Brittian has been developed here because of her attitude during our trouble with Spain, there should be no mistake about the view taken by the American people of the South African business. They sympathize heartly with the Boors—barrilly, indeed, that their victories have awakened more interest and given more pieasure by far than news of Filipino defeats and slaughters does. Were Americans not to side with the Boors they would be false to the principles and traditions which are at the heart of our national life. Americans believe that men have a right to govern themselves, and always they have been warmly sympathetic with any people engaged in fighting for independence. It is monarchy against republic in South Africa, it is the strong against the weak, and Americans are with the weak and against monarchy in such a struggle.

The Classic.

Manners easily and rapidly mature

Manners easily and rapidly mature into morals.—Horace Mann.

It is not alone what we do, but also what we do not do for which we are accountable.—Moliere.

Zeal is very blind, or badly regulated, when it encroaches upon the rights of others.—Prasquier quesnel.

I love to lose myself in other men's minds. When I am not walking, I am reading. I cannot sit and think, Books think for me. I have no reputanances. Shaftesbury is not too genteel for me, nor Jonatham Wild too low.—Lamb.

Wit, like every other power, has its boundaries. Its success depends on the aptitude of others to receive impressions; and that as some bodies, indissoluble by heat, can set the furnaces and crucible at defiance, there are minds upon which the rays of fancy may be pointed without effect, and which no fire of sentiment can agitate or exalt.—Johnson.

An Unpleasant Reminder.

An Unpleasant Reminder.

James didn't go to church often, but his mamma took him there last Sunday, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
Now she wishes she hadn't.
He sat demurely enough until the tenor, who indulges in a dreadful inexcusable tremolo, had finished a song.
Then he spoke up.
"Mamma," he asked, in a thrill whisper, "what makes the man's voice

"But, mamma," the little scamp per-sisted in a still louder whisper, "you know when papa's voice shook the other night you said it was beer." And that's why Jamie's church priv-ileges have been shut off.

Not the Right Way.

"Here's a story of a New Haven Italian," he said, "who has bought seven wives at 30 cents each, and now makes them do all his farm work."
"Outrageoust" she exclaimed. "The idea of buying wives for 50 cents each!"

"What difference does his being single make in his inside vest pockets."

"Ah, my dear sir," observed the knight of the thread and needle, with a bland smile, "all the difference in the world. Being unmarried, he, of course, wants the pocket on the left side, so as to bring his sweetheart's picture over his heart."

"But doesn't a married man want his wife's picture in the same place," inquired the scribe.

"Well, there may have been an instance of that kind," replied the tailor, in a doubtfully hesitant tone of voice, "but I must confess that such a one never came under my observation."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Was he grateful?"
"Maria thought he was—at first. You probably know that she prides herself on her baking. Well, the tramp picked up the loaf she gave him, pinched it, tossed it in the air, smelled of it, and said, in an estatic way, 'I must say I never ate such bread as that!" Then he slowly added, 'And I don't mean to break my record now. Gimme some pie an' cake."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Boston's Old Way.

In Boston, Mass, people were felicitating a young person upon her approaching marriage.

"He's a fine catch!" they exclaimed, in delicate compliment of her future husband.

"Oh, a veritable cod!" she replied with considerable enthusiasm, and then blushed deeply to think how very boastful that must sound.—Detroit Journal.
