While at Nanticoke the reporter met a furniture broker who had just pur-chased the furniture of nine families. a furniture broker who had just purchased the furniture of nine families, who were compelled to dispose of it to secure money with which to pay their car fare to the soft coal regions. The furniture dealer stated that there is much suffering among many of the families, some of them being in need of the necessaries of life.

County Officials to Be Petitioned.

An important and decisive step has been taken by the friends of the late M. F. Corcoran, of Duryea, looking up the apprehension of his murderers. The anthracite shipments to the we ontinue extremely heavy, and shi continue extremely heavy, and shippers are rushing coal forward as fast as possible. The chartering of a large number of big carriers by the ore interests promises to take out of the trade a large number of vessels which were relied upon to assist in moving the heavy shipments contemplated.

Mitchell's All Star Players.

The above players will be with us all this week, opening tonight with the sensational drama, "The Philadelphia Detective." The theatre-going public will pleasantly remember this organization from last season, when it played here one night during its week at Hazleton. The company has a number of good plays and the specialties rendered between the acts are making a hit wherever they are produced. The prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents, permit everybody to go each night.

Tonight will be ladies' night, when special tickets will sell at 15 cents, if secured before 7 p. m. at McMenamin's store. Only one matinee will be given during the week, Saturday, October 28. One price to everybody. 10 cents for any seat in the house. Mitchell's All Star Player nies Have More Orders Than The Can Fill at the Prevailing High Prices But Miners' Wages Are Far Below Just Figures.

So strong is the demand for anthracite coal in Philadelphia that the Lehigh Valley Coal Company has refused to take any more orders for delivery of coal until some of those they have are filled. Other companies have also refused orders in Philadelphia and as the result of this condition dealers are companding their own prices. There has manding their own prices. There has not been such a demand for anthracite

Our Ever Untiring Efforts To Do Better.

To give our patrons the biggest possible values for their money, is the key of our great success. We are not satisfied to stand still, but are forever forging ahead, forever trying to make the values bigger and the prices smaller. We are continually scouring the markets for the very best of dependable merchandise, and buying, as we do, in immense quantities, we are enabled to sell clothing as cheap as the average merchant can buy.

This season we have been more active than ever. Our grand array of Clothing for Men, Boys and Children proves that it is the greatest assortment that has ever been shown to the purchasifg public of this town. And we have been farsighted enough to anticipate the advance all the clothing merchants are complaining about and placed our orders much earlier than usual. We can, therefore, sell clothing at the old prices, or make you a suit or overcost
