OUT OF TUNE AND HARSH.

Store's Unevences Affects Plano's Sweetness.

The girl had a new piano. She was a musical girl, and it was as nice a piano as could be found. When she had it properly set up and ready for use there was probably not a happier girl. But as she sat down to play a look of discontent and wonder spread over her face. It was strange, but this new piano was certainly out of tune; certain notes sounded like the hammering of a piece of iron. That would never do; she couldn't understand it, either, for certainly that piano had a very sweet tone in the shop. So the piano man was sent for in great haste, and came to see what the trouble was, very much astonished himself. He ran his fingers over the piano, and then, turning, gazed curiously around the room. That is a most curious and impertinent man," thought the girl, as she watched him, his fingers moving over the keys, but his eyes wandering searchingly from one piece of furniture to another. Finally he left the piano, went to a stove in the room, tucked a piece of paper under one leg, and went back to the piano, when, strange to say, every note was as sweet and clear and full as could have been desired, and there was not a suspicion of discord. During the cold weather a stove had been placed in the room, and, not standing evenly, with certain vibrations of the piano it was made to move, and there was not a suspicion of discord. That it is all right now," said the man, as he left the piano, "Only it was a stove man you needed instead of a piano man."

Thick Fogs.

Ancient Warning Against Wine.

The oldest Egyptian papyrus, which contains a series of moral aphorisms of the fifth Egyptian dynasty (3566-3333 B. C.), is said to afford the earliest instance of the moral treatment of intoxication and the first warning in writing against drinking in wine shops. "My son," runs the injunction, "do not linger in the wine shop or drink too much wine. Thou fallest upon the ground; thy limbs become week as those of a child. One cometh to do trade with thee anti findeth thee so. Then say they, "Take away the fellow, for he is drunk.""

Thick Fogs.

They were talking about the recent fogs, and some one stated that his morning train had stopped every half mile on its way to the city, the fog being so thick that it was impossible to see either of the railway banks. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I feel it my duty to write you in regard to what your medicine has done for me. I cannot praise it enough. Since my girlhood I had been troubled with irregular and painful periods and for nearly five years had suffered with falling of the womb, andwhites. Also had ovarian trouble, the left ovary being so swollen and sore that I could not move without pain. Now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, that tired feeling is all gone, and I am healthy and strong."

Apples are much earlier, even in the same locality, when grown on warm, dry and sandy soils than are those produced on clay soils. They are often large and well colored, but lack keeping qualities. The apple trees are usually not as long lived on sandy soil, partly perhaps because such soils lack potash, but quite as often because the dry soil makes a better harbor for the apple tree borer. The beetle that lays the egg for the borer selects dry and high land, because perhaps instinct tells it that the low land may be liable to flood high enough up the tree to destroy the egg before the borer is hatched out of it.

Summer Foliage Plants.

Those who wish to have the beautiful foliage of the canna as decoration for their gardens during the coming season should have the seeds sown at once. Before they are planted the seeds should be soaked for from twelve to twenty-four hours, and should be kept in warm water during that time. Another way to hasten the sprouting in the hard shell. If the first incision does not in a few weeks hasten their development a further opening should be carefully given. These seeds should be sown in shallow boxes and sunk in two or three inches of sand. While they are sprouting the box containing them should be kept in a spot where the temperature will not fall below seventy degrees. The sand requires to be well moistened all the time. When plants four inches high have been grown they may be placed in rich soil. Although the middle of May is the usual time for setting out the plants in the garden, the season will govern the prudent person.

Improvement of Fruits.

There are two kinds of markets to be supplied: First, the open world's market, which handles staples; and second, the special or personal market, which demands quality instead of quantity. This latter market is poorly supplied. Its demands are exacting, but the profits should be proportionately greater than in the world's market. Fine quality and handsome appearance are essential attributes to the fruit product that would cater to the demands of the special market. Fruit growers know that a high degree of coloration in the variety may be accepted as an indication of its fineness of quality. Fine coloration and good quality marka satisfactory adaptation of the individual to its surroundings and suggest good cultural methods. In striving to improve our fruits by what is termed plant-breeding, we should remember that a plant is a collection of individuals with great potential variability. *Also that the best results are usually obtained quickest by working with variable forms, that it is wise to breed for one thing at a time, that it is necessary to establish in the mind an ideal to work toward, and that crossing is only a means to an end, and should be supplemented by vigorous and persistent selection.—Professor John Craig, in New Eugland Homestead.

