

"What's in a Name?"

Everything, when you come to medicine. A sarsaparilla by any other name can never equal Hood's, because of the peculiar combination, proportion and process by which Hood's possesses merit peculiar to itself, and by which it cures when all other medicines fail. Cures scrofula, salt rheum, dyspepsia, catarrh, rheumatism, that tired feeling, etc.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased part of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are cured by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Hawaiian Commerce. The Hawaiian Islands are an example of commercial development under a close or protected system. It was in 1866 that the islands first touched an interest of $1,000,000 in our import trade, chiefly through the whale-fisheries, as they made a convenient stopping place for American whalers. The interest was not doubled until the reciprocity treaty went into effect (1877), and sugar became the great article of commerce, with rice as the second in importance, but representing only one-tenth the value of the sugar. The granting of free entry into the United States for these two products was equivalent to remitting to the Hawaiian planters the sum of $1,000,000 a year, every dollar of which acted as a bounty on production. It was natural that they could as soon as milking was done. In thirty minutes from the time the call was made, the cream was delivered. The milk had been drawn from the cow, put into a separator, the cream extracted and sent to town by a man on a bicycle. A few years ago the committee would have had to send a boy in the afternoon, "yesterday's milk" would have had to be skimmed, and if the boy had not tread too many chipmunks on the way, he might have got back in time for the festival.

A Burglary Story. They were telling "burglary stories" on the veranda in front of the grocery store in a down-east town. "The man's hand was thrust through the hole he had cut in the door," said the star talker, "when the woman seized the wrist and held on in spite of the struggles of the man outside. In the morning the burglar was found dead, having cut his own throat when he found escape impossible; but the brave woman had not known he was dead, and so had not released her grasp on his wrist all night long." "Huh!" growled the skeptic in the corner; "why didn't she feel his pulse?"—Buffalo Commercial.

EVERY woman suffering from any female trouble can be helped by Mrs. Pinkham. This statement is based on sound reasoning and an unrivaled record. Multitudes of America's women to-day bless Mrs. Pinkham for competent and common-sense advice. Write to her if you are ill. Her address is Lynn, Mass. Absolutely no charge is made for advice. "I suffered seven years and would surely have died but for your help," writes Mrs. GEO. BAINBRIDGE, Morea, Pa., to Mrs. Pinkham. "It is with pleasure I now write to inform you that I am now a healthy woman, thanks to your kind advice and wonderful medicine. I can never praise it enough. I was a constant sufferer from womb trouble, and leucorrhoea, had a continual pain in abdomen. Sometimes I could not walk across the floor for three or four weeks at a time. Since using your medicine, I now have no more tearing-down pains, or tired feelings, and am well and hearty. I shall recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my suffering friends as the greatest remedy for all female weakness."

MRS. SUSIE J. WEAVER, 1821 Callowhill St., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had inflammation of the womb and painful menstruation, and by your advice I began taking Lydia E. MRS. M. BAUMANN, 771 W. 21st St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "After two months' trial of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I can not say enough in praise for it. I was a very sick woman with womb trouble when I began its use, but now I am well."

A Modern Advance. The wonderful advance made in the science of farming during the last few years is one of the best examples of American progressiveness. A little incident recounted by the Ashabula (Ohio) Sentinel is characteristic. One evening, a short time ago, a society in Jefferson needed a gallon of cream. The committee called up by telephone the proprietors of a milk farm two miles north of the town, and asked if they could furnish it. The reply was that they could as soon as milking was done. In thirty minutes from the time the call was made, the cream was delivered. The milk had been drawn from the cow, put into a separator, the cream extracted and sent to town by a man on a bicycle. A few years ago the committee would have had to send a boy in the afternoon, "yesterday's milk" would have had to be skimmed, and if the boy had not tread too many chipmunks on the way, he might have got back in time for the festival.

A Gentle Hint. A singular custom prevails among the Tartars or Kurds. If a man loses his cattle or other property he pours a little brown sugar into a piece of colored cloth, ties it up and carries one such parcel to each of his friends and acquaintances. In return he is presented, according to circumstances, with a cow or sheep or a sum of money.

