warious papers about the absential will controll of Baltimore & Ohlo, together with exhaustive details of various struggles which are supposed to be in progress between Mr. Hill and to ther people in the Baltimore & Ohlo board. The plain facts of the matter are, first that Mr. Hill does not control Baltimore & Ohlo, nor has he at any time expressed any desire or taken any steps in that direction; and second, that there has at me times become that there has at me times become that there has at me times and the second that there has at me times become the second that there has at me times and the second that there has at me times and the with regard to a selection of general manager, the selection of Mr. Underwood being satisfactory to everybody, wood being satisfactory to everybody. Hill was invited to interest himself in Baltimore & Ohlo, on the theory that he could be of great service to the property as an adviser, and to this end stock of the company. This interest is nowhere near a controlling interest, but is still very large. It may be said without fear of contradiction, that there is entire harmony in Baltimore & Ohlo circles from top to bottom.

Pirs. T. A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes:

"Dear Miss. Pinkham:—Before taking your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untold misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell it was doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

Irs. W. R. BATES, Hansfield, La., writes:

"Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorrhom and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this great change. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

Sensible Dressmaking.

"If costumers and woman's evil genius had entered into a conspiracy to make trouble for the feminine fair ones, the plan couldn't be a greater success than is achieved by the present style of skirt,' said a woman of fashion, who is quite likely to keep abreast of the times when she finds current styles at all satisfactory. "Now, I happen to belong to that class of women to whom an ill-hanging skirt is a positive torture. If my skirts hang ungracefully and I go out on the streets and pass a window where I am reflected, I go home with my business half done, my temper ruined, and my nerves in a state of complete demoralization." The presentiand for making skirts with as few seams as possible is responsible for many uneasy moments. It is out of the question to prevent their sagging and making points all around the skirt, or at least in four places, and the effect is as though a woman was placed on four points like a fourfooted table or chair. This state of things comes to pass after about the second wearing of the costume, and its coming is the signal for a most ludicurous appearance. It is quite useless to cut the points off. They drag down again and quite as awkwardly as before, and then if the goods is affected by dampness and shrinks, the last state of that skirt is worse than the first. Say what one may, there is nothing like the style of half a dozen

Famous Dog Actors.

Of all the illustrious dogs which ever trod the boards, the most famous is Dragon, the property of Capt. Mont-didler in the French army. This gentleman was murdered in the Forest of Bundy by his friend, Lleut, Macaire, of the same regiment. After the crime Dragon showed such a strange aversion to Macaire that suspicion was aroused against him. In the end he confessed his crime, and his accomplice, Landry, in trying to escape, was seized by the faithful animal and bitten to death. This story has held the English stage, on and off, since the year of Waterloo, and it is only three decades since two "stars" named Lamb and Emmett, played in it with their trained dog Carlo at the Marylebone Theater, London. This animal was also the principal performer in a canine drama named "Poor Dog Tray." Eighty years ago there was a theater at Peckham, where a youth named John Baldwin Buckstone made his debut as the injured captain. There is a venerable theatrical legend which deals with a piece called "The Caravan Driver and His Dog." One evening the leading tragedian was taken ill, and the prompter rushed off to the manager to inform him that the play must be changed. "How you alarmed me," said that worthy man, ordering a glass of strong braudy and water to steady his nerves; "the tragedian unwell! I was afraid it was the dog,"—New York Times.

BELLAMYISM SCORES A FAILURE.

Carrying Out the Scheme.

The socialistic community that started a co-operative society near Hastings, British Columbia, three years ago, is a "busted" community. Bellamy's dream, "Looking Backward," was the ideal aimed at by the little band of well-meaning visionaries, who, to the number of 200, left comfortable homes in Vancouver to wander after strange gods in the trackless wilderness of British Columbia.

One hundred thousand dollars, or $500 each, was the amount of eash provided to found the city of Bellamy, as it was called, and those who did not provide money were allowed to pay into the common treasury an equivalent in time-checks in exchange for labor on public buildings. When the social departure was fairly inaugurated a Board of Commissioners was appointed to settle disputes and to teach the doctrines of Bellamy. The colony soon numbered 500 men, women and children. Sawmills, farms and trade shops were started. At first all the men received the same wages. Brains or skill did not count for a cent. Soon those who shirked work lived at the expense of the active toilers and the colony was compelled to start a scale of wages.

Soon after the colony was founded the brainy men ceased to think—the necessity did not exist. There was no spur to ambition, no competition. Then it was discovered that the work done in the shops and mills was so inferior that it was not marketable outside. Many shareholders in the community asked for their money back, but they did not get it. Some deserted. The common eating houses and herding of families in big dwellings led to bickerings and jealousies among the women folk. The men took up the quarrels of the weaker sex and every man's hand was raised against his neighbor.

The Commissioners, who held the cash and arbitrated, were overwhelmed with applications for the administration of justice, monetary and social. The Commissioners were not equal to the occasion and resigned in a body. No members of the community and on their return the members still faithful to the tenets of Bellamy demanded that a division be made of the spoils earned outside.

Then the shrewdest and fittest started up the sawmill and farms again and employed their weaker brethren for wages in defiance of socialistic principles. The community was drifting back into old channels. The ambitious got the reins of power in their hands and all went well for a little while. Then creditors arrived and there was n

Journalism as a Career.

A writer recently stated that journalism has descended into a trade in which there is no room for the superior grade of journalists. This is certainly a sweeping and a harsh criticism. It is questionable if the statement is supported by facts. While conditions have arisen in which some of the work formerly done by the professional journalist is now the task of an intelligent clerk, it does not follow that he has been or can be superseded. The view taken is a pessimistic one, and pessimism is a disease bordering upon melancholia. There are yet many opportunities for the aspiring young man of talent who has adopted journalism as a career. It offers the widest scope for real ability, and is not without substantial reward. Every editor of a paper, no matter how small, with an intelligent effort, can rise to a dignified position in his calling. The demand of all time has ever been for men of brains, and not more so in other spheres of human activity than in the world of letters.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes' time, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make in your own kitchen, a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water and one-half ounces of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minu the Soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire, and cool venient dishes (not tin.) It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.
