Contests Mother's Will.

The first hearing regarding the contested will of the late Mrs. Mary M. Hoyt, of Wilkes-Barre, who left her sister, Hannah Frances Miller, of Philadelphia, $150,000, and cut her son, Frank W. Hoyt, off with $1,000, was held at the county seat Friday. The son is contesting the will. The facts as set forth showed that Mrs. Hoyt was about 71 years of age at the time of her death, and had for about ten years previous lived with her sister, Hannah Frances Miller, to whom she left the greater part of her estate. The will was dated January 9, 1891, and two codicils were added on October 3, 1898.
As confidential adviser of Mrs. Hoyt the surviving son alleges that her sister exercised undue influence over her mother, who, it is asserted, was weak-minded. He further alleges that at different times previous to her death his mother designated considerable property as his. In the will, however, he was cut off with $1,000 and some horses and cows, in all about $2,000. The entire estate is valued at about $150,000.
Giant Among Coal Breakers.
The Lehigh Valley Company, it is announced, will erect another mammoth breaker a mile southward of Hazleton, which will be even larger than the No. 40 breaker just completed, which is the wonder of the anthracite region. There is a vast amount of unmined coal in that territory, and the new breaker will give employment to several hundred men.
The marriage of Alex Allen and Miss Maggie Timney took place Thursday evening in St. James' P. E. church, Drifton. John Baskin was groomsmen and Miss Annie Allen was bridesmaid. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Buxton. Mr. and Mrs. Allen have begun housekeeping in a handsomely furnished home in Drifton.
The Susquehanna Coal Company having failed to secure men to resume work at its Glen Lyon and Nanticoke collieries, the officials announce a suspension of operations until the men are ready to resume work. Only necessary hands will be employed. The miners appear as determined as ever to hold out for their demands.
The grand jury of Luzerne county has indicted Editor Richard Little and Associate Editor M. J. Toole, of the Scrantonian, on the charge of libeling Squire J. B. Gilbo, of Duryea. The prosecutor charges that the defendants made reckless and untrue statements about him in connection with the Corcoran tragedy.
In the case of Mrs. Michael Lonzer, of Hazleton, against the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, for damages on account of the death of her husband in a wreck near Stockton, the company withdrew its reasons for a new trial and thereupon the plaintiff took judgment for the amount of the verdict, which was $3,000.
Miss Millie Capece, employed in Mrs. Mathers' dressmaking establishment, received a painful injury on Friday by the needle of a sewing machine entering into one of her fingers. The needle passed through her finger, then broke off, and was removed with much difficulty by the physicians.
The application for the charter of the Fourth Ward Fire Company was filed in the prothonotary's office on Thursday by Attorney Stroh. The directors are John O. Mason, E. P. Gallagher, Bernard Dian, Solomon Trantor, B. F. Davis, J. W. Everitt, Stephen Drasher and Owen Fowler.
A mass meeting of unusually large proportions was held on Saturday evening at Wilkes-Barre, where thousands of voters listened to able addresses from State Candidates Creasy and Rielly, Congressman Davenport and some of the county candidates.
Jacob Halabunda and Joseph Kranuk, two young men of Drifton, have been indicted by the grand jury for malicious mischief. They are charged by E. A. Oberrender with throwing stones and breaking windows in No. 2 Drifton on September 13 last.
In its report on Saturday, the grand jury recommends the erection by the county of a bridge in Hazle township on the road to Berwick at a cost of not over $800 and the erection of another in Butler township at a cost of $450.

Republican Testimony.

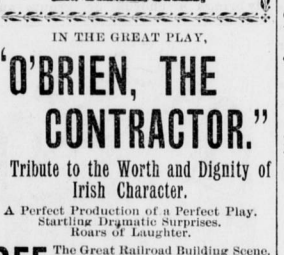

The following graphic description of the workings of Quayism in Philadelphia is copied from the editorial columns of the Philadelphia Press, the leading Republican journal in Pennsylvania and the immediate organ and mouthpiece of the McKinley administration:
"If the people thoroughly understood the facts concerning ballot-box frauds and the extent to which elections are debauched; if honest men understood as they should that there are wards, like the Fifth and the Seventh, where elections are dominated by thieves and thugs; if they knew that in many divisions the election officers are jailbirds or have no residence in the city; if they realized as they should that tens of thousands of names are criminally put upon the assessors' lists by criminal assessors acting under orders from the chiefs in election crimes; if they knew that these fraudulent names were regularly voted on by repeaters and personators, building up a fraudulent vote at each election of from 50,000 to 80,000; if, in short, the people of the city who are not participants in election crimes knew the appalling extent of them, and that they have repeatedly defeated the popular will, there would be such an uprising as would speedily put an end to the whole business."
Putting Prisoners to Work.
From the Scranton Tribune.
Arrangements for putting into practical operation the law authorizing the employing of prisoners in county jails are being rapidly perfected by the recently organized prison board and by next week at the latest it is expected a squad of the male inmates of the county jail will be at work grading the county's vacant lot in the rear of the jail. County Commissioner Giles Roberts and Warden W. T. Simpson have bought picks, shovels, sledges, wheelbarrows and other implements of labor.
Warden Simpson says that the prisoners as a rule are perfectly willing to work about the jail yard or on the lot adjoining, but declare they will revolt against being taken into the streets to work.
"I guess we'll find a way of convincing them that it is to their benefit to work as the prison board may direct," was the warden's significant remark.
In Potter county, where the scheme was first put into operation, rebellious prisoners were put on a bread and water diet until their rebellious spirit was broken.
Teachers Denounce Stone.
At the closing session of the Luzerne County Teachers' Institute, held at Wilkes-Barre Friday, Governor Stone was denounced in the resolutions for "curtailing the state appropriation for the common schools," his action being characterized as an "unwarranted assumption of authority, without precedent in the history of Pennsylvania, and as violating the duty of liberal support which the state owes to the common schools of this great commonwealth."
In another resolution the members of the legislature from this county were asked to use their best endeavor to get the state appropriation increased.

