

DYSPEPSIA.

Nervous Dyspepsia Caused me Great Distress for a Number of Years. Finally I was Cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

An active mind, suffering from overexertion, grief, trouble, worry of household cares, demands from the body a greater amount of fuel for the vital fires than the digestive organism can supply. It requires a certain amount of vital force to operate the human machine, and when all the available supply of force is absorbed by the overworked brain there is nothing left for the stomach. It is easy now to understand why irritability and dyspepsia have become almost synonymous; why a nervous person is usually so very particular and capricious about food. It is an almost undisputed fact that no marked progress can be made toward the ultimate cure of any disease until the mind is put into that calm, serene condition which is natural to people in full bodily health and vigor. Dr. Miles'

Nervine puts the mind in just that condition. It is a brain and nerve food and tonic whose important elements, acting upon the body and mind with equal force, possesses remarkable efficiency in nervous disorders.

"I had been troubled with dyspepsia, for nearly thirty years and two years ago I was taken with a nervous trouble which caused me much distress. I could not eat nor sleep, was losing strength and flesh and was melancholy and very unhappy. I employed the best physicians who said the trouble was with my nerves, but they were unable to do me any good. I tried several advertised medicines and at last began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine. By the time the first bottle was half gone I could sleep some, could eat a little and the world seemed to get right side up again. I kept right on taking the Nervine and when I had used fifteen bottles my stomach trouble was gone, and I felt well and strong. I feel very grateful for the good I have received from Dr. Miles' Nervine and would be glad if I could induce some other poor sufferer to give it a trial."

MRS. JENNIE COE,
Warren, Ohio.

"I was very nervous and restless and weak and through the advice of a friend I bought a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine, which cured me entirely. Seeing how much benefit I received from the medicine, my husband, who suffered from nervous dyspepsia and indigestion in a very severe form, thought he would give it a trial. He was very weak and nervous and was able to sleep but little. After using three bottles of the Nervine he could eat well and sleep well. My husband is very happy to think he has recovered from that terrible disease which had made his life miserable for over three years and he says he will always speak a good word for Dr. Miles' Nervine."

A GIRL OUTLAW.

Remarkable Career of "The Wild Rose of Wilton."

Within the gloomy walls of a Connecticut prison, drooping and pining for the wilderness of the forest, languishing for the lack of the sunlight, is "The Wild Rose of Wilton," says the New York Herald. Not yet out of her teens, Minnie Sturm, brown eyed and beautiful, has had a career that well might puzzle a philosopher to account for.

Rearing in a quiet, old fashioned house near Norwalk, this girl, with a rich profusion of dark brown hair, with bands soft and white, with a beauty such that many a maiden of lordly birth might envy her, untutored and in tatters, is yet a queen of men, lawless men though they are.

Not more than a mile from her home, beneath the shelter of two great rocks, was a rendezvous of a marauding band of idlers. There this farm-raider daughter found them about two years ago. She cast her life with theirs. When a raid on neighboring cellars and barns made provisions plentiful there in the rendezvous it was Minnie Sturm (Minnie Brotherton) who cooked the viands over a fire of logs.

But the band became too daring. The band of the low seized them. Some were imprisoned and the others scattered.

The Beauty of Expansion.

Under the heading "Whiskey Perdition in Manila," the Michigan Christian Advocate prints the following excerpt, which characterizes as "gleeful," from the Wine and Spirit News, one of the leading liquor papers of the country.

It indicates in a very unmistakable way a phase of the vaunted enterprise that is pushing this nation into imperialistic expansion wherever it can in the earth, and with all the power that is involved in and lies behind it.

The excerpt is called a choice one, because it is believed to be a piece of writing difficult, if not impossible, to match in certain qualities and a tone which, if he can sufficiently master his disgust, the reader can be trusted to discern and feel the force of more effectively left to himself than by any aid that may be proffered him.

PERFECTION OF A BRAND OF BEER.