Private Secretary For Many People. "Few trades are so overcrowded as that of stenography, because twenty girls can be found for each position offered," writes Frances E. Lanigan in the Ladies' Home Journal. "A new branch of regular stenography is that of the typewriter-stenographer who works by the piece. She visits her customers each morning, takes notes, and does her work upon her own typewriter, returning the letters promptly for signature." She also does copying. To business men who have not sufficient work, nor office room sufficient to share with a typewriter, she is invaluable. She is also a valued assistant to women who are busy with club work, answering their letters, copying rules and regulations, and filing away their business papers."

Plaid Waists Are Fashionable. For blouse waists bright plaids will be most fashionable, both in woolen fabrics and silk. Their great convenience will assure them success, as they form a set-off to almost any skirt. They assume somewhat the skirt-front style, with a deep box-pleat down the centre and sleeves terminating in a high stiff cuff edged by a frilling of the material.

NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

Miss Grant's Bust of Gladstone. English women are entering the ranks of the sculptors with such effect that one of the artistic sensations of the year in England is the bust of Gladstone, recently exhibited by Miss Grant. She is the daughter of Sir Francis Grant, a former president of the Royal Academy, and her mother was a daughter of the Earl of Elgin, from whom the Elgin collection of Parthenon marbles was named, as it was due to his efforts that they were secured by England from the Turks.

Autumn Wraps. Golf capes are the wrap par excellence for chilly evenings, but numerous lighter garments are shown for the carriage or promenade. Silk jackets are to be much worn in the attractive mode known as the "coatee." Some of these dainty little wraps are made in the modified Eton shape, with points reaching below the waist. Some of them fold away with revers, others lap just below the bust and fasten with three buttons below the point where the lapels fold back. It is the fashion of the moment to have the lapels undecorated. But one pretty model of navy blue silk has three overlapping revers, the upper and lower being of the blue and the middle one of white satin. Jaunty capes are shown. They should reach just below the waist. One in mastic color was edged in front with plaited chiffon and finished with a chon and long strings. The popular bowknot trimming of applique in lace completed a very fetching little garment. A style of trimming for capes and tunics, which some one has called the "penwiper" decoration, is in scallops. Another line of garniture with a descriptive name is "railroad stitching." These fashions are likely to be so popular as to be overdone after a little. Some of the long ulsters are extremely plain. No doubt we shall get used to them, however, as the fashion for polonaises and princess dresses seems to be on the increase. —New York Commercial Advertiser.

Keeping Hair in Curl. The subject of keeping hair in curl is one that is of immense interest to women. White of eggs, quince juice and the like are unpleasant to use and produce a sticky, "floury" appearance most inartistic and unbecoming. The proper way to curl the hair with an iron is to dampen slightly and curl slowly, holding on the iron until almost cool. Then slip iron through and put an invisible pin into the curl to keep it tightly coiled until the hair is dressed. By that time the hair has cooled thoroughly in the curl and will last for hours longer than if curled in the ordinary hasty way.

Iceland's Progressive Daughters. Iceland has a woman's club known as the Thorvaldsen Society. It is philanthropic and educational in its aims, and just now is trying to raise money enough to found a national university at Reykjavik, to obviate the now existent necessity for sons and brothers to spend their college years across the seas. The club publishes a paper, in which editors and contributors are all women. In addition to the women's club, there are a book club and an amusement club, to which men also belong. The amusement club meets every week in winter and gives frequent cotillions.

The New Wrinkle For Wrinkles. Fruit-poultices are the latest fad for the complexion. They should be worn all night, and are said to be specific for wrinkles. The best fruit is the strawberry, but others are effective. Take the interior of the fruit, spread on a band of linen and tie over the wrinkled part of the face. The result is said to exceed the wildest expectations. Other directions for the complexion are "Never wash the face in quite plain water, nor in cold water, nor with soap." Also "Wash the face in hot water and do not be afraid to use soap." "Use no powder at all" and "Use a little orris powder." Be sure to carry out all these directions. The fruit cure will rectify all errors of judgment.

