Tells no sweeter story to humanity than the announcement that the health-giver and health-bringer, Hood's Sarsaparilla, tells of the birth of an era of good health. It is the one reliable specific for the cure of all blood, stomach and liver troubles.

The Baltimore and Ohio South Western Railroad placed in service several months ago five large ten wheel compound passenger engines for use on fast trains between Cincinnati and St. Louis. The performance of these engines has been eminently satisfactory and up to the highest expectation.

The same line has also in service 50 consolidation compound freight engines which provide ample power for the entire line in addition to what was already in use. The compound engines were an experiment but hard service has proved that they are entirely successful and show a saving of 10 per cent. In fuel as compared with simple engines of the same type. Exhaustive tests were made with both the simple and compound locomotives before the order for the entire lot was placed with the result vastly in favor of the compound locomotives.

Richest Gold Mine in the World. The Band Barton and Albion gold mine, under the town of Ballarat, in Australia, has yielded more than fifty millions as the value of its output of gold since it was discovered about thirty years ago. It is the most productive gold mine yet known. Its supply of paying quartz seems practically inexhaustible, and as the vein is extensive, being spread over much territory, the mine bids fair to last for centuries. The work in the Ballarat gold mine is said to be much safer as well as more comfortable than that of the workers in a coal mine. At Ballarat there are no noxious gases and no danger from explosions. Air is forced into the workings through various shafts. In the Transvaal rich and regular deposits were discovered in 1886 in the Witwatersrand. The reefs are estimated to contain nearly 100,000,000 tons of ore, the gold of which is said to be worth $45,000,000. From eighty to a hundred years must elapse before the field is worked out.

Don't Forget Remembered. The Advocate of India tells of a curious way of rejoicing. The Nawab of Rampore being blessed with a daughter, rejoicings were taking place in his state, and a week's pay was deducted from every state official in commemoration of the event.

THE very word "operation" strikes terror to a woman's soul.

Nearly always these operations become necessary through neglect.

If the menses are very painful, or too frequent and excessive, get the right advice at once and stop taking chances. It will cost you nothing for advice if you write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for it, and if you let the trouble run along it will surely cost you a great deal of pain and may mean an operation.

MISS SARAH J. GRAHAM, Sheridanville, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I had suffered for several years with female troubles and doctored until I was discouraged. I felt wretched and tired of living. I had disease of kidneys, bladder trouble, dropsy and bloating, had womb trouble and a large tumor had formed; in fact all my organs were out of fix.

"Seeing a woman's letter praising your remedies, I wrote to her and she begged of me to try it, telling me all that it had done for her. I bought six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now cannot express my gratitude to you. The tumor began to come away in pieces and I got better all the time. I believe now that I am entirely cured.

"My doctors could not believe it at first, as they all had told me that my case was a hopeless one, and no human power could do me any good. They were astounded. If I can say anything that can help other women, I shall be glad to."

It is not safe to wait until the last moment. Head off trouble by prompt attention to it. Don't be satisfied without Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

Home for Families of Bandits. Not actuated by remorse, but by pure philanthropy, Jim Jenkins, hunter of outlaws, has concluded to devote all his money to the maintenance of a home for the orphans and widows of men he has run to earth, in particular, and of criminals of the great Southwest in general. Jim Jenkins, now of Kansas, is now 65 years old and has spent forty years as a scout and hunter of bandits and train robbers. In this way he has made about $50,000. Among the distinguished outlaws he has chased were Jesse James and his brother, Bob Ford, Bill Dalton and Bill Cook, while he was the leader of the band that caught Cherokee Bill in 1895. In the Dalton raid in Coffeyville, Kas., Jenkins was shot eight times. He estimates his bag of bad men at about 150. The home, which is being built on a 5,000-acre farm owned by Jenkins, near Pryor Creek, I. T., is to cost $20,000.—Buffalo Express.

Long swim. Ernest Whitehead captured a young seal near Anacapa Island, California, recently, and took him on board his ship, says Our Dumb Animals. As the vessel started the mother seal was noticed swimming about, howling piteously. The little captive barked responsively. After reaching the wharf at Santa Barbara the captive was tied up in a jute sack and left loose on the deck. Soon after coming to anchor the seal responded to its mother's call by casting itself overboard, all tied up as it was in the sack. The mother seized the sack, and with her sharp teeth tore it open. She had followed the sloop eighty miles.

RECOGNIZING THE DRUM MAJOR

He Will Have a New Uniform, But Less Decorated Finery.

The drum major, the highly decorated show piece of the military band and the delight of the small boy, has received official recognition. For several years the drum major has been slighted, and it was considered good form to speak of him as unnecessary. The National Guard bands took their cue from the army, and the drum majors of the regimental bands became less conspicuous, their uniforms less elaborate, and in some instances the bands dispensed with the services of the man with the gold lace embroidered red coat. But it seems that the army has recognized the fact that the drum major is necessary, and a new style of dress has been prescribed for him in orders issued from the War Department. He will carry a baton wound with silken cords and tassels, and the color will designate the arm of service: Cavalry, yellow; artillery, scarlet; infantry, blue and white intermixed. The mounted drum majors will carry swords instead of batons.

The shako, which has always been the headpiece of the drum major, has been prescribed by the new regulation, which describes this important article of dress in these words: "Black lynx skin shako, with plume and tassels of the color of the arm of service, and leather chin straps with brass scales and side buttons."

Fatter Jonathan, Thinner John. The cartoon Yankee, lean, lank and slab-sided, is vanishing with the century. So is the cartoon Englishman, big, burly and obese.

