A Famors Inkpot.

If inkstands could speak, there would be no lack of mediaeval gossip in Venice at the moment, for the famous inkpot of those respectable and stringent signors who composed the Council of Ten has just been discovered. This curious bronze vase rests on a dish which measures sixteen inches across, and is variously embellished with angelic figures and the ominous triplet of letters, "C. D. D.," which stand for Consiglio dei Diece—a legend which, even in this workaday centuryend, owns some thrills and shuders of its own. Out of this quaint triangular goblet once issued the inexorable sealed orders that walled up women with angelic figures and the onitions tripled of letters, **C. D. D. with the commonwealth and claimed that present the commonwealth and claimed that the commonwealth and claimed the leads to the commonwealth and claimed that the commonweal organizations in the region and its progress is pleasing to its many friends.

Ignatz Kosmela, the minor entombed in the Plymouth mine, was rescued at noon on Thursday, after being luprisoned for seventy-six and a half hours. He was in good physical condition, having notsuffered from want of food or drink.

The second rendition of the program of exercises by the pupils of St. Ann's parchial school was attended on Friday evening by an audience nearly as large as was present the first evening. The program was successfully carried out.

Albert Smith, of Jeddo, a car runner, was injured in No. 5 colliery on Friday. He was caught between a car and a proj and severly squeezed about the breist and shoulder. He was taken to the Miners' hospital and his condition is dangerous.

Preparations for the Fourth of July parade are still being made by the Citzens' Hose Company. The demonstration should be a large one, as the day is one upon which every organization in town should lend its assistance to make a success.

Cyrus L. Pershing, president judge of the Schuklell courts, has resigned