Fruits and Berries For the New Hats. Very autumnal looking are the hats in deep yellow straws, trimmed with late fruits and berries. Different forms may be trimmed in this way, the directorio cape-line and the wide sailor being most suitable. The crowns are often bound round with narrow ribbon velvet, black claret maroon or green, and if the straw is an openwork one, still narrower velvet will be threaded in and out of its meshes. The bunches of fruits—grapes, blackberries, medlars, elderberries or nuts—arranged with their own foliage, rest on the brim. A pouf of some contrasting color is generally added. This is sometimes made in the form of a circular rosette, with a bunch of poppy stems in the middle.

Gleanings From the Shops. Wreaths of small green artificial leaves for the hair. Tiny glove handkerchiefs edged with full florings of rare lace. Wide plaitings of black net heavily increased with pendant paillettes. White cloth garnitures in scroll designs outlined with tinsel, silver or iridescent cordings. New assortments of elastic belts in white pearl and jet, with buckles in various fanciful shapes. Mousseline de soie shirt waists decorated with exquisitely wrought silver, gold or crystal buttons. Collets made of chiffon or lace with medici collar and long stole ends that fasten at the waist or fall in soft, undulating folds. Many princess costumes composed entirely of rich heavy lace, interwoven with floral applications of chiffon in natural tints. Large hats of black, yellow or white straw, encircled with garlands of flowers, soft drapings of malines and black velvet strings. Gowns of white point d'esprit dotted effectively with black, adorned with cream lace threaded with narrow black velvet ribbon. Fichu scarfs which pass twice around the neck and fall in long, graceful ends, made of lace or some sheer transparent fabric. Tunic robes in pastel shades of fine crepon decorated with bands of rich cluny or detached appliques cut from this same lace.—Dry Goods Economist.

Mother of All the Herreshoffs. Across the street from the Herreshoff ship yards in Bristol, where the Defender and the Columbia were built, there stands an old country house, with a generous New England "stoop." In front of it there is a row of magnificent trees, and it looks out upon the Bay of Bristol. Sometimes in pleasant weather a little old woman in black comes out and sits for a while with one of her daughters and watches the stately yachts come up the harbor from Newport and Fall River. She is the mother of all the Herreshoffs.

the mother of all the Herreshoffs. Last February she celebrated her eighty-ninth birthday, and she was yet hale enough to take pride in the Columbia as she was building in the shops. She is a descendant of the famous family of Lewises of Boston, merchants and shipmen, and she brings to the present branch of the family much of its skill as ship designers and builders.—Washington Star.

LIVING IN FRANCE. It Does Not Come Up to Our American Ideas of Comfort. We exaggerate in our minds the luxury of life on the continent. No hotel there equals any of the first-class hotels in our great cities. The first thing to disappoint us is the lift—what we elaborately call the elevator. It is a poor piece of machinery abroad, always stopping and always out of order. In the best hotel in Paris, the Continental, one gets luxury, comfort and even splendor, but never one's cards or notes. There is a fatal gulf for these. One is a number, not an individuality. The table is, however, very luxurious. It is a clean and well-ordered caravansary. As for the comfort of warmth in winter, they do not know the meaning of the word. We are justly accused of exaggerating the heat of our rooms in America; the furnace is denounced; but after freezing to death in Paris, one of the coldest of cities, very far north, cursed with an abominable winter climate, one returns willingly to the heated rooms of America. We exaggerate the excellence of the French bed. There is no such thing in France as that comfortable, broad, low thing which we call a French bed. A high, hard, narrow shelf is the apology for it. We exaggerate our comforts by having gas in our sleeping rooms, and hot and cold water in our stationary wash bowls and bathrooms. They never exaggerate comfort in France. You have as many candles as you will pay for, and no bath, unless you order it, when men laboriously bring you a tub filled with hot or cold water, and take it away after you have bathed. We exaggerate very much the supposed good living in France. To go to a hotel in Paris to live we must expect out of the season very little good food, very little that is sustaining and nourishing. It is "all sauce." There are no good joints of mutton, no good American desserts. There is an especial discomfort to the sick, who never get good toast, good custard, good tapioca pudding, nor oysters that they like.—Harper's Bazar.

