A hearty laugh indicates a degree of good health obtainable through pure blood, but one person in ten has pure blood, the other nine should purify the blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then they can laugh first, last and all the time, for

Farm For Sale.
One of the very best hill farms in Waitsfield, Vermont, seven (7) miles from railroad, one-half (1/2) mile from steam sawmills, comprising 200 acres, half of which is under the highest state of cultivation. Plenty of good timber and excellent pastures. Sugar orchard of 2000 trees, equipped with twelve hundred tin tubs two years old; the balance wooden tubs newly painted and in first-class condition. Latest improved evaporator; iron arch, large sugaring-off arch, sugar-house containing 60 cords four-foot dry wood; three years' supply stove-wood on hand. Barns in first-class condition, one nearly new, 175 ton silo; abundance of small fruit; splendid orchard of grafted trees. The place kept through last winter forty (40) head of cattle, seven horses and other stock; never-failing water at barns and dwelling. Complete set of tools of the best make. The whole place is well fenced, and thoroughly well kept up. Dwelling is first-class; two stories, twelve rooms, recently painted inside and out. The whole would be sold at a great bargain, on account of death in family. For further information apply to F. A. Joslyn, Waitsfield, Vermont.

There are cotton mills in 43 of the 97 counties in North Carolina, the total number in the State being 205.

LAWN PLAYHOUSES

Large Enough for Three or Four Little Girls and Their Dolls.
The latest novelties in the smart toy shops are large playhouses, to be set upon the lawn for the use of the little girls of the family. These come in very pretty designs, counterparts of the Queen Anne cottages in which the little mothers really live. They are large enough to accommodate three or four little girls and their dolly families. The interiors consist of one large room, which is furnished with small chairs, tables, couches, beds, bureaus, bookcases and so on, all of which articles of furniture come in very attractive forms and can be purchased at any of the large shops dealing in children's toys and games. These houses will be welcomed gladly by the little misses, for they open out a vista of afternoon teas, parties and receptions at which the hostess can play at being a real live mamma and social leader. Placed in a shaded corner of the lawn, or out in the orchard, the girls of the family will pass many a happy hour when the sun is too hot for outdoor exercise.

Let Them Alone.
People over 30 would do well to give up milk and eggs in any form as a diet," said a well-known physician. "These are the structure-forming food of animals which mature in a short time, and when taken in quantities by human beings whose structures have already formed they tend only to the hardening and aging of the tissues. I have seen people who were beginning to find stair climbing difficult, and who were losing their elasticity, much benefited by eliminating these articles from their diet. That there has been a great increase in the duration of life below the age of 30 statistics prove, but beyond that period there has been no improvement. In my opinion, the person over 30 would have as good a chance to preserve life as the child just beginning its struggle with existence if he would only suit his diet to his years."

Where the Great Forests Are.
A table in Science shows that Canada leads all other countries in the extent of her forests. She possesses 799,230,720 acres of forest-covered land, as against 450,000,000 acres in the United States. Russia is credited with 498,240,000 acres, about 48,000,000 more than the United States. India comes next with 140,000,000. Germany has 34,347,000 acres, France 23,466,450, and the British islands only 2,835,000. The table does not include Africa or South America, both of which contain immense forests. It may surprise some readers to learn that the percentage of forest-covered land is larger in several European countries. Germany for instance, than in the United States.

NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

Fans Like Fluttering Blossoms.
Pretty fans to carry with one's pale-hued frocks are made to represent different flowers. The sticks are all a-flutter with silken petals, and at the top of each stick is a full-blown flower, rose, lily, pansy, etc., made of silk. The effect is very odd and dainty.

The Popular Jewelry.
Some of the most fashionable jewelry is found at the curio shops where odd buckles, watch fobs and queer rings are shown. There is a great craze for opaque jewels set in old silver. Turquoise, jade, coral and also pearls are most attractive set in oxidized silver and gun metal.

