The renders of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials to address: F. J. Municipal Novelty.
There is a decidedly humorous side which occasionally comes to light in connection with the undertakings of municipal corporations, but the action of the enterprising city fathers of a small Hungarian town is certainly unique. The mayor and whole town council, consisting of eight members, formed themselves into a band of forgers, and carried on a thriving business in the town hall, manufacturing paper notes current in Austria, which they circulated pretty extensively. A workshop, well fitted with the necessary implements, was fixed up in a cellar of the town hall, and they actually set policemen to guard the door while they were at work. This remarkable state of affairs existed for over a couple of years, when the business was detected, the mayor and councillors fighting like professional brigands on being arrested.

Didn't Know Kipling.
Mr. Howells has lately spoken of Rudyard Kipling as the most famous man in the world today. It would, indeed, be difficult to suggest a man whose name is more widely known. The following story is a curious commentary on the value of fame: During Kipling's illness, Henry James, the American author, was one night driving home in a cab from his club in London. The news had just come that the crisis was past and the great writer was on the road to recovery. As he stepped out on the sidewalk, Mr. James handed the paper he had bought to the cabman. "Kipling's all right," he said. The cabman took the paper and leaned down with a puzzled look on his face. "I don't seem to know the name of the 'oss'!" he said.—St. Louis Republic.

CHICAGO PLATFORM.
NEVER CAN BE SEPARATED FROM DEMOCRACY.

It Came from the People as a Protest Against Clevelandism, Carlisleism, Whitneysm and Wall Streetism—With It Reaffirmed the Party Will Win.

In 1896 a large number of people had become restless under, and dissatisfied with, the management of these commercial politicians who had controlled party organizations, and concluded to take matters into their own hands. The Chicago convention, representing a great party, took that party out of the gambling arena of the stock markets, and put it once more on the high plane of public welfare. With their eyes on the future, with the voices of their ancestors and the patriots of '76 in their ears, and with the weight of the heritage they should leave to their children resting on their hearts, they presented as issues fundamental truths. As champion they selected a statesman from the west, with clear brain and honest heart and devoted to the interests of the people. Since that time these professional issue makers have had a dull market for their productions. Lately they have been trying to persuade the allied forces of reform that a new set of principles is needed. We have re-examined the construction of the Chicago production and the material of which it is made. It does not show evidence of wear or indication of decay. It has in it life, power and purpose. Its champion has been tried and has been found to be true in purpose and intent. We are not much impressed by any reason advanced for laying aside the platform of the standard-bearer. These commercial agents have abandoned the idea of a new construction and set up a repair shop. They have been to see Mr. Bryan to persuade him to give his consent to their employment to make a few trifling changes. In their ignorance of the principles upon which the structure was built, in utter misconception of the character and ability of its architect, they advise the changes that would destroy the structure. It is time to remember that intellectual force, that motives, that moral responsibilities, are individual. There is no intellectual power in a corporation. The motives of every such organization are the motives of individuals. The moral responsibility must be paid upon the individuals. Make what legal restrictions and limitations you can, what good are the restrictions and limitations if the individuals that furnish the intellect and the motives are able to escape observation, retain what they extort from their victims by the aid of these monsters, and preserve their standing among their fellow-men?—A. J. Van Vorhis.

NO DEAD ISSUES.
The American people have always been confronted with political issues of vital importance to a government based upon popular sovereignty. Since the beginning of the nation to the present day, not a single question concerning the people, or bearing upon their welfare and proper manner of government, may be said to have been abandoned or cast out into any fancied Gehenna of dead, extinct issues. An issue can only die, become extinct, when a radical change in our form of government makes it treason to broach it, or impossible to maintain it.

