Deputy sheriffs and special officers are now on duty around the works.

A number of people attended the concert given by St. Ann's band at St. Ann's convent yesterday afternoon. Several pretty selections were rendered.

Protest Against School Census.

A meeting of the borough school board was held Saturday evening for the purpose of taking action on the census of children of school age, as taken by the several ward assessors a few months ago. Directors Kline, Trevaskis, Brown, Everitt, Vanhorn, Bell and Krommes were present, also Assessors Drasher, Evans and Miller and Assistant Assessor Ward.

The recent assessment shows that there are only 1,181 children of school age in town, a loss of 355 compared with last year. The average attendance at the public schools is 999, while over 400 borough children attend St. Ann's parochial schools and fully 100 more are enrolled at the Greek Catholic and Slavonian Lutheran schools. A conservative estimate of the children of school age who are employed at the mills and breakers would be 25 per cent of the total number, or 500 more. This, in round numbers, is 2,000 children, which is far too low to allow for a town which cast 1,035 votes last February. A decrease was shown in every ward, but the Third and South wards gave the heaviest losses.

Secretary Trevasikis read correspondence that has passed between County Superintendent Hopper and himself, from which it was learned that the last assessment figures have been forwarded to the department at Harrisburg and upon this assessment the state appropriation will be based in 1900 and 1901. The secretary estimated that the loss in the appropriation will be fully $600 a year, which means the loss of one month's schooling each year for the pupils.

The assessors explained part of the loss by stating that heretofore they were instructed to assess all children between the ages of 6 and 21 years, but that the last assessment contained only those from 6 to 16 years. The board, however, considered that there is still inaccuracy somewhere, and a motion was passed to have a re-enumeration of all the wards by persons to be appointed by the president.

The enumerators are to receive $2 per day and the assessors a like amount when they work. The assessment will be made this week, if possible, and two days are allowed for each of the First, Second, Third and Fourth wards, and four days for the South ward. If any errors are found a supplemental list will be forwarded to Harrisburg.

The secretary reported that three window panes had been broken in the Daniel Cox school during the week by pupils and others. The matter was referred to the proper committee to make a full investigation.

Accuses Son of Forgery.

The suit of John M. Ward, a merchant of Wilkes-Barre, to recover possession of property worth $20,000 which he claims his son, Eugene Ward, fraudulently obtained from him, was on trial at the county seat last week. The defendant is a lawyer and a councillor of Wilkes-Barre, and is charged with forging the names of his father and mother to three deeds and borrowing $7,000 of the property from the Mutual Guarantee Building and Loan Association.

The father testified that he knew nothing of the alleged fraudulent transfer until a year ago, when he wanted to sell the property, and found that some time previous his son had obtained possession of it. He pronounced the signatures forgeries, and so did E. W. Mulligan and Ira D. Sax, of the Second National bank, and W. A. Melcher, a member of the Philadelphia bar and a handwriting expert.

The trial will be resumed this morning.

The grand jury, at its last session, returned a true bill against the son on the charge of breaking into his father's store and stealing some silks.

Died from Son's Blow.

Thursday was pay day for the miners at Carbondale, and James Nolan went on a spree. Late that night he returned to his home and his father began to upbraid him. The altercation led to blows, and the aged mother, who for months has been an invalid with rheumatism, under the excitement, ran to a neighbor's house and gave the alarm.

When the neighbors arrived they found the father lying on the back porch, with a deep gash in his head and his skull fractured. Near-by, stuck in the ground, was an axe, on the blade of which was blood stains. The boy, aged 22 years, was later captured in a nearby saloon. He admitted having had the axe in his hand and striking his father, but said he did so in self-defense. The father died on Friday.

Jeffries-Sharkey Contest.

On Saturday evening, by special arrangement with Messrs. Wm. A. Brady and Thos. O'Rourke, the famous pictures of the Jeffries-Sharkey contest will be shown at the Grand opera house, just as it occurred in the greatest fistic encounter that has ever taken place. Much has been written about the perfection of these pictures, but the imagination scarcely conveys how vivid and thrilling they are in the way of realism. Wherever these pictures have been shown, they have created the greatest excitement.

HOW TO WEAR SHOES

CHARACTER LEARNED BY MEANS OF THE FOOTGEAR.

This Refers to Women But It Will No Doubt Apply to Men As Well—The Man Who Is Patiently Looking for The Ideal Girl.