The largest drug store in town devotes a whole column to advertising its fine line of liquors, with no mention of its medicines.

It is a condition of affairs in Manila that President McKinley could have prevented with the same authority that he put a stop to the bull fights of the Spaniards, and the chicken fights of the Malays.

Then, quoting the question of another, the editor of the Methodist pointedly asks:

What could the boss distiller, brewer, or saloon-keeper of this country have done for the saloon if he had been president that McKinley has not done?

The "Wild Rose's" indignation was aroused. She first pleaded with the owner to withdraw his horse and wagon to bring back his horse and wagon.

A Cure for Constipation.

I have been troubled with constipation for years. It was ruining my health, my comfort and my complexion, and I am glad to say that Celery King has restored all three, and this after trying many other medicines that were supposed to be good, but which were of no value whatever.

(Minnie Sturm.)

tered, Minnie Brotherton promised to mend her ways and the lenient authorities let her go her way.

"For a short time she lived quietly, but not contentedly, in the old house. A few months later she married Valentine Sturm, of Norwalk, and went to live with the family of her husband. Her stay there was remarkably short. Seven months after she left him, and in the winter of 1898 applied to the Selectman of Norwalk for support. She was sent to the Town Farm.

Even there she showed her wild tendencies. She fell in love with a pauper, "Jim" Collins, a gray bearded man with a wooden leg. One day they eloped from the Almshouse, and for several days there was no trace of them. Then Collins limped back to the institution and was restored to his former place, but the "Wild Rose" had no love for life in an Almshouse, and she soon found a companion in Howard Dauchy. A few days ago Dauchy and the "Wild Rose" entered the Norwalk Selectman's office and applied for admission to the Poorhouse.

Instead of accommodating them the Selectman notified Sturm, who preferred a charge of indelicacy against his wife, a charge which she stoutly repudiated. She had borrowed a horse and wagon to drive to the Town Clerk's office, saying they wished to get a marriage license. The horse and wagon were not returned, and a charge of horse theft was made.

The "Wild Rose's" indignation was aroused. She first pleaded with the owner to withdraw his horse and wagon to bring back his horse and wagon. He was determined to send her to jail, and refused. "You'll never see that horse again!" the "Wild Rose" exclaimed. "I'll go to jail and stay there." And she did.

On the farm stood the old Warwick furnace, built in 1730, and at which many of the cannons used in the Revolutionary army were cast. In the meadows many of them were buried to prevent them from falling into the hands of the British after the battle of Brandywine. In 1777, when General Washington and his army were retreating northward through Chester County, leaving this important iron furnace exposed to the mercy of the enemy.

Several of the cannons were dug up and some sent to the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876 and exhibited as relics. The old bell cast in 1777 at this furnace and used in the belfry for a great number of years is now in Independence Hall, in Philadelphia, as a relic.

The word "admiral" is of Arabic origin, and dates back to the time of the Crusades; it is but another form of the familiar Eastern titles, Emir and Ameer, and simply signifies prince. The D is intrusive and there is no connection with the Latin "mare," the sea, or with the root from which we get admiral. In European mouths the word has been variously contorted; the Teutonic races have introduced the D and suffixed, instead of prefixing, the article; or we may consider it as a contraction of some such phrase as Admir-al-Bahr, prince of the sea. The Portuguese, again, have taken the article for the first syllable, and make Almirante, but there can be no doubt as to the identity of the word. As a nation the Arabs were never a maritime power, but after their conquest of Spain they found it necessary to have a naval force, and from them both office and name were adopted by the neighboring Powers.

The famine which is spread over the greater portion of Bombay is daily becoming more acute. The enormous number of 851,528 men are employed on various relief works, but there are still millions of persons, destitute for whom no relief can be provided and who must inevitably starve to death unless immediate outside assistance is forthcoming.

Many Pennsylvania towns voted favorably on Tuesday on the question of municipal ownership of light and water plants.