The principles of human freedom, equal rights and political liberty rest upon so slender a foothold, so delicately are they balanced in the scale of human ambition and greed, that it behooves a free people to beware of being caught napping when the bogie man of imperialism comes prowling about with the intent to subvert or undermine their liberties. Because a certain issue is not constantly reiterated is not a reason why that issue has been abandoned, or even substituted by other issues. National autonomy, and the integrity of our national existence upon the lines established in the constitution, which was and is but the fulfillment of the principles given to the world in the declaration of independence, are issues not to be frowned down by clownish comicallities and covert sneers of derision. They are living issues and draw with them all other issues in any manner pertaining to them. The people know where the Democratic party stands on the silver question; they know that the Chicago platform enunciated a financial doctrine incapable of being argued out of existence because of its vital importance to the welfare of the whole people, and the fact that it is not a dead issue is patent from the continued efforts of the Republican party to keep alive the issue of the gold standard, with its most radical and pernicious results. Having established that financial truism, it is assumed that the Democratic party should become blind to all other issues, and forsake those which are also of the greatest moment, and of the most vital importance, inasmuch as they are pressing upon the people with all the power of an administration which assumes upon itself all of the prerogatives of government, to the exclusion of its other co-ordinate branches. Whatever issues are of material interest to the welfare of the people are within the province and policy of the party of Jefferson, of Washington and Lincoln, and it purposes to include those issues as living issues whether sounded through a trumpet or implied in its opposition to any and all measures foisted upon the people under the guise of loyalty to President McKinley or the Empress of India. Let all men know and be advised, once for all, that the Democratic party does not intend to abandon any issue of importance to the national and individual welfare.

SHOCKING THE GOLD STANDARD

Every adverse wind that blows upon the gold standard gives it a chill that endangers its vitality. To mention silver is to throw it into spasms calling for a rush of all sorts of physicians, even jesters, to restore it to life and jubilation. Another blow is given it from an unexpected adversary who does not mention the bugbear of silver, but makes it feel the same cold chills.

Count von Posadowsky-Wehner, the German minister of the interior became an open heretic in the presence of Andrew D. White, U. S. Ambassador at Berlin, and of other dignitaries of the German empire, all of whom agreed with him, at least, nobody disputed him. "If this unterbilanz (meaning "balance of trade") against Germany continues, says he, "We shall have to drop the gold standard." Here is a nice admission. The gold standard then, is not the creator of a balance of trade in favor of the nation adopting it. It certainly is not, in fact it is and always has been the direct opposite. The fact that the balance of trade has been so enormously in favor of the United States during the past two years, is wholly due to our enormous productions and not to the gold standard. That it is not due to the gold standard is evident from the remarks of the German count whose grievance arises out of the fact that the gold standard gives a balance of trade against Germany, and if it keeps on he will drop it. The count's declaration was directed at the United States, and he desired some advantageous commercial treaty which would equalize this balance of trade, that is, give Germany an advantage by reducing the balance in our favor.

European financiers, as well as some of our own, regard the enormous sum of about six hundred millions of dollars, the annual balance of trade in our favor, a very good thing for the country, too much, in fact, for if it continued several years longer, it will absorb all the money in the world. But when we investigate, it is discovered that our balance of trade is as fictitious as the quantity of our circulating medium. In 1898-9, the balance of trade in our favor was in excess of six hundred and sixteen millions of dollars in gold. As a matter of fact, deducting from the amount of gold actually received, the total amount of our exports, there was only about eighty millions balance, and that was not all coined as the mint reports show. It goes, some say, towards paying interest on our indebtedness abroad, expenses of Americans in Europe, steamship passages, etc. It certainly never gets into circulation, for our money stock, instead of increasing, is being constantly contracted, and our debts are increasing faster than our output of gold and balance of trade combined. The imperial minister of the German interior is undoubtedly correct in his evident belief that the dropping of the gold standard would restore the balance of trade in favor of Germany, a result that would be experienced in every producing nation in the world.

AGUINALDO'S PROPOSITION.

New York, Nov. 23.—A letter to the World from its Hongkong correspondent, under date of Oct. 19, gives a remarkable interview with Aguinaldo. The interview, according to the correspondent, comes from an American who has lived for years in the Philippines and has known Aguinaldo for a long time. He has been through the lines and has been two weeks with the insurgent commander-in-chief. This American is a business man with several correspondents on the New York Produce Exchange and agent of one of the firms running a line of steamers to Manila. For years he was a Philippine agent of Russell & Co., of Hongkong, San Francisco, New York and Boston. According to the interview Aguinaldo wants peace, and to get it he is willing to repay the $20,000,000 which the United States paid to Spain for the Philippines, and will consent to American soldiers remaining in Manila till the debt is canceled. He wants a republic to consist of a president, congress and judiciary, the president to be elected by the votes of the people, the congress to be chosen in the same manner from all the Philippine islands; a judiciary to be appointed by the president or by the senate; local governments in all districts and cities to be elected by the legal voters thereof; the American soldiers to be withdrawn (with some exceptions) from the country; to satisfy the American people a subsidy on the receipts from the customs and exports to pay the American government $20,000,000, the amount paid Spain; and the taxes of real estate and personal estates to be repaid in five years; American soldiers (the number to be agreed upon) to remain at Manila until this debt is paid, then to be withdrawn from the island.

