The Attempted Assassination.

From the Wilkesbarre Telegraph.
The attempt to take the life of Mr. Lloyd by Constable Gallagher last week, shows to some extent what a feeling exists toward the controller with those who imagine that they have been wrongfully deprived of what they claim is due them from the county. It is a sad state of affairs when a public officer, for doing what he thinks is legal, is to be made the target for the bullets of half-crazed persons who have been thereby offended. But it is possible that the controller himself is somewhat to blame for the position of insecurity in which he is standing today. No honest citizen or taxpayer can object to the policy adopted by the controller to stop the unnecessary and illegal expenditures of their money, but this same policy could be carried out without, we believe, making the many bitter enemies that Mr. Lloyd has made. It is not always the simple act itself that displeases a man so much as the manner in which the act is performed, and it is always better for one in authority to ask a person to do a thing than to command him.

Another factor which has been a power in intensifying the bitter feeling toward the controller has been his inclination to go into public print, being careful to get a commendatory line or two for himself, and at the same time a few lines condemnatory of those who present claims against the county. The justices and constables have, without exception, been denounced far and wide, as the most unprincipled men on earth, and in nearly every case where a man differs with him in regard to a bill, he considers that man dishonest, and believes he is trying to rob the county.

Again, the controller is not altogether alone to blame for the indiscretion he has manifested in the administration of the affairs of his office. There have been a few men, who, to avenge personal and political wrongs, and others high in official places, who desire to make themselves popular with the voters, have advised Mr. Lloyd to pursue the course he has, and encouraged him, in every way, and if they could temporarily injure the reputation of a man, through his office, they were happy. And some of the newspapers have been too anxious to proclaim to the taxpayers the great reforms that the controller has inaugurated, whereby thousands of dollars have been withheld from the thieves and robbers that have infested the court house as county officials, or have been serving as justices of the peace or constables. All the people ask of the controller is that he sees that their money is not wasted, or paid out illegally.

It is to be hoped that the unfortunate occurrence of last week will not deter the controller from doing his duty, but if it shall somewhat affect his personal manner of doing it, then it is not altogether void of good effects, however much it is to be deplored, but this should not be given the least consideration when the time comes for meting out the punishment Constable Gallagher deserves, and he should be given the extreme measure of the law, as a warning to others who may have the same feeling towards the controller as Mr. Gallagher had.

ARBOR DAY TREE PLANTING

A Discussion of Various Methods with a Few Suggestions by an Expert.

In considering tree planting in connection with Arbor Day, the first question to arise is, Where shall we plant? It is obvious that the practical work of Arbor Day can not include forest planting. That is a work so large and special in its nature as to require the combined efforts of persons in an organized capacity, such as a town or county, or State, which shall either do the work outright or give such encouragement and help as will stimulate in individual effort to the requisite degree. Arbor Day observations, to be sure should not lose sight of the fact that we need some thing besides planting trees by the roadside or on the lawn, or here and there one in memory of some distinguished person; something more than the landscape gardener's art in planting appropriately public parks.

These works of minor importance should lead to such a knowledge of the uses of trees in masses—the extensive forests—in connection with climate with the flow of streams and consequently with agricultural operations and with manufactures, in short, with the general interests of household and business life, that in due time there will be developed a sentiment that will be powerful to arrest the wasteful and unnecessary destruction of our forests and insure the planting of them in places from which they have been removed or where they are specially needed. One thing is to be remembered and is calculated to lead effectively to the work of Arbor Day. It is that trees are living and self-propagating things; that if they will but grow, and that they will grow and extend themselves on every hand if not interfered with and thwarted by man. As an illustration of this we see abandoned farms on our hillsides soon filling up with a wood growth. It may not be of the most valuable or desirable character, but it shows what nature is ready to do, and it indicates a direct lesson, which the influence of Arbor Day may make effective.

Let it be understood that on the hills and mountain slopes are worth more for the growth of trees than for agricultural use, or rather that the tree crop is the most appropriate agricultural crop for the hill and mountain slopes, the rocky surfaces which resist the plow and the hoe. Let the farmer learn that if he will but exclude from his woodland the browsing cattle, which are ready to eat off every tender tree as it sprouts from the ground and to break down with their heavy bulk those which have already attained a hopeful size, and if he will cull the inferior trees instead of the best, for his occasional uses, and fill the too wide vacant spaces with a judicious planting, he may soon have a woodland, though it may not have the dimensions of a forest which will be of manifold benefit to him as well as to others and be increasing in value from year to year. This use of elevated and rocky lands, where ordinary agriculture is difficult and comparatively unremunerative ought to be encouraged by the Arbor Day movement. It may and should make itself felt in this direction.

