagrascar; another returned to Porto Rico to die in his mother's arms; the husband of one of Paul's sisters died in Mauritius, and another brother died while visiting Paul in the Philippines.

Paul was born at Nantes; he studied medicine; and thence, a mere stripling, he sailed as ship's surgeon to the Far East, embarking for the fourth time on October 9, 1819, and casting anchor about the end of May, 1820, in the Bay of Manila. He landed at Cavite, enjoyed the while of Manila society, studied the Tagaboc, went among the natives in the mountains, began the cateer of sportsmanship th

Patriotic Dress Goods.
Bunting is the popular fabric for dresses, being light and suitable for wear in any weather, although, of course, the chief reason is that it is generally used for patriotic purposes. The material used in dresses is woven exactly as that for flags. The color in most demand is blue; army and navy being the shades most used.

A Remedy For the Telltale Wrintles.
When fine lines begin to show under the eyes, procure a small package of fullers' earth and mix it with an equal quantity of wheat flour. Take a little of this and mix it into a paste with clear water. Spread it beneath the eyes and let it remain an hour, then moisten it and gently wipe it off. For wrinkles on other parts of the face make a paste of white wax and olf of sweet almonds, and apply it as hot as can be borne, using a small pine stick for the purpose, that it may be applied to the line and nowhere else.

Feathers in Outing Hats.

Feathers in Outing Hats.

Fashion decrees that feathers shall be worn in outing hats. Those for general wear, bicycling, golf and even sailor hats are trimmed with wings and quills. But the more elegant headdress for wear on strolls is decorated with ostrich feathers. The plumes often have an addition of little tassels of plain black silk, and flat velvet spots are placed on white feathers. Often the milliners go so far as to renounce curling altogether, as they are supposed to show to better advantage the quality of the featifier if plain. White plumes are the most used. They are frequently shaded or laid over colored ones.

The Corsage Sachet.

The Corsage Sachet.

One of the prettiest conceits in feminine fancies is a butterfly of white bolting cloth, embroidered in the most elaborate pattern. It was sent to a recent bride and the sender declares she traced the design from the wings of a very gorgeous butterfly her small brother made a captive. Certainly no artist could have devised one more odd or more beautiful.

The scalloped wings are padded just a trife, the sachet is put in, and the wings ontlined with a double row of narrow Valenciennes lace. The whole is outlined with pink silk. It is to be pinned on the left side of the corsage, and gives the wearer a subtle perfume that is very fascinating.

The Baby's Sweater.

The latest addition to baby's wardrobe is a little white sweater, an exact copy of his athletic father's or golffing mother's. Such sweaters have been sold for some time for children of three years old and upward, bit the baby swaters are something entirely new.

They are very useful little things, and, being made of the finest, softest wool, are a great addition to baby's wardrobe. They can be tucked under the ruffled pillow of the baby carriage, and at any sudden change in temperature can be slipped on easily and without much detriment to the lace trimmed ruffles, and baby can be wheeled home without the danger of catching cold. Being all in one piece, with no opening except for the head, they will not fall open at the neck and expose baby to the dangers of bronchitis or laryngitis.

The Chie Thing in Belts.

Belts not only share honors with dress accessories for this summer's wear, but seem to claim more attention than the gown itself. We all wear belts, be we steut or lean, short or tall, and no one seems to question their becomingness. Jeweled belts have had such a long run, and are now made in such cheap imitations, that the belts of leather and plain metal are more used by women who must have something new. The old-time belting of colored silk in white, black and all the pretty shades of color are now again in vogue, and are simply fastened in front with a clasp. Just at this time, when war is the talk of the day, the leather belt with a clasp in military style is quite the thing for the summer girl. It is usually quite large, and, if possible, must have a history of other war-days.—Woman's Home Companion.
