"Finnigan's Ball."

No announcement seems to interest theatregoers more than when reference is made to the coming engagement of "Finnigan's Ball." which will be the offering at the Grand next Thursday evening. It comes with a splendidly successful record throughout the country. It is a vastly diverting farce, and you will find yourself leaving the theatre in a hearty, mirthful frame of mind, and with no felling of self-condemnation or sacrifice of self-respect. Its complications are said to be ingenious and original, its action is rapid and its story abounds in well devised surprises. pulled his body over onto a more solid foundation.

He got on his feet, and the perspiration bathed his body as he looked into the yawning pit from which he escaped. The depression caused by the cave-in was thirty feet deep, and, though not very great in diameter, it was big enough to swallow up several men larger than he. The opening from which Mr. Finn narrowly escaped with his life is in the workings of Pine Ridge colliery, operated by the Algonquin Coal Company.

The late James Wood, of Union township, by the term of his will, which was probated last week, leaves his farm of seventy-seven acres, all his live stock and his personal property to his wife during life and names her as executrix. A remarkable fact concerning the will is that it was drawn in 1864, nearly thirty-six years before the death of Mr. Wood, and that in all that period of time he had no occasion to alter its provisions. The witnesses to the will, Lot Fink and W. S. Monroe are both dead. The deceased was about 70 years old when he died.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO MEN IN THE MINE AND ON THE RAIL.

Comrade—48,000,000 Tons of Anthracite Shipped During 1899.

There is trouble brewing because the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company has discharged 235 Polish miners employed at the Henry Clay, Burnside and Bear Valley colleries, Shamokin. Last Monday Thomas Boczkenski was killed by falling down a breast. He was a member of a Polish beneficial society. The rules of the organization are that every member must attend the funeral of a deceased brother, or pay a fine of §2 each. The men who expected to attend the funeral approached the bosses and requested permission to remain idle the next day in order to go to the funeral, but they were ordered to work or forfeit their positions. All the members stayed home to attend the funeral. When they appeared at the different collieries next day they were told to take their tools and return home, as their services were no longer desired. Many of the miners are members of the United Mine Workers of America.

Later.—On Saturday the company re-

America.

Later.—On Saturday the company re instated every one of the 235 discharged men and harmony prevails again.

In its review of the present situation the Coal Trade Journal for last weel the Coal Trade Journal for last week says: "The anthractic coal trade is in very fair shape, and the output of the mines is moving of to the consumer in good fashion, so that prices are held about as they have been for some time past. There is not the production that there was during the past month or two, and in this there is a wise discretion exercised, as the great tonnage then forwarded must needs be out of the way before there is the place for another equal quantity. The output has been reduced from the holiday season or from the inclemency of the weather, and these helps in this direction take the place of any concerted action looking toward a lessened output. The December production of anthracite coal is officially estimated at 4,500,000 tons, and this is not far away from the estimate made at the close of the year, and brings the total up in the round quantity of 48,000,000 gross tons shipped to market, which is a record year for this important industry."

The constitutionality of the Labor Union act, in the case of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, appellent, against George Clark, appellee, was argued before the superior court at Scranton on Friday by attorneys representing several labor organizations of the state. Clark was plumbing foreman for Hunt & Connell, of Scranton, and discharged an employe of the firm because of his connection, it is alleged, with a labor union. In the suit against Clark in the lower court, Judge Gunster held that the labor act known as the "Jere Weller bill," under which the action was brought, is unconstitutional because in singling out corporations from other classes of employers it becomes special legislation. The appeal is from this decision. An opinion will be given today.

The remains of Fire Boss William Callowsy, which are entombed behind a pile of coal and debris in the workings of Kaskawilliam coillery, Schuylkill county, have not yet been recovered, although a big force of men have been working incessantly for the past three weeks fore the body is reached.
