RECORCICIC/COCICIC/COCIC/COCIC/COCIC A Popular Trimming. The deep flounces extending from a bip yoke or from the belt to the hem of the skirt are a very popular trim-ming for summer silks, crepe de chine, grenadine, barege, nuns' veil-ing, etc. This fashion gives the economical woman an opportunity to utilize skirts already in her posses-sion, to which she can add triple flounces of new material. Mull and Lace Neeklets. Mull ties edged with lace are still worn, but the ends of lace are much longer, so that very little of the mull shows. Some of these ties have just enough mull in them to reach around the throat, and then the bows and ends are of lace. There is a white Chantilly lace, which is very expensive and quite rare, and makes beautiful ends for these ties. But there is no should be used as both the light and heavy kinds are correct. Gossip. A V-shaped yoke and stock are of insertings and groups of fine tucks alternating. A deep flounce of Valenciennes forms a bertha around this, and a chou of green relvet catches inp the lace at the left side. The elbow sleeves are perfectly tight and fin-ished by a shallow frill of lace. The skirts falls close and plain almost to the ground, ending in a point in front and two deep points at the two sides. The side points are deeper than that in front. A band of insertion, bordered by rows of fine tucks, runs down the front and forms a border for the edge of the tunic. Bolow the tunic a flounce of tucks and insertions, finished by a full frill of beautiful Valenciennes, finishes the simple, elaborate cos-tume.

too popular shirt-waists. Just how to finish a shirt-waist at the thront and belt is always a problem, particularly if a woman is inclined to be stort. The broad belt and the high stock-col-lar are very well for alight young girls, but as shirt-waists are supposed to be correct for older women, it is time that something else was found to make them possible. The new style of wear-ing a belt made of a piece of soft satin ribbon quite wide, and then putting the ends of that ribbon into the buckle, is a vory satisfactory fashion. The ribbon is soft enough to draw down at the back, where it can be fastened to be skit and waist. The buckle, quite a small one, can be in silver studded with precious stones, or in emamel, oxidized silver, or fire gilt. The de-signs are charming, and the buckles most inexpensive. These waist buckles, however, are not so fastening as for ribbon just at the throat. The idea is to have a piece of ribbon from two to four inches in width and three-quarters of a yard in length, or even longer if necessary, so that it will go around the neck twice. NOVEL TEMPERANCE SCHEME How a Manufacturer Secured a "Dry"

NOVEL TEMPERANCE SCHEME, Novel Temperance Secured • "Dry" Town in Indian. A manufacturer at Three Oaks, Ind., has just inaugurated a temperance re-form in that town that is at once novel and apparently practicable, says the Cleveland Leader. This man, who has several hundred employes, recently of-fered to pay into the village treasury annually an amount equal to the li-cense fees derived from the saloons if the authorities would abolish the sa-loons and make the town "dry." If the offer was refused he threatened to remove his factory to another town. The proposition was submitted to the council and it in turn referred the mat-ter to the people at a special election. The result was an overwhelming vic-tory for temperance. The saloons will be closed, the village treasury will re-ceive the annual payment promised, and the factory will not be removed. Of course it is not difficult to under-stand why this manufacturer desired the closing of the saloons. If ep rob-ably realized that he could get better work from his employes if they were always sober, and will doubtless dis-cover that the money paid for the closing of the saloons is well invested. beige answers almost every purpose with her in the matter of dreeses. Occasionally, when she discusses clothes with her friend, she's im-mensely interesting. Winter before last, when many feathered picture hats were being so nuch worn, a group of college girls, with Grace Mc-Kinley among them, fell to chatting about the taste involved in wearing so many plumes. "I don't like such a load of feathers," Grace McKinley re-marked. "I think eight are about the right number," and as she spoke she nodded in approval of her dictum her well-shaped head, upon which was balanced a hat having just eight plumes. He Interpolated a Protest. "Speaking of handwriting," said an old newspaper man to arepresentative of the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "the worst in the profession nince the Greeley myth was that of Colonel J. F. Barton. The Colonel was a South-ern man; he died in Alabama in '97, and a dozen years ago he was famous throughout the Middle West as an editorial writer of great power and versatility. The queer thing about him was that his normal penmanship looked almost like copper plate--a beantiful flowing script, but let him get excited or hurried, and it double disconnted the chicken tracks on Cleopatra's needle. "There used to be a funny story about him, current among printers, and Til tell it for what it is worth. One night, according to the yarn, a tramp printer drifted into a Western office where the Colonel was in charge and applied for a job. The foreman put him to work, and he pegged along all right until just before the hour for piong to press, when Barton sent in a hurry-up editorial based on a late news telegram. "Nearly all the printers had left, so the new man got a piece of the 'copy,'a page from about the middle. He carried it to his case, looked at it again, and finally put it in position be-fore him and began to snatch up type. 'Read that in your sticks!' yelled the foreman, 'we ain't got time for proofs!' And when the new man carried his maiter over it was 'dumped' into the forms without further cere-mony. "What he had set up ran about the fither. "Speaking of handwriting," said an

This remarkable paragraph, appearing without rhyme or reason in the middle of Barton's brilliant editorial, aston-ished the readers of the paper next morning. They grew beautifully and sent out a glori-ous foliage of dark-red leaves, with deep red veins in them, which he ad-mired very much. A tornado came and cut them off close to the ground. The poor farmer was discouraged. It was too late to plow up the field and plant another crop. His whole spring labor was wasted and all his money was gone. He decided that he would give up farming, advertise his place for sale and go back East to his wife's folks. Before they had finished packing, how-ever, he noticed, new healthy shoots coming from all the beets, and told his wife he guessed they would better hold up awhile and see what happened. SYRUPOF FIGS

An Up-to-Date Chinese Weapon. In connection with the order of the Empress to place the army on a war footing so as to drive out the German and Italian invaders it is interesting to know that an ingenious Chinese military man has recently invented a weapon which the mandarins at Pekin think will cause terror in the hearts of the invaders, and an order has been issued for the manufacture of a large supply to be distributed throughout the army. According to a description that appears in the Chinese papers this terrible weapon is a combination of spear and shovel. At one end of a pole there is a large, sharp pike, such as knights of mediaeval times used to carry. At the other end there is a shovel, or spade, with a blade about eight inches wide, which can be used both as an intrenching tool and NEVER IMITATED DUALITY. THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS about eight inches wide, which can be used both as an intrenching tool and as a weapon. It is especially handy in beheading prisoners, and all the Chinese soldier has to do is to stick the pike at one end of his pole through the body of his enemy, and turn around and cut off the head with the shovel. Instead of sending the inventor of this terrible weapon to Tho Hague to represent China at the peace conference, the Empress Dowager re-warded him with a button of the sec-ond class.