The same is true in reference to many sandy and swampy lands. These will nourish trees and prove a perpetual source of income. Trees, unlike ordinary farm crops, continually improve the quality of the ground on which they grow. The German Government, in its wise and careful management, is constantly buying up the worn-out or impoverished farms of its husbandmen and by stocking them with trees restoring their fertility and fitting them again for agricultural use. On a great many of our light, sandy soils, now left as wind-swept barren fields or yielding only the most meager crops, a growth of that most valuable tree the white pine (Pinus strobus), may be secured in twenty years and even less, of marketable size. There is a great demand for the wood of this tree in its early stages, for the manufacture of staves, for tubs and small casks, as well as for other uses, and many land owners are finding it profitable to raise and market this pine at a comparatively early age.

This is not the place to discuss further the subject of forest planting or forest preservation, unless it be to say that perhaps a greater enemy of the forest than the ax is fire, and that wherever there is regard enough for trees to occasion the observance of Arbor Day there ought to be also consideration enough for the preservation of the forests of the vicinity to inaugurate some well arranged and efficient plan to protect them from the flames which, kindled by accident or carelessness, are not only a detriment to the local owner of the forest but to the whole community, for, in an important sense, the forests are common property. By their beauty, their influence upon climate and water supply, they are of benefit to all who live in sight of them and may be to those more distant from them. All, therefore, ought to be ready to make their preservation a common cause.—Department of Agriculture.

Plateau lands of Spain.
Under the reign of the Moorish caliphs the Iberian peninsula resembled a vast garden, yielding grain and fruit of every known variety in the most perfect quality and in endless abundance. But then the Sierras and the mountain slopes were covered with a luxuriant growth of timber, which was afterward wantonly destroyed under the rule of kings. Now nearly all the plateau lands of Spain are desert-like and unfit for agriculture, because of the scarcity of rain and the want of water. The once delicious climate has become changeable and rough. The average depth of the rivers is greatly diminished. The political decadence of Spain has even been attributed to the destruction of the forests.

"Jock, when ye lie naething else to do, ye may be sticking in a tree; it will be growing, Jock, when ye're sleeping.—Highland Laird of Scotland.

And the Joke Was Retired.
The facetious boarder had the plot laid for a killing joke.
"It's a wonder," he said "that you didn't serve up this hen feathers, and all."
"The next time," said the landlady, with marked emphasis, "I'll serve her all and all."

The Kidneys and Blood

If you want to be well, see to it that your Kidneys and Blood are in a healthy condition. It is an easy matter to learn what state your Kidneys are in. Place some of your urine in a bottle or tumbler, and leave it stand one day and night. A sediment at the bottom shows that you have a dangerous Kidney disease. Pains in the small of the back indicate the same thing. So does a desire to pass water often, particularly at night, and a scalding pain in urinating is still another certain sign.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is what you need. It will cure you surely if you do not delay too long in taking it. Kidney diseases are dangerous, and should not be neglected a single moment.

Read what P. H. KIPP, of Union, N. Y., a prominent member of the G. A. R., says:—"I was troubled with my Kidneys and Urinary Organs and suffered great annoyance day and night, but since using Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy I have greatly improved, and that dreadful burning sensation has entirely gone. I had on my lip what was called a pipe cancer, which spread 'most across my lip, and was exceeding painful; now that is almost well. I also had severe heart trouble, so that it was difficult to work; that is a great deal better. I have gained nine pounds since I commenced taking the Favorite Remedy; am greatly benefited in every way, and cannot praise it too much."

Favorite Remedy is a specific for Kidney, Liver and Urinary troubles. In Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, and Skin and Blood Diseases, it has never failed where the directions were followed. It is also a specific for the troubles peculiar to females. All druggists sell it at $1.00 a bottle.

Sample Bottle Free! If you will send your full postoffice address to the DR. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N. Y., and mention this paper, we will forward you, prepaid, a free sample bottle of the Favorite Remedy, together with full directions for its use. You can depend upon this offer being genuine, and should write at once for a free trial bottle.