One More Question.

"I want to ask one more question," said little Frank, as he was being put to bed. "Well," acquiesced the tired mamma. "When hoses come in stockings, what becomes of the piece of stocking that was there before the hole came?"

When a fellow is told that he takes the cake, he wonders if it is dough.

SCENERY
Now Painted Upon Tough Brown Paper for Portability.

Except as regards the part that mechanism plays, the scenic artists of Italy are the best in the world, as effective painters, and the fact is so well recognized in these days of almost all scenic being done by contract—a resident scenic artist is getting to be a rarity—that a great trade of this sort has sprung up between the painters of Italy and the managers everywhere. And this is particularly so as regards companies that come to America. So heavy has been the cost of transporting tons of scenery, and so exacting have the customs officials been of late years, that the generality of managers at one time found it cheaper to have new scenes painted after they arrived. But the Italian system has largely done away with all this, for it includes the painting of the scenery on large sheets of a peculiarly tough sort of brown paper, these being numbered and joined together with unerring accuracy. A recent grand opera production in this country depended scenicly upon these sheets of paper alone, and not even the oldest playgoer in the house could distinguish any peculiarity. Of course, the sheets are spread upon canvas in the ordinary way, and a "toucher-up" is required after they are spread, but the system is immensely useful when a new production is taken from one capital to another at a great distance, and the Italian artists are sending their sheets to managers all over the world.

What Do the Children Drink?
Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more GRAIN-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. GRAIN-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about 1/4 as much. All grocers sell it, 15c. and 25c.

Sea Gulls as Weather Forecasters.
Prince Krapotkin, in Nature, says that on Aug. 26 while off Broadstairs, he noticed several flocks of gulls flying along the coast toward Dover. The wind was then and had been throughout August from the northeast, but an old fisherman remarked that the gulls were moving to the south coast to meet a southwest wind, which was sure to come. The change then predicted then occurred the following day. Mr. Ingalls strengthens this forecast by a statement in his Weather Lore: "The arrival of sea gulls from the Solway Firth to Holywood, Dumfriesshire, is generally followed by a high wind and heavy wind from the southwest."

I Use It

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a great many years and it has been very satisfactory to me in every way. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and they have all been perfectly satisfied with it."
—Mrs. A. Edwards, San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 9, 1899.

Talk About It

That's always the way with our Hair Vigor. When persons use it they are always so highly pleased with it that they tell their friends about it.

If your hair is short, too thin, splits at the ends, is rough, or is falling out, our Hair Vigor will perfectly satisfy you.

If your hair is just a little gray, or perfectly white, Ayer's Hair Vigor will bring back to it all the dark, rich color it had years and years ago. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Write the Doctor
If you do not obtain all the benefits you desire from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. He will tell you just the right thing to do, and will send you his book on the Hair and Scalp if you request it. Address, Dr. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

THE LIMIT IN LIFE INSURANCE.
In All the Companies of the World a Man Might Get Perhaps $10,000,000.

Several papers have published a paragraph to the effect that the Prince of Wales is insured for about $10,000,000, a portion of the insurance being for the benefit of creditors, and a much larger portion in favor of persons neither related to him nor having any interest whatever in his living. Professor A. F. Harvey, the insurance actuary, who is authority on all such matters, considers the statements ridiculous, and particularly the one that Prince Albert is insured for the benefit of people who have no insurable interest in him.

"Up to about 125 years ago the practice of taking out insurance on the lives of Kings, Queens and others in authority, where there was no possible insurance interest, obtained to a great extent," said the Professor when his attention was called to the paragraph. "The practice became so general, scandalous and vicious that in 1774 Parliament enacted a statute (14 Geo. 3, c. 48), prohibiting absolutely all insurance in which there was no interest to the beneficiary in the life of the principal in the contract, and prohibiting the payment of money under a policy written to secure a debt beyond the actual sum due. This law against wager or gambling policies was followed up in France and Germany and in most of the States of this country, and has since been rigidly enforced everywhere."

