The Baltimore and Ohio South Western Railroad placed in service several months ago five large ten wheel compound passenger engines for use on fast trains between Cincinnati and St. Louis.

The performance of these engines has been eminently satisfactory and up to the highest expectation.

The same line has also in service 50 consolidation compound freight engines which provide ample power for the entire line in addition to what was already in use. The compound engines were an experiment but hard service has proved that they are entirely successful and show a saving of 10 per cent. in fuel as compared with simple engines of the same type. Exhaustive tests were made with both the simple and compound locomotives before the order for the entire lot was placed with the result vastly in favor of the compound locomotives.

Richest Gold Mine in the World.

The Band Barton and Albion gold mine, under the town of Ballarat, in Australia, has yielded more than fifty millions as the value of its output of gold since it was discovered about thirty years ago. It is the most productive gold mine yet known. Its supply of paying quartz seems practically inexhaustible, and as the vein is extensive, being spread over much territory, the mine bids fair to last for centuries. The work in the Ballarat gold mine is said to be much safer as well as more comfortable than that of the workers in a coal mine. At Ballarat there are no noxious gases and no danger from explosions. Air is forced into the workings through various shafts. In the Transvaal rich and regular deposits were discovered in 1886 in the Witwatersrand. The reefs are estimated to contain nearly 100,000,000 tons of ore, the gold of which is said to be worth $45,000,000. From eighty to a hundred years must elapse before the field is worked out.

Doubtless Remembered.

The Advocate of India tells of a curious way of rejoicing. The Nawab of Rampore being blessed with a daughter, rejoicings were taking place in his state, and a week's pay was deducted from every state official in commemoration of the event.

THE very word "operation" strikes terror to a woman's soul.

Nearly always these operations become necessary through neglect.

If the menses are very painful, or too frequent and excessive, get the right advice at once and stop taking chances. It will cost you nothing for advice if you write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for it, and if you let the trouble run along it will surely cost you a great deal of pain and may mean an operation.

MISS SARAH J. GRAHAM, Sheridanville, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had suffered for several years with female troubles and doctored until I was discouraged. I felt wretched and tired of living. I had disease of kidneys, bladder trouble, dropsy and bloating, had womb trouble and a large tumor had formed; in fact all my organs were out of fix.

"Seeing a woman's letter praising your remedies, I wrote to her and she begged me to try it, telling me all that it had done for her. I bought six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now cannot express my gratitude to you. The tumor began to come away in pieces and I got better all the time. I believe now that I am entirely cured.

"My doctors could not believe it at first, as they all had told me that my case was a hopeless one, and no human power could do me any good. They were astounded, if I can say anything that can help other women, I shall be glad to."

It is not safe to wait until the last moment. Head off trouble by prompt attention to it. Pinkham's advice.

BUY OF THE MAKER.

Fifty-one years ago, we began our present plan of doing business, as selling direct to the consumer, as we found thousands of people living in all parts of this country who pay cash for their necessities, and are tired of paying the big profits their local dealers were charging.

We then began selling everyone our own goods made in our own factories, consisting of everything you eat, drink, wear, or use, everything you wear, everything you use, everything found in a home, in an office, in a hotel, on a farm, or in a barn, and we are saving money to-day for nearly two million people, who live in all parts of the world. Our 304 page Catalogue costs us 10c to print and mail to free to everyone—it tells all about everything to eat, wear and use, has 10,000 illustrations and quotes wholesale prices on 100,000 different articles.

Our Lithographed Carpet Catalogue shows Carpets, Rugs, Ax Squares, Portiers and Lace Curtains in their real colors. Carpets sewed free, hanging furnished free and freight prepaid.

Our Made-to-Order Clothing Catalogue has samples of cloth attached, offers suit and overcoats from $5.95 to $20.00. Expressage paid on clothing everywhere. We also issue a Special Catalogue of Pianos, Organs, Sewing Machines and Hicycles. Which Catalogue do you want? Address this way:

Home for Families of Handic.

Not actuated by remorse, but by pure philanthropy, Jim Jenkins, hunter of outlaws, has concluded to devote all his money to the maintenance of a home for the orphan and widows of men he has run to earth, in particular, and of criminals of the great Southwest in general. Jim Jenkins, now of Kansas, is now 65 years old and has spent forty years as a scout and hunter of bandits and train robbers. In this way he has made about $50,000. Among the distinguished outlaws he has chased were Jesse James and his brother, Bob Ford, Bill Dalton and Bill Cook, while he was the leader of the band that caught Cherokee Bill in 1895. In the Dalton raid in Coffeyville, Kas., Jenkins was shot eight times. He estimates his bag of bad men at about 150. The home, which is being built on a 5,000-acre farm owned by Jenkins, near Pryor Creek, I. T., is to cost $20,000.—Buffalo Express.