Old Orchards.
The value of an old orchard must de-

The value of an old orchard must depend upon the character of the trees as much as upon their cultivation and production. There are many old orchards planted with varieties of fruits that have long ceased to have any market value, and the sooner such trees are replaced by new ones the larger the profits will be. Successful gratting of new varieties on old trees may pay where the stock is not too old or shows signs of unusual vitality. But old trees that are beginning to display signs of discrepitude are fit only for the wood pile. They begin to decay in numerous places in a short time, and they harbor insects and vermin, besides spreading fungous diseases around in the orchard.

Well-preserved orchards, however, have trees in them that will continue to produce fruit in paying quantities many years to come, and if they have been grafted with good varieties of apples all the attention bestowed upon them will be rewarded. The pruning of old trees should usually be quite severe unless the work has been attended to annually, and not many useless branches have been permitted to grow. A lot of dead limbs and growths manage to accumulate in old orchard trees, and these should be cleared out at once. No large limbs should be cut away. Let them produce their crop of truit, even if they are what one would allow to grow on young trees. All old bark and worthless twigs removed, the larger suckers should be favored and allowed to develop.

Then harrow the land, scratching it deep enough for clover seeds early in the spring, and later spread over the soil unleached wood ashes, about 100 bushels to the acre. The wood ashes can be applied in May, and they will then be taken up by the trees during the fruit-forming period. Still later, or when the clover gets started well, turn pigs loose in the orchard and let them feed on the grass. They should have movable shelters and places, for if allowed to roam at will over the whole orchard they will kill has much clover as they will eat. In the fall they will eat all the fruit that fal

Did Irish War Cries.

Like the modern cowboy yell of the western troops in the Cuban campaign, the war cries and slogans of the ancient Irish claus often had much effect in inspiring fear in the enemy and courage and enthusiasm in the command. The simplest and most frequent of old Erin's war cries was "Faire, faire," signifying "watch," or "look out." It was precautionary signal and was commonly written "Fairah," 'From it the modern "hurrah" is supposed to have been derived. Another cry was "A bualdh," which meant "to the victory." It was pronounced "aboo," and followed the name of the clan, or leader, according to circumstances, like "O'Neill aboo," or "Clann Conall aboo." Frequently "a bualdh" is construed incorrectly in modern English to mean "forever." That translation applies to "go brath," but not "a bualdh." The famous Irish cry of "Fag an bealach," meaning "clear the way," scared the spunk out of the French soldiery in the Peninsular war.

Magnetism in Bricks.

From time to time experts have noticed certain unexplainable peculiarities in magnetic instruments in various buildings. It is now declared, as the result of experiments and investigations, that the vagaries are due to the presence of magnetism in bricks. They are made of earthy matter containing a greater or less proportion of magnetite, or magnetic iron ore.

VIRTUE IN IVY LEAVES.

Used for Making Old Gowns New Again.

A woman in England has recently discovered the peculiar virtues of the ivy leaf as a means of bringing uppristine freshness to a soiled, faded or spotted gown. This is her recipe: Pick about twenty ivy leaves, young, green ones by choice, wash them carefully and place them in a jug or basin. Add about one pint of boiling water, cover up the basin or jug, and leave all to soak for two or three hours, when the cleanser will be ready for use. Meanwhile the garment must be thoroughly brushed inside and out, and all untidy braid or lining removed from the bottom. When ready, spread it on the table and carefully sponge it with the ivy water. It must then be wrung out dry, when it will be found to have recovered its former color and to look quite like new. Black silk may be cleaned in the same manner, but it needs more care. If the silk is in the breadths it must be lightly sponged and then tightly rolled over a cloth wound round a roller and left to dry. Black lace may also be renovated when soiled or brown with age by sponging it with ivy water, and then rolling it over a cloth wound round a collar. It should not be ironed.

Not Meant for Him.

The public is invited to sympathize with a quiet and retiring citizen of New York who, says the Sun, occupied a seat near the door of a crowded cable car when a masterful stout woman entered. Having no newspaper behind which to hide, he was fixed and subjugated by the glittering eye. He rose and offered his place to her. Seating herself—without thanking him—she exclaimed in strident tones that reached to the farthest end of the car: "Say, what do you want to stand up there for? Come here and sit on my lap." "Madam." gasped the man as his face became scarlet. "I—I fear I'm not deserving of such an honor." What do you mean, you dude?" shrieked the woman, "You know very well I was speaking to my little niece behind you."
