Don't try to save on rubbers; it's the most expensive economy in the world, especially just now when everybody is getting the grip.

The Vervain Plant. The plant known as vervain, which is not distinguished for its beauty, and which grows now-a-days utterly disr-arched, was so sacred to the Druids that they only gathered it for their divinations when the great dog-star trose, in order that neither sun nor moon should see the deed.

A photograph of the czarina nursing her baby recently appeared in an Eng-lish newspaper, and when it reached the Russian censor the latter was a much puzzled official. He consulted with the minister of the interior, who was equally perplexed and decided to consuit with the czar. "The best thing I can do." said the Russian em-peror, "is to show this to the ezarina and let her decide." In a few minutes, according to the story, the czar re-turned and said, with a smile, to the minister of the interior: "Her im-pering indexy finds nothing in the ple-ure contrary to law. Let it pass."

hold the ewe lambs to increase their flocks. We hear much of the profit of poul-try, but while a hen is making a dol-lar, asheep will make two on the same allowance of feed. The fleece will pay all the cost of the sheep, leaving the lamb clear profit, and 100 per cent. of it. A surplus of feed and fodder should be secured for the flock on the range. Due provision should be made for shelter probably to be needed. It is better to be sure of this than sorry for neglecting it. No man more than a shepherd needs to keep his head level. He must not get too clated by present good fortune, or become de-pressed by-and-by by a possible change.

SAW THE BIRTH OF AN ISLAND.

SAW THE BIRTH OF AN ISLAND. Cradied in the Indian Ocean and Rocked Like the Glant's Causeway. The British steamer Breconshire which has just arrived at Philadelphia from Java with a cargo of sugar, brings a remarkable tale of a phenomenon witnessed while the vessel was but two weeks out of port and in the southern part of the Indian Ocean. According to the story, which is told m a manner so graphic and so free from exaggeration as to leave little doubt regarding its genuineness, the the Captain and crew saw thrown up by a mighty upheaval of the sub-terranean strata of the ocean's bed a curious island of basaltic formation and which eme into existence almost in the twinkling of an eye. In the part of the Indian Ocean in which the phenomenon was seen there have for years been manifested phenomena suggestive of enormous internal disturbances beyond the solution of the average navigator. There is a portion of this enormous body of water which continually steams with a baleful subhur-impreg-nated yapor of such intensity and volume as to cause this part of the mariners. The scene at this time was inde-scribally weird. The sea, in its super-natural calm, showed a surface so un-movable and glassy that the shadowy outline of the vessel was clearly traced on its bosom by the declining sun, which gleamed like the mouth of a firmace directly ahead, while extend-ing around to all points of the com-pass, except to the south, was the moyable and glassy that the shadowy outline of the vapor rising per-pendicularly from the sea. Shortly after 10 o'clock, when the moon had risen and shed an erratic lastre over the deep, a tremendous booming sound, apparently about three miles to the southward, ap-prised the frightened crew that more marvels were about to occur. At the same moment, borne upon the bosom of an immense wave, the Breconshire mounted vertically to a point at least twenty feet above her former posi-tion on the occan bed and, to the same moment, borne upon the bosom of an immense wave, the Breconshire mounted vertically to a point at least twenty feet above her former posi-tion on the occan bed and, to the samo moment, borne their senses, but they had little time to comment on the bactomo, being ooliged to look to the safety of the vessel. It was many anxious moments before that safety was assured, but apparently, as hough nature had exhausted hersel', the sea in a few moments returned to its wonted trangulity, the erstwhile loom-ing clouds of vapor disappeared.