WISE WORDS. We live no more of our time here than we live well.—Carlyle. One ought to have a good memory when he has told a lie.—Fallor. The fruit derived from labor is the sweetest of all pleasures.—Vannenburg. Kindness is the golden chain by which society is bound together.—Goethe. The highest manhood resides in disposition, not in mere intellect.—H. W. Beecher. He that wants money, means and content is without three good friends.—Shakespeare. Unbecoming forwardness oftener proceeds from ignorance than impudence.—Greville. Of all the faculties of the mind memory is the first that flourishes and the first that dies.—Cotton. The desire of knowledge, like the thirst of riches, increases ever with the acquisition of it.—Sterne. Always remember that there are two sides to every question, and that there is a possibility of your being on the wrong side.—Spurgeon. Spare minutes are the gold dust of time; the portions of life most fruitful in good or evil; the gaps through which temptations enter.—Mrs. Thrall. Opportunities are never found by the indolent and inattentive; they are for the men and women who try to advance, and you should endeavor to enjoy them in their fullness.—Sterne. That is not the best sermon that makes the hearers go away talking to one another and praising the preacher, but that which makes them go away thoughtful and serious, and hastening to be alone.—The Watchman.

LIVING IN FRANCE.

Wife and Son Marry Sisters. Justice Thomas McCann, of Lorain, Ohio, in one recent day joined in holy bonds of wedlock Joseph Hartman and his son Adam to the two Bordee sisters, Katie and Gertrude. An interesting complication of relationships thus arises. Of course, Gertrude, who married the father, Joseph Hartman, will be both stepmother and sister-in-law to the son, Adam Hartman. Hence, if Adam and his wife have any children Gertrude will be grandmother to her nephews and nieces, but Katie, the son's wife, will be aunt to her father-in-law's children, and Adam will have to be an uncle to his own half-brothers and sisters. The children of the father will be aunts and uncles and cousins to the children of the son. The wife of the father becomes her own sister's mother-in-law and father and son become brothers-in-law.

Extraordinary Case of Blood-Poisoning. An extraordinary case of blood-poisoning is reported by a Vienna journal. The victim was a young girl named Schwartz, aged 22. Some days ago she went for a walk wearing a green silk blouse. She became overheated, and the dye of the material ran. Unhappily she had sustained some trifling accidental wound under the arm, and the pigment got into the blood. Upon returning home she complained of pain, but would not consent to a medical examination. The injured spot became greatly inflamed, causing intense suffering, and on the following day the physician discovered the cause. Remedies were immediately applied, but it was too late, and after a brief illness the girl died.

Pictorial Postcard Craze. Some idea of the pictorial postcard craze in Germany is given by the figures just published by our consul at Frankfurt, says the London Globe. About 12,000 workmen are employed in producing these postal souvenirs, and it is estimated that every day about 100 new designs are published. Allowing for each card an issue of 1,000 only—and this is a modest estimate—it means a total of 100,000 per day, or something like 30,000,000 per annum. Since the introduction of the souvenir card the number of postcards dispatched in Germany has increased by 12,000,000. The latest cards are a great improvement on the earlier ones and some bear etchings by artists of repute.

Saved From Chills. In 1396 Mohammed Balba usurped the crown of Granada in spite of the superior claims of his elder brother Jusuf. He was very unsuccessful in his conduct of the war against the Christians and was at length assassinated by poison absorbed through his skin from a shirt. He entertained a desperate dislike to the brother whom he had injured, and when he knew that his own fate was sealed he sent an order to the governor of the prison in which Jusuf was confined that he should be executed immediately. When the order arrived Jusuf was playing chess with the chaplain of the prison. With great difficulty Jusuf obtained a respite from the governor permitting him to finish the game. Before it was ended, however, news came that the usurper had died of the poison. This canceled the order of execution and Jusuf, instead of going to the scaffold, mounted the throne.