The amount of life insurance carried by the Prince of Wales has never been made public, and is probably known to only a few people. It is evident, however, that the total is not one-tenth of the sum named in the paragraph referred to. The most heavily insured man in the United States is ex-Postmaster-General John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, and his insurance amounts to only $2,025,000. The word "only" applies here because of the comparison with $48,775,000, according to the present market value here of $10,000,000. At a meeting of the National Life Underwriters' Association in Philadelphia four years ago Mr. Wanamaker stated that one of the first things he did after becoming of age was to insure his life. When Mr. Wanamaker addressed the Association his life insurance amounted to $1,525,000, and all but $60,000 had been taken after he was fifty years of age.

According to an Eastern insurance journal "the amount of life insurance which can be secured upon a single life among the United States companies foots up $2,600,000." The paper gives a tabulated list of forty-two old-line companies and what purports to be the limit of each. The figures are correct in the main, but there are some bad errors in the list.

Some of the companies insure for more than the amounts credited to them, but in every such case the company reinsures a portion of the risk. The figures in the table represent the limits without such reinsurance. Of course, there could be no reinsurance on a person that took the limit in every company. Legal reserve and stipulated premium companies that are not usually classed as old-liners are omitted from the table, as also assessment companies, fraternal organizations and several industrial companies that write very little, if any, ordinary life insurance. Accident companies that pay death claims, but do not write ordinary life insurance, are likewise omitted. Including all these, the total life insurance that a person could get in the United States would probably still fall below $3,000,000. There are about 350 life insurance companies in the world, not counting American companies. Very few of them insure for as much as $25,000, and the average is not half that sum, but supposing it were $20,000, the total would be only $7,000,000, which, added to the American total, would still make only about one-fifth the sum the Prince of Wales is reported to be insured for.

A Remarkable Charity.
An appeal has appeared in a Berlin contemporary for a remarkable charity. Some two hundred years ago, says the Jewish World, when the Berlin community was still very small, pious Jews founded a society in connection with the religious service then held by mourners at break of dawn. In order, however, to enable the poor to observe the seven days of mourning for relatives with some degree of comfort, the following scheme was devised and which is still, we believe, in use in other towns besides Berlin. Two boxes fitted with one and the same key were sent to the house of the mourner. In the first was a purse the mourner had to empty. If in need he retained as much of the money as he required; if in fair circumstances he could put the money in the second box, and even, if he chose, augment the sum from his pocket. None but the administrative committee had therefore an inkling of who had given or who had taken. For discretion, simplicity and trust in human goodness this Jewish charity cannot well be excelled.—London Globe.

His Forlorn Condition.
The most forlorn object in Acheson at present is a man who is visiting his kin. He is accompanied by his wife. She is being taken around to afternoon parties and is receiving and returning calls. She has the appearance of being in her element. He wanders up one side of the street and down the other until meal time. In the evening he feels like talking, having been lonesome all day, but the men of the household have been working all day, are tired and go to bed, and the women are being "entertained," so he goes to bed at 8.30 o'clock.—Acheson Globe.

If silverware is kept clean it does not often have to be polished. After using the silver it should always be washed with a suds, made by dissolving some shavings of Ivory Soap in warm water, then wiped dry and rubbed lightly with a soft paper, a chamois skin or a piece of flannel.

All highly-polished metal surfaces will retain their polish much longer if this plan is followed and rubbing with compounds avoided as much as possible.

Lights Kill the Birds.
Scarcely a morning passes but quite a number of birds, large and small, are picked up in the courtyard of the city hall in more or less injured condition. Some dying, some dead. They are birds usually found some distance away in the country. Linnets, finches, yellow birds, even occasionally blackbirds, robins and larks. It is supposed that they are attracted by the brilliant electric lights around the base of the Penn statue. It is a well-known fact that at the foot of the statue of liberty in New York harbor hundreds of birds are picked up every year. They have flown with such force against the metal figure while blinded by the intense light as to kill themselves.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

To Stop Nose Bleeding.
Bleeding of the nose is often very difficult to stop, but the efficacy of the following method is vouched for by a correspondent of the New York Times. The writer says: "Cut some blotting paper about an inch square, roll it about the size of a lead pencil, and put it up the nostril that is bleeding. The hollow in it will allow the sufferer to breathe; the blood will fill the space between the tube and the nose, and will very soon coagulate and cease to flow."