The tailors of the country report an increased girth of one and a quarter inches in the American man of to-day over the American man of 1889. Waistcoats and trousers in the ready-made clothing stores are now made in that much larger sizes. The figures collected by the Anthropometrical Department at Washington confirm the story told by the tailors.

The average American of the middle of the coming century will be tall, broad, fat and heavy in the scales. He will probably be nearly six feet high, fifty inches around the chest, fifty-four around the abdomen and weigh anywhere from 200 to 225 pounds.

Meantime the average Englishman has been growing thinner, probably because he is not so well fed as his ancestor, from whom the cartoonist of the eighteenth century drew the familiar fat figure of John Bull. The average Englishman of 1899, according to below the waistline. They are frequently constructed with small pelerines, one, two or even three, superposed, and fastening at the foot of the collar by loops and buttons, so that they can be added or not at will.

They are chiefly made in cloth or Scotch tweed, and many have plaid pelerines, covering the shoulders only and forming the trimming, or the long cape itself is plaid and the smaller ones plain.

In the accompanying cut, reproduced from the Dry Goods Economist, is shown a coat-shaped pelisse for girl of five years. The material is white cloth. The revers of white velvet, stitched, are repeated on the cuffs and pockets. Three double rows of round crystal buttons ornament the front.

For young children, say from five to eight, jackets are mostly made loose with straight backs and fronts, with turned-back revers and no collar.

Hats in Endless Profusion.

Hats for the season now at its height present a bewildering display. They are weighted with fruits and berries, leaves and blossoms which have been turned by the sun and frost in the workrooms. Straws the like of which never have been seen in a field are presented in combinations which require great courage to wear.

A toque of several shades of violet velvet in bands, interlaced with a black Paradise feather, fastened by a jeweled rosette, is among the recent styles, and is suitable for evening wear.

For visiting there is a broad-brimmed straw, lifted at the sides underneath by velvet bows and bands. It has three waving ostrich plumes, and pendant from the back are black mouseline de soie strings, which are tied under the chin a little to the side.

Most becoming to a young face is another broad hat in green fancy straw. Swathed around its crown is mouseline, the lightest shade of green. Clusters of cherries and their leaves finish the combination.

Brimms are all wide in the new hats. One, loaded with autumn flowers, with loops of wired black velvet ribbon wreathed over them, is a charming creation, but this, too, is fastened by velvet ties.

Designs For Costumes That Have Become Popular in the Metropolis.

NEW YORK CITY (Special).—For outdoor children's garments the new models show a somewhat puzzling variety. First of all, jackets of all

Gray Fashionable For Weddings. The most charming materials for gowns to be worn at weddings of the season are designed in gray crepe de chine garnished with gray pearl embroidery, and with such a gown a very flat-topped turban of gray silk, wound with a scarf of pearl bedewed white chiffon, is the smart and proper thing. No note of color is thought well of in connection with these very neutral harmonies, and for all stately affairs it is interesting to learn that trains will be even longer than we have ever before worn them.

Fashion's Newest Fancy. The young person who is fond of being tailor made may now add to her wardrobe a silk tailor-made gown. It is one of fashion's newest fancies. The silk tailored gown must be severely plain. It is very effective if made by an expert and trimmed with bands of machine stitching.

A Beautiful Chatelaine. Many unique designs in jewelry now appear in the showcases and on fashionable women. The newest chatelaine is small and of heart shape. It is a circle of pearls around a tiny enameled flower with a diamond centre. The flower should be the flower of a girl's birthday month.

Plaids Are Epidemic. Plaids of the most pronounced type can now truthfully be said to be epidemic, so few women are there who are free from the infection.

The initial purchase of the season by every maid and matron, just entering on the delightful task of collecting an autumn wardrobe, has been at

An "Exam." Economy is so important a subject that the mathematical housekeeper will doubtless find it greatly to her edification and profit to consider the following from Puck: If a housewife twists in one hour and fifteen minutes ninety-three "lamp-lighters" when 1,250 matches can be bought for five cents, at what rate per hour does she value her time, assuming the worth of the paper to be zero? If the aforesaid woman will take six steps across a room and six returning, each step being of twenty-two inches, to save one match, how far should she consistently walk to save five cents cartage? If a man can draw from boards in fifty minutes seventy-eight nails of a certain size, what wages would he be earning per hour, nails being worth four cents per pound, and there being one hundred of this size in a pound?

In a certain climate underwear at a price of $4 per winter will assure against colds. Assuming that underwear costing $1 per season will lead to two visits from the doctor at $1.50 each, what is the saving by the purchase of the cheaper material? Oil is worth nine cents per gallon. Lamp A burns forty-five gallons in reading or sewing period of one year; lamp B, twenty-five gallons. Spectacles A cost $4.50; spectacles B 25 cents. If lamp B and spectacles B are used, the eyesight is made useless in eight years for a person whose expectation of sound eyesight with the use of lamp A and spectacles A is twenty-five years. Making no allowance for deterioration of lamps or spectacles, estimate the value of eyes per pair.

Force Exerted by the Heart. By accurate measurements of the heart's force it has been calculated that in twenty-four hours the amount of work done by it is equal to 124 foot tons; or, in other words, if the whole force expended by the heart in twenty-four hours were gathered into one huge stroke, such a power would lift 124 tons one foot from the ground. The heart really performs this work in sixteen out of the twenty-four hours for eight hours during the day are taken up by rests, every beat being followed by a pause, during which the heart stops. Another calculation shows that the distance traveled by the blood thrown out of the heart is seven miles an hour, 168 miles a day, or 4,292,000 miles in a lifetime of seventy years.
