Returned Soldier to Marry

Returned Soldier to Marry. Charles Dusheck, of Drifton, who join-ed the Twelfth regular infantry during the war, has secured an honorable dis-charge. He returned home last week and will resume his position on the Drif-ton surveying corps. Charles was dis-appointed because the war ended before he had a chance to fight. As soon as Charles received his discharge from Uncle Sam's army he filed an applica-tion for enlistment in the world's great army of Benedicts, and so successful was he that on Saturday next he will join hands with Miss Fanny Fronek, of Eckley, at St. John's Slavonian church, and together they will fight life's battles hereafter. Coal Deals in Lackawanna. Two collieries and 8.450 acres of coal land owned by the Lackawanna Iron and Steel Company have been sold to Joseph B. Dickson, of New York city, who represents the People's Coal Com-pany, which was chartered at Harris-burg recently. Both the colleries are well equipped and the veius of coal that are being mined are the richest in the Lackawanna valley. The new opera-tors will ship over the New York, On-tario and Western Railroad Company, which, since the construction of its coal fields branch a half dozen years ago. has become quite an important factor in the anthracite coal trade. Martin Neeb awoke, feeling distressed and hardly able to breathe. He stag-gered to his feet, but collapsed in a heap on the floor. His wife, aroused by the fall, arose, only to succumb to the same deadly influence. Both were dis-covered prostrate on the floor by a boarder, Mr. Haley, who after much difficulty revived both and secured help. The three children were next visited, and they, too, were found in a similar condition. They were resuscitated after a liberal application of restoratives. New Way to Put Out Mine Fire. A new method of fighting mine fires is being tried at the Pennsylvania Coal Company's No. 6 colliery at Pittston, and in a short time it is thought the fire will be put out without a general flood-ing. At first it was thought that flood-ing was unavoidable. The difficulty was to force water to parts of the mine where the fire rages, as a cushion of gas and air proteets it. was to force water to parts of tha mine where the fire rages, as a cushion of gas and air protects it. It was finally decided to build a dam part way down the slope, which would hold several thousand gallons of water. A gateway was then so constructed that by operating it the water would rush down upon the fire in a mammoth stream. When the dam was emptied the gate would be closed again and more water rushing down the slope displaces the bank of air and gas around the fire and carries the water to the fire.

"Do they contain notices of your school, lodges, and the hundreds of local matters of interest your home paper publishes? Not an item. Do they publish a word calculated to draw trade to your town and your enterprise? And yet there are men who take con-tracted views in the matter, who think if they don't get as many square inches of reading matter in their home paper, they are not getting the worth of their money. It reminds one of the man who took the largest pair of boots in the box because the price was the same as the pair that fitted him. INDIVIDUAL FIGHTING HIS STYLE, AND TIME HASN'T CHANGED IT.
It is Soldom That an Order Is Given Him in Battle-The United states Regular Knows His Trais and Is an Expert at the Game.
The Indian method of fighting, as shown at Leech Lake, is a unique type of warfare and as such is a subject of great interest to foreign military men. The United States regular soldier is an expert at it, and has learned to fight the Indian as the Indian fights him. Military attaches sent by foreign governments to observe the Spanish-American war asked many questions from American officers on this topic, and considered the veteran Indian fighter, represented by such men as Generals Chaffee and Kent, as one of the best types of soldiers.
Individual fighting is the Indian style. It was so in the days before the revolution, and century has not changed it. The Indian has dopted many innovations taught him by the white man. He usually wears "store clothes" in these days and lives in a house, even if it is only a log hut. But he fights as his forefathers did, seeking to gain an dvantage over his foe by ambush or some other form of strategy. The Indian on the warpath are common of a hero than considered many is passing is considered much that an out and die bravely facing the energy.
Indians on the warpath are commanded by chiefs, who are generally elected at a council fire. These chiefs and command squads of from twenty to 100 men, composed of their brothers, some compise and other relatives One.