Long Swim.
Ernest Whitehead captured a young seal near Anacapa Island, California, recently, and took him on board his ship, started Our Dumb Animals. As the vessel sailed the mother seal was noticed swimming about, howling piteously. The little captive barked responsively. After reaching the wharf at Santa Barbara the captive was tied up in a jute sack and left loose on the deck. Soon after coming to anchor the seal responded to its mother's call by casting itself overboard, all tied up as it was in the sack. The mother seized the sack, and with her sharp teeth tore it open. She had followed the sloop eighty miles.

Dentist Tells by Signs.
A peculiar action or imaged correspondence has been developed between physical acts and mental attitudes. The electrotonist declares that the sledgehammer gesture indicates emphasis and the hands opened with an outward spread of the arms and/or. The student of handwriting assures you that the up curl at the end of a word indicates a hopeful mood and the droop a despondent one; that if the handwriting begins boldly and ends in smaller characters a weak will is indicated, and vice versa. Curly hair is supposed to imply a quick temper, and the dentists will tell you that the teeth of the curly haired man pull hard.

"I can tell as far as I see a man," one of them remarked, "whether his teeth will be difficult to pull. If he has a bull neck and curly hair, you will need your strongest forceps. Somehow the roots curl themselves up in the bony tissue of the jaw in as much of a tangle as the hair itself."—New York Mail and Express.

Rats and Trap Swallowed by a Snake.
A remarkable snake story that is vouched for by the family of Charles Braddock, Sr., of Shamong Township, N. J., is told by John Delleit, the hired man.

Delleit went to the barn the other day to milk the cows. Upon entering one of the stalls he saw a large white-throated blacksnake. It was curled up in an apparently comfortable position, and it was noticed that a rat's tail was hanging from its mouth. Delleit summoned Mr. Braddock and other members of his family. At first the men arranged to give battle to the reptile, when it was found to be dead. An examination showed that in its hunger and greed to get the rats, three in number, the snake had swallowed the trap and all. This caused its death.

WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

"GANGWAY!"

A New War Cry Raised by Our Men in the Philippines.

The Manila correspondent of Collier's Weekly, writes as follows: The enemy were invisible and shooting. That made it necessary for Uncle Sam's troopers to go on until they got near enough to get a good close view of the little brown enemy. And they did it with splendid spirit, rushing, shooting, cheering and laughing. Two companies of Cook's battalion of the Third were ordered to the left of the railroad, while the other two companies were made up mainly of "rookies," as recruits are called, but they made up in spirit what they lacked in effective drill.

As the two companies to the left of the track, under Captain Day and Lieutenant Hannay, got their first glimpse of the shooting enemy their officers shouted out to steady their commands. It was unnecessary. One tall rooky, who was the first to catch sight of the heads of the mass of Filipinos ahead, yelled gleefully: "Gangway!" With one accord the two companies took up the cry of "Gangway!" and on they rushed. It was their slogan. They kept it up until they reached the thrown-up dirt of the trench and saw the Filipinos, now an irregular mass, fleeing a hundred yards ahead of them. The Filipinos gained another trench, but "Gangway!" was the battle cry that drove them out of it. It was the same with the third line of trenches. Parenthetically, it is understood, of course, that our boys shot off something besides "Gangway!" Dead and wounded Filipinos strewed the ground and filled the trenches. Our losses all along the line that day were trifling by comparison. Day's and Hannay's companies, for instance, which suffered rather more than the average losses, had five men killed and eleven wounded.

But that cry of "Gangway!" is famous over in the Philippines. Insurgents who have been brought in either wounded or prisoners have inquired eagerly the meaning and potency of that mysterious Yankee word which invariably preceded a Filipino retreat. And so the Third has contributed another famous word to the technical slang of the American soldier.

Female Nimrods.

Lady Hopetoun, wife of the Lord Chamberlain, is one of the cleverest of a galaxy of female Nimrods, which includes Lady Sandhurst, Lady Beaumont and the Duchess of Bedford, and she can bring down anything from a partridge to a stag as skillfully as can most men. In Australia she used to practice regularly at the rifle range, and her score of "bulls" was the envy of many men-shooters. Deer stalking is her favorite relaxation, and many a fine buck has fallen to her gun.

The Revival of Coral.

