John Brennan Dies Sue WHOSE CANDIDATE? John Brennan Dies Suddenly. John Brennan died suddenly thi morning at the residence of his daugh ter, Mrs. Daniel Boyle, on Carbon street near Centre. During the night he suf-fored severely from asthma, and a phy-sician was called and relieved him some-what. This morning he arose and felt considerably better. He was making preparations to attend mass at St. Kasi-mer's church, according to his daily custom, when he again weakened, and lying on the lounge, he passed away quiety and peacefully at 7 o'clock. Mr. Brennan was born seventy-eight years ago at Straycastle, County Done-real treband the seven Senator Quay's candidate for gov-ernor put forward a singular claim on his own behalf at Mercer when he said: "I made a canvass of the state for the nomination, the first time such a thing was ever done, and got what I wanted, the nomination." "I made a canvass of the state for the nomination, the first time such a thing was ever done, and got what I wanted, the nomination." The Philadelphia Ledger, at first in-ellined to support Colonel Stone, but now, in the force of new conditions, veering from Swallow to Jenks, lets in the light on this claim of Colonel Stone that he won the nomination by his own canvass of the state. The Ledger says, on the contrary: "He got it from Senator Quay, who at a meeting of himself and a half dozen of his retainers at an obscure senside resort in New Jersey decided that it should be given to Mr. Stone, and to no one else. He was not nomi-nated by the Republican party, nor by the Republican electors of the com-monwealth; he was nominated by, and is today, as he has always been, the personally selected candidate of Sen-ator Quay. His candidacy, as every-one, excepting only himself, apparently knows, represents the Quay machine, Quayism, and not the popular will and choice. Mr. Stone's misinformation on the subject of being himself the first and only gubernatorial aspirant who ever canvassed the state for a nomi-nation by gubernatorial aspirant who ever canvassed the state tor selize their ambition to be nominated for gov-ernor. Mr. Stone is only one of the many who did that, and in the case of Mr. Delamater he may find a pre-cedent for his momination, not by can-vass, but by Mr. Quay." It is part of the history of the Har-risburg convention that nominated Stone that his meager majority of the delegates over the opposing candidates was secured by Sonator Quay's inter-cession. It was ground out of the ma-chine on orders, precisely as Mr. Dela-mater's nomination mas forced eight years ago. In his own person-in his own in-dividuality----- this campaign Mr.