ENGINE NO. 9 EXPLODED.

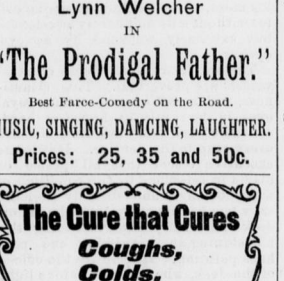

D. S. & S. LOCOMOTIVE BLOWN UP ON FRIDAY MORNING.
Was Being Used by the Lehigh Valley Railroad When the Accident Occurred. Two Men Were Killed and One Was Injured—Considered a Safe Engine.
Engine No. 9, owned by the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill Railroad Company, was wrecked early Friday morning on the Lehigh Valley Railroad near Wyalusing, Bradford county, killing a fireman and brakeman instantly and seriously injuring an engineer.
With three others, Engine No. 9 was borrowed about a month ago from the Drifton people to help the Valley people out during their unexpected fall rush of freight. No. 9 was pulling a train of this class shortly after 1 o'clock on Friday morning, when it exploded.
The huge locomotive, which was practically a new machine, having been rebuilt about five years ago after a wreck on the Perth Amboy run, in which it was demolished, was blown completely to atoms.
The explosion instantly killed Fireman Eugene Deegan and Brakeman Warren Robinson. Engineer Daniel C. Georgia was very seriously and perhaps fatally injured.
Deegan's body was blown into the river and when recovered, about 7 o'clock, that morning, it was found that his legs were nearly severed from the body. He was unmarried and about 28 years old.
Robinson's body was found about forty feet from the track and his face entirely blown off. He leaves a wife and three children.
Engineer Georgia was taken to the Packer hospital, at Sayre. He is suffering with a broken leg, a dislocated knee, fractured skull and many other serious bruises.
No one knows the cause of the accident.
Will Almost Kill Kipling.
Philadelphia North American.
The soldiers of England are superior to all other soldiers. They are incomparably dashing in the charge, as steady as rocks under fire and possessed of a kind of valor to which death is ever preferable to defeat. That the British soldier is far and away better than anything else that carries a gun the world has known for many years, for generations, indeed. The world has known it on the authority of the British soldier's countrymen, who excel the remainder of mankind in modesty as conspicuously as he excels it in pluck.
This is why the mercurial and boastful Frenchman and the vain and self-lauding American are so distasteful to the Englishman, who has no absurd illusions about himself, and therefore is competent to correct the faults of his foolish neighbors.
Had the British soldier been beaten merely, England might have borne up under the misfortune. By sternly resolving to endure disaster with a high fortitude unknown outside of Great Britain, she would have been conscious of extorting the envious admiration of inferior races. But to have the British soldier gobbled up—outgeneraled, outfought and taken alive by the unathed, bearded Boer, who has not a drop of English blood in his wretched veins, that imposes the inescapable, the nauseous necessity of singing small.
The blow will almost kill Kipling.
Daniel Sully Tonight.
Daniel Sully, the famous Irish-American actor, will appear in his truthful creation, "O'Brien, the Contractor," at the Grand Opera House this evening. The play hinges on the scheming of three financiers to defeat the completion of a piece of railroad which a poor contractor is pushing through and which is to make him rich. Failing to make any headway by fair means, they resort to trickery and deceit. They succeeded in winning over some of the laborers, but they fail to induce the Irishmen to betray their employer and join the plot.
The arrival of O'Brien disguised, his passionate pleading to the men to stand by O'Brien, the contractor, has the desired result: the men return to work. The final blast is made—the rails nailed to the ties—the roadbed of rock and dirt hastily thrown in place—the "golden spike" produced and finally driven home—complete the most national, truthful and exciting scenes ever placed upon a stage.

Our Ever Untiring Efforts To Do Better.

To give our patrons the biggest possible values for their money, is the key of our great success. We are not satisfied to stand still, but are forever forging ahead, forever trying to make the values bigger and the prices smaller. We are continually scouring the markets for the very best of dependable merchandise, and buying, as we do, in immense quantities, we are enabled to sell clothing as cheap as the average merchant can buy.
This season we have been more active than ever. Our grand array of Clothing for Men, Boys and Children proves that it is the greatest assortment that has ever been shown to the purchasing public of this town. And we have been farsighted enough to anticipate the advance all the clothing merchants are complaining about and placed our orders much earlier than usual. We can, therefore, sell clothing at the old prices, or make you a suit or overcoat cheaper than any other tailor in the region.