"It gets me," said the man, "to know why women and girls are not more particular about the way they dress their feet. If they knew how much more pains in buying their shoes than they do in buying their gowns. Every one knows that the man is more particular about the way he keeps his boots and shoes than a woman. As for me, the woman I marry must have pretty, well-dressed feet. I have never found any one yet who came up to my standard of excellence, and that's why I'm not married, I suppose."

"I did think I had found her once. I fell in love with one girl. That was where I made the mistake. It was some kind of an art exhibition. There was a screen at the door from one room to another, which was a few steps higher, and happening to look across the room, I saw below that screen the daintiest, most ladylike-looking foot, slender and delicate and refined, and wearing just the right kind of a shoe for that occasion—not a great heavy walking boot, and not a dancing shoe, but just right. Of course, you don't expect me to tell you just what it was. I am not in the shoe business, but I know when a girl wears a shoe that is in good taste."

"This foot that I fell in love with I saw just for an instant as she went on to the other step and the screen hid her so that I hadn't the slightest idea who she was; young or old, hideous or beautiful. But I made up my mind I would find out. But you know how it is in a room filled with people—it is not always easy to get across it, especially if all your friends are there. By the time I reached the screen I almost gave up my foot for lost. You can't see a woman's foot in these long skirts she wears unless she is on the street. I suppose my divinity must have raised her dress as she went up the steps."

"I did find her after a time, but I had made a mistake. A man shouldn't fall in love with less than two feet and he should see how they walk. There is everything in the way a woman walks. The woman whose foot I had admired—her feet were beautiful, too—walked in a listless way. She drew one foot after the other, languidly. That might mean that she was selfish, indolent, delicate or number of other things. Just notice women who walk that way and see if I am not right."

"Then notice the woman who walks not exactly with a heavy step, but comes down flatfooted every time. She would make a good business manager, and she might know how to manage a household of servants, but she is too aggressive to be a comfortable person to get along with. It is all right for a woman to have opinions of her own; I like to see a woman who knows her own mind, and I would rather enjoy having her look after my feet if she cared to, but you don't like to be knocked over even with ideas."

"Then there is the woman who has rather a heavy dragging step. That woman is sure to have round shoulders and stoop when she walks. She has to take time to think when she answers, and it takes her a long time to see a joke. She has large feet, and her shoes do not fit trimly. That is not the kind of woman I care to know. Then there is the woman who shakes the room when she walks. She may not be over plump, and she is very likely cheerful and jolly. You like her, but her chubby feet—they are sure to be short and broad—are not for you. She is a nice kind of wife for some other man, and you like to go and take dinner with him occasionally when you are in the mood for it, but she is not the ideal woman."

"The ideal always wears trim, suitable shoes, and she walks just as a woman who has the ideal feet, ideally dressed, should. She is sure to have rather slender feet, to look flexible and make you think somehow of a pretty slender hand well gloved. Her shoes always fit her like a glove, anyway. She does not wear great manly shoes around the street all the time because they are said to be fashionable. She only wears those with the heavy, rough walking suit. For the ideal woman, you look for a well-looking boot, and for the house she wears pretty, soft, thin ones or pretty slippers, anything, according to the occasion. There are times and seasons for all kinds of boots, shoes and slippers."

"I was on the Broadway car down near the Battery the other day when a plainly dressed woman was crossing the street. When I saw her first every one in the car, men and women, were looking at her. What was the trouble, do you suppose? She was holding up her skirts a little, and so exhibited a pair of what do you call 'em, with high heels and a buckle in front?—Louis Quinz slippers, isn't it?"

"Now those are the prettiest thing a woman with a pretty foot can wear in an appropriate place, but they were out of place down there, and there was not a soul in the car that didn't notice them, and there was nothing about the woman otherwise to attract attention. I remember seeing a woman wearing low slippers on Fifth avenue not long ago, and every one who passed turned to look at her."

"My ideal girl wouldn't think of wearing a pair of shoes inappropriately. Her shoes always fit her so that she walks easily and well, with a rather quick, light step, and moves over the ground easily, without jerk-ness. You know she is a nice girl to get along with. She goes through life as smoothly and pleasantly as she walks. But she is not monotonous; you know that by her quick lightness. She always smiles at you and has a light answer ready whatever you say.

"I am looking for her and I shall find her some day. But it is surprising how quickly most women can be cut off the list when you have shoes and their concomitants as a test. You can find girls with pretty and well-dressed feet, but they are