For Autumn Wear.
Some of the autumn models are very stylish and becoming to women who like to appear dressy. A gown of mastic cloth has a bolero of pale mastic satin stitched in a new and odd French manner; the edges are strapped with cloth, and the revers curl back in a novel way to show a vest of white silk with habs fastened down the centre by cross bars of gold and crystal drops. A smart little coat to be worn with this dress is of pale mastic cloth, trimmed with curved bands of stitching outlined by a tiny black chenille and white silk braid; the fronts are caught together by links of silver filigree, and the revers and collar are faced with white silk prettily patterned with black.

Her Husband's Partner.
"Among what are known as the laboring classes in this country the woman is the financial head of the house," writes Frances Evans, of "The Wife and Her Husband's Business," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "The man is the wage earner; the woman who is considered a steady man hands over his wages to his wife when he is paid off. She handles the money and directs the financial interests of the entire family. The women of that class estimate a man's character by his willingness to trust his earnings to his wife or mother. The wife of a lay laborer is compelled by necessity to be a partner in the matrimonial concern; but let the husband of one of these women rise gradually or suddenly into large means and wide business interests and you will see her little by little accustom herself to co-dwelling in the form of servants and luxuries. She is no longer compelled to find ways and means, while her husband takes pride in turning her into a fine lady, and so destroys the healthy partnership of former days without offering her compensation for the earlier confidence between them."

Rosa Bonheur and Her Pupils.
The house in the Rue d'Assas which Rosa Bonheur owned for forty years is to be bought and torn down by the municipality of Paris. After the artist removed to By, near Fontainebleau, the house in the Rue d'Assas was converted into a temporary home for poor artists. Men and girls were received, but no one could stay longer than two weeks—just time enough to enable them to find cheap and suitable accommodations. The house was surrounded with flowers, an oasis in a dull, dirty street, and at one time Mme. Rosa's menagerie added to the din of the neighborhood. A monkey, dogs, cats, a sheep, a goat and a pet lamb were among the smaller "models" who were introduced to the visitor by their mistress.

An amusing story is told of Mme. Rosa's influence over a class of young girls who had been her father's pupils and in whom she took a great interest. She dressed in men's clothes and wore her hair cropped closely, like a boy's, but the girls of her drawing-class adored Mme. Rosa, and their sole ambition was to resemble her. One morning Rosa Bonheur entered the class room with her firm step and expansive smile. She stopped short and raised her hands in horror. "What folly is this?" she cried. "Have you all gone mad?" They had all cut their hair short to do honor to their beloved mistress' closely cropped pate! It was not a joke. Rosa was furious. "Good-by, my little imbeciles. I will not teach such a room full of scoundrels," she said. "When your hair grows again you may send for me," and she left them. It took many tears and a committee of penitent short-haired young "imbeciles" to placate her, but they never tried to imitate Mme. Rosa's oddities of dress again.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

One Way Women Earn a Living.
"It is a custom," said a well-known hotel man, "for managers of some seaside and mountain hotels to employ women to introduce guests to one another. A clever woman of tact can earn from $15 to $25 a week and board at this. She must be educated, tactful and pleasant, and must have the rare faculty of being able to ingratiate herself into the good graces of the women guests and introduce them to others, so as to make them feel at home, and provide company for those who otherwise might be lonely during their stay. There is no better advertisement for a hotel or summer resort than a good newspaper to get people to patronize the hotel, and the next best thing is to treat them so well that they'll go away and talk about the hotel to their friends and return again themselves. "When a man and his wife arrive at a hotel they do not readily make acquaintances, because they do not know who is who. The proprietor or manager has not the time to introduce people. If he has a smart woman to attend to this all will go well. She keeps a sharp lookout for all arrivals. Of course, in a big hotel she can't wait on all. The long-term guests are first sought out. The women folks meet in the corridors, parlors, porticos, etc., and a woman of tact will not find it difficult to approach new women guests. Of course, this introducer or entertainer. She is recognized simply as a guest staying at the hotel. She must have a husband who is employed or in business or in a profession. I know a lawyer's wife who is thus engaged. He is perfectly willing that she should earn a fee in this respectable way. Then I know a doctor's wife who has a good place at a mountain hotel. The doctor is the physician of the house. A doctor's wife, if clever, can make her services invaluable. You know the doctor and the doctor's wife are public property at a hotel, so far as their services are concerned. It is interesting to watch a clever woman at work, introducing people. It is so deftly accomplished, and the result is so satisfactory that life becomes pleasant at a resort. I have seen a clever woman sit on the portico with a woman she knew. In less than a half hour this same clever woman would be surrounded by half a dozen women who were chatting and laughing, and yet were strangers at dinner during the evening before. But it must all be done with tact, judgment and discrimination. An introducer or entertainer must not be forward. Some women do not desire introductions. Others wish to be consulted before introduction. The clever woman can readily learn who desire to know people and have speaking acquaintances at least during their stay at the hotel. It can all be so deftly done that not a single guest will ever have a suspicion that her kind friend is a paid entertainer of the hotel manager.—New York Sun.

