WORN BY NAVY OFFICERS.

When Commodore Dewey last winter was promoted from the rank of captain he had to visit the tailor for clothes suitable to his new rank and was obliged to buy a full-dress coat and a cap. The latter cost $15. During the terrible storm at Samoa some years ago, when the naval off-cers lost their belongings, a bill was introduced to reimburse them, and it was figured a licutenant's wearing ap-parel was worth $1,955, an ensign's $1,050, and a rear admiral's $2,000. An admiral's full-dress outfit,including the hat, is worth $765. The epaulets alone cost $165.

hat, is worth $763. The epaulets alone cost $165. During the engagement at Manila Commodore Dewey, as he stood on the bridge directing his forces, wore what is called the service coat, of dark blue serge, shaped to the figure, with a slit on each hip extending on the right side as high as the sword belt. Plain gutta berchs buttons and a high collar fin-ished the coat. His trousers had a strip of gold lace down their outer seams one inch wide. The visor of his cap was trimmed with oak leaves. It takes most of a young naval offi-cer's salary to keep his wardrobe in fixed the coat, the regulations are most was the phase of the strip of different occasions, but the regulations are most exact. The light for this purpose is furnished by an in-candescent lamp placed in a steel cass in the diver's headpleee, the luminous rays being protected by a reflector placed in the rear of the steel case. and the electricity provided by means of a small dynamo carried in the boat above. The photographic apparatus liself consists of a common camera placed within an India rubber envel-ope, the front of which is glass, and the machine is regulated and pictures taken by pressing buttons through the India rubber covering. The result is such as to be pronounced an achieve-ment, for it has been demonstrated that pletures can be taken under water pf clycets at a distance of ten or tweire feet as casily as they can be obtained above in the full light of day.

Machine for Harvesting Grain. On a large wheat farm in California the grain is cut from the stalka, the chaff thrashed cut, and the kernels placed in sacks, which are sewed and piled ready for the mill-all by one huge machine, which is drawn by and gets its motive power from a team of thirty-eight mules.

A SCHOOL INNOVATION. Bath Fubs Introduced in Some European School Houses. A famous German professor of hy-giene declares that above all things our schoolrooms should be provided with a good system of ventilation. And all of us agree with him. We want some arrangement whereby the impure air can be constantly swept out and the pure air introduced. And yet we who have stood in the schoolroom, suc-rounded by nearly a hundred little un-washed bodies, cannot feel satisfied with this arrangement alone. We know by experience that even the best ven-tilating apparatus will fall short in producing exactly an ideal condition of the atmosphere. We had often thought of making the bath tub a part and portion of the education of the children intrusted to our care, in for-mer years, says the Hinstratel Homa Journal, and yet we lacked the neces-sary funds for making the experiment. Many teachers have entertained tho sané views with the same results. But now we find to our surprise that the idea is very old, and, in fact, has been carried into excellent effect long ago in many of the schools of Europe. Warm shower baths, and pleuty of them, have been provided for the chil-dren, with whom this innovation seems to be extremely popular. These baths are practical and economical, as well as hygienic. A school in Gottingen, Germany, took the lead in this direc-tion in 1838, and now some forty cities in Germany, Switzerland and Scandi-navia have such baths in their school ouldings. Reference is made to one foreign school where the facilities for bathing sity children an hour cost ony [3557. The Superintendent of Schools in Springfield, Mass., is urg-ing the introduction of these facilities there, though the people of Springfield ale into vase more private bathatus than those of any other town in tho united States, population considered. The question is a fair one whether the character of the atmosphere in our popular assemblies, as well as our schoolrooms, is not more of a Tact. learn from his mistakes turns the best schoolmaster out of his life. It is not our failures that ruin ns, but our fear and tardiness in making new beginnings after failure. There are many who traverse the world in pirsuit of happiness; but it is within the reach of every man—a contented mind confers it. Useless fretting and worrying bring more gray hairs to the head, wrinkles to the face and carces to the mind, than old age and actual trauble. It is continued temperance which sustains the body for the longest period of time, and which most surely preserves it free from sickness. A life merely of pleasure er shielfly of pleasure is alwaysa poor and worth-less life, not worth the living; always umastifactory in its course; always miserable in its end. It has been said that to the pure all things are pure. Just as thoroughly has it been proved that to the vile, all vileness all the more reprohensible, because it is obviously inpossible of comprehension by minds attuned to less harmonious chords.