Coral beads used to be considered the correct and necessary thing to wear, with muslin gowns and other pretty, old-fashioned toilets appropriated by the present fashion. Perhaps, also, if there be one color in jewelry as to the beauty of which all tastes, from the least cultivated to that of the connoisseur, accord, it is for red in its various tones. Its revival began in the favorite old form of beads. It has found its best field again in the fashionable long chains, and it is in this line that jewelers make their principal display. Next to chains in extent of display come brooches and pins. A dainty new fancy noted is the combination of pearls and coral in one or two fine brooches, the design being a crescent enclosing a star. An establishment catering to the finest trade reports coral unequivocally as "coming in," and displays a variety of chains and some new designs in pins and brooches.

Commonplace Girls.

The brilliant and unusual girl gets more than her meed of praise, but we just go on loving the commonplace girl for the nice little part she plays in life and seldom think of telling her what we do. And the commonplace girl is so apt to underestimate her worth. You know that time and again she has come to you for comfort because she declared she was such a social failure, such a commonplace mortal.

My dear little commonplace girl, it is the commonplace men and women who make up the greater part of the world, and it is the commonplace men and women who attend to the small but necessary matters that go to make up the great sum total of our lives and the world's affairs generally. The geniuses are too busy to look after small matters, and, besides, the geniuses are so few! Maybe out of a thousand folk there will be but one unusual one. The balance are just commonplace.

The commonplace woman is not the inferior woman. The commonplace woman comes just up to the accepted standard of what a woman should be, when all is said and done. Each of us may have an ideal, but we are all quite conscious that in some way, as time has passed on into eternity and Mother Eve's daughters have lived and loved and worked and smiled, a standard has been fixed. To sink below it is sadly disappointing to those who look for all that is best in womanhood; to rise above it puts one in the ranks of the unusual. Our greatness or our inferiority, as men and women, only stands out prominently because there is a standard.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

How to Take Care of Pearls.

Pearls are undoubtedly one of the most beautiful of precious stones, and those persons who are fortunate possessors of them have, doubtless, been puzzled many a time as to the best way of keeping them nice.

A good way of brightening up the appearance of pearls is to wash them in soap and water, that is, if they are what is known as "whole" pearls. But should they be "half" pearls, the greatest care must be exercised in keeping them out of water, as this fluid affects their color and lustre, and in time causes them to become quite black.

People who possess a ring or brooch that consist of half pearls find it a most difficult matter to clean them. When they look dirty, just take a dry, clean leather and polish them, and then that being done take a soft brush and go gently over the settings, and you will be surprised at the increased lustre and clean look which this simple process has given to the pearls.

Pearls are valued according to their color and lustre, and so, if the color fades, so does the value, and pearls that are kept locked up for any length of time lose their color entirely. The wearing of pearls do them far more good, and the great pity is that some people who have in their possession pearl necklaces and rings never allow them to see daylight, but keep them locked away in a jewel case, and thus

NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

The Ideal Mother.

She never describes her aches and pains. She never dwells on unpleasant reminiscences. She is never a martyr. She never corrects the children in the presence of any one. She lets everyone have affairs of his or her own. She is always polite and cordial to the children's friends.—Philadelphia Record.

Keep Up the Diary.

A thoughtful woman says that the "journal habit" should be discouraged in young girls, as writing down the thoughts, feelings and impressions of immaturity and inexperience tends to the development of self-consciousness and introspection at a time when they can do more harm than good. A diary, however, is a different matter, and should be encouraged, as it may be of value in after years, in its record of dates and happenings.

The Woman of the Angelus.

Barbizon, a little village in the midst of the forest of Fontainebleau, a short distance from Paris, has become a goal of pilgrimage for many admirers of Millet's work, and particularly for those who know that the woman who suggested to the great painter his famous picture of "The Angelus" still lives there in a little cottage a stone's throw from where she was born. Here Adele's home is a small vine-clad cottage, in which she lives a frugal but comfortable life, troubled only by the ovarianic tourists and by her rheumatism. She must have been an attractive woman once, for even now, although she has witnessed the passing of more than threescore years and ten, there are traces of former beauty in her wrinkled face.

Mere Adele is a lady, though she has worn her fingers blunt by toil, and her form is bent under the burdens she has had to bear. When she looks at you her smile is like a benediction, and the beautiful things of earth are not lost upon her. Her manner is cheerful, as one who feels she has not lived in vain. If questioned closely she will tell you of the day when the great artist came through the dense forest behind him the gay city of Paris with its schools of painting and its models. She knows a great deal of the very hard days which followed for Jean Francois Millet—the toil, the anxiety, the disappointments. She nursed his five children, and did the little field-work in the garden adjoining the cottage. When he saw his nurse-girl, Adele, and her father reverently bowing their heads in prayer at the ringing of the Angelus he conceived the picture which, if not his best work, is yet the best known, and the one most appreciated by the people. Mere Adele calls herself a child of God. She looks it in the painting, and she lives it every day in her humble cottage.—Woman's Home Companion.