Of the recorded ministers of the Society of Friends 143 are women.
Dr. Mary Sherman is a member of the Board of Health of Brookfield, Mass.
Queen Margherita of Italy owns a lace handkerchief that is valued at $30,000.
For twenty years Mrs. A. R. Long has been postmistress at Charlotteville, Va.
There are two Scotch peeresses, the Baroness Kinross and Baroness Gray, who is the wife of MacLaren Smith.
A new woman's club has been formed in London to which no one under six feet in height is admitted.
Miss Hirsch, the twelve-year-old daughter of the late Baron Hirsch, inherited nearly $35,000,000 from her father's estate.
At the Emporia (Kan.) State Normal School one of the girls is known to her chums as "Postscript." Her real name is Adeline Moore.
Thirteen nurses gave their lives to the hospital work in the late war, and died as truly for the country as any soldier who fell by a bullet.
The wife of Grand Duke Sergius Alexandrovitch of Russia, the sister of the present Zarina, is known to possess great histrionic talent.
Mlle. Lucie Faure, founder and President of the League of Children of France, has secured a place in the Exposition for children's exhibits.
The girls' clubs of several Southern Kansas towns have resolved never to marry a young man unless he served with the famous Twentieth Kansas Regiment.
The czar's three-year-old daughter, the Grand Duchess Olga Nikolaevna, is the owner of a doll whose frock is ornamented with priceless emeralds and fastened with gold pins.

Fashion's Fads and Fancies.
The rage for spangles has resulted in net tunics, embroidered in tinsel. The smart autumn riding habit is of whipcord in a new herringbone weave.
Sashes are in style again. The new ones are of flowered ribbon, broad and with fringed ends.
Mourning hats for young girls are of dead black chip, with wide brims, and trimmed with plain white tulle or tulle dotted with black.
Black point d'esprit net continues to be in great use, both for making new toilets and fancy waists, and for freshening gowns and bodies of black satin, taffeta, faille, Indian silk and grenadine.
A new kind of mousseline that is said not to crush as easily as ordinary mousseline is called mousseline-chiffon. It has been inserted with needle-run laces, painted, pleated and ruffled, and is said to hold its own bravely.
The "everyday" hat for fall is the Alpine. Its new shape is more than ever on the masculine order, the only difference being that the dent is not quite so deep, while the brim spreads more. Soft bands with rosettes will be used as a trimming.
Foulards without number are being made. This silk was never prettier or more popular. A pretty way to make a foulard is to use a wide lace panel on the skirt and a lace yoke on the bodice. The gowns of this silk are all dressy and intended for afternoon costumes.

RETROSPECTS.

I met her in a glare of light,
One May, it was a regal night.
And she was stately,
In form and face she looked a queen—
I don't remember having seen
Her equal lately.
But Sue, in spite of royal pose,
At heart was tender as the rose,
And soon confided
That some old gypsy once had read
Her fortune, and "The Man," she said,
Would come as I did.
I blessed that fortune-teller then,
And pitied those tin-plate men,
Whom Sue had slighted,
I knew they must be in distress,
In black despair and nothing less—
Indeed, benighted.

To-day I'm one of that sad crew,
And yet can smile in spite of Sue—
She was delicious!
I hear she's found another "flame,"
"Beneath the light" (the way I came),
Nor is suspicious.
The fortune-teller seems to know
The way they come, but how they go
Is more confusing.
Yat, come and go, you know, they must,
And I, at last, can find it just
A bit amusing!

FASHIONS CHANGE.

And It Is Now the Fashion to Get Unmarried.
New York Tribune: A group of little girls, from 12 to 14, were talking with each other one day on Bailey's beach at Newport, a few days ago, and a stranger curious to hear what the children of the elect conversed about, took a seat on the sand in their neighborhood. They were talking of the future, as children of their age are wont to do, and, of course, the prospective bridegroom came in for a large share of their attention. "Yes, I shall marry," announced unquestionably the beauty of the party, a lovely girl of 13, "but," she added with calm conviction, "I do not think I shall stay married long. I get tired of people so easily. I shall probably get a divorce after a few years. Her sentiments did not seem to excite any surprise or disapproval, but one of the group said timidly: "My mother thinks it is very wrong to be divorced. She says it is a solemn vow for better or worse, and if it is for worse, why people must stand it." The other laughed mockingly, and the first speaker who seemed to be the spokesman for the party answered with the wearied air of a woman of the world, which she had successful copies from some admired friend of her mother's, "How funny you are, Margery, with your old-fashioned ideas. Fashions change in marriage like in everything else, and just now it is the fashion to get unmarried whenever you want to."

Spiritualists Disport Without Spirits.
Spiritualists had a jolly picnic at Braintree, Mass., with baseball, wheelbarrow and potato races, and other wholesome outdoor sports, with not a cabinet or a screen in sight. Now, if the spirits had consented to appear under such auspices through the mediumship of the contestants in the potato race, for example, many skeptics might be gathered into the fold of spiritualistic belief, but there was no manifestation of the supernatural on that cheerful day. For some reasons all spirits, whatever may have been their character during the mortal life, show an exclusive partiality for darkness and slow music when summoned back to earth.
A Handsome Admission.
England is the country which holds the record for the consumption of alcohol. Englishmen, and even Englishwomen, drink enormous quantities of alcohol, and the vice is even more prevalent in Ireland, where it has assumed unheard-of proportions. But we must not flatter ourselves that we are much better in France. Unhappily alcoholism is increasing alarmingly in our country.—Bordeaux La France.

MOTHERHOOD is woman's natural destiny. Many women are denied the happiness of children through some derangement of the generative organs. Actual barrenness is rare. Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the overcoming of cases of supposed barrenness. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency is vouched for by multitudes of women.
Mrs. E. WOLFORD, of Lone Tree, Iowa, writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had one child which lived only six hours. The doctor said it did not have the proper nourishment while I was carrying it. I did not feel at all well during pregnancy. In time I conceived again, and thought I would write to you for advice. Words cannot express the gratitude I feel towards you for the help that your medicine was to me during this time. I felt like a new person; did my work up to the last, and was sick only a short time. My baby weighed ten pounds. He is a fine boy, six weeks old and weighs sixteen pounds. Your medicine is certainly a boon in pregnancy."
Mrs. FLORA COOPER, of Doyle, S. Dak., writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Ever since my last child I suffered with inflammation of the womb, pains in back, left side, abdomen and groins. My head ached all the time. I could not walk across the floor without suffering intense pain. I kept getting worse, until two years ago I wrote to you for advice, and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had not finished the first bottle before I felt better. I took four bottles, and have been strong and perfectly healthy ever since. And now have two of the nicest little girls."

PILES
"I suffered the tortures of the damned with protruding piles brought on by constipation with which I was afflicted for twenty years. I ran across your CASCARETS in the town of Nowell, Ia., and never found anything to equal them. To-day I am entirely free from piles and feel like a new man."
