ver Republicans in line to give the election to Mr. McKinley." By what subterfuge Mr. McKinley expects to be re-elected in 1800 nobody seems to know, but oven the devil has a perguasive way of quoting scripture which deceives the children of light, and it is presumable that some great fatud, or fake, will be dressed up in attractive colors like circus posters to draw the crowd. Forestalling an evil is better than repenting for its exist-ence, and a political evil must be fore-stalled. This is an occasion when the personnel of Mr. McKinley is involved, and he is too much mixed up with grievances that go to the destruction of the public welfare to make him a desirable candidate on any platform. He would betray every plank if he were told to do so, and his achourage is of that suspicious character that com-pels one to hold his nose while in his presence. It is corrupt, and could not be its own master if it "ished to, for it is in the power of British finan-ciers. Gold Standard at the Same Time. The Louisville Courier-Journal, in its issue of Dec. 22, ult, brushes aside as a mere bagatelle our shipments of gold to England. "The gold reserve in the treasury," it says, "was $241,-423,427 yesterday, and the total amount of coin and bullion was but a little un-der $400,000,000." This, with $141,000,-000 in the banks and about $500,000,-000 in the country, in circulation, is as-sumed to be a splendid showing, and to elevate the United States to the front rank as a gold country. But now comes a circular from the directors of the mint to the manufacturers of jew-elry, gold leaf supply houses, and all dealers and manufacturers who use the precious metal in their work. The Chicago Tribune gives the substance of the circular in the following succinct language: "Lost or strayed-$300,000,000 in American gold coin. Any person who has information of its whereabouts will please communicate with the director of the mint." The truth is cropping out that we are short of our gold cir-culating medium the enormous sum of $400,000,000; it is lost. Not from the treasury, but from the circulation among the people. This means that there are $300,000,000 short in our mon-ey, and when we ad to this shortage of $400,000,000, we have a shortage of $400,000,000, we hav ciers.

STATISTICAL LIES.

STATISTICAL LIES. The ordinary weapons formerly used by the father of lies to entrap mankind are effet and childh. He has, how-ever, invented a new device, which op-erates upon men like fly-paper on files —it catches them every time. In "sta-tistics" modern man will find his down-fall, particularly in that branch of sta-tistics known as "financial." The dev-li scatters them in our midst, and we struggle and grasp after them like drowning men at straws, and every man seizes upon the wrong fact, and, of course, makes a wrong application of it. Anent this new disposition to get wrong and then stick to it in spite of the turth, the Louisvuile Courier-Journal is a living example and a waring. "During the past twenty-nine months there has been an international trade pressed by the professor's statements that he is going to try to find out.

director of the mint has been so im-pressed by the professor's statements that he is going to try to find out. The treasury department knows how much money the treasury contains, and the banks certainly know how much money they hold, but all our officials have been going upon the theory that our gold coin in general circulation is exactly the difference between the amounts in the treasury and in the banks, and the public have been fed with that idea until they have been al-most made to believe that we have plenty of gold coin. Even the Courier-Journal, usually so careful in its cal-culations, has been deceived by offi-cial reports. Under these circum-stances, therefore, it does not make a vast difference to the public welfare whether we ship gold coin to England or not. It may transpire that we are not so heavily laden with cir-culating, indeed, the recent stringency appears to demonstrate the fact that we are short, and short $300,000,000. From this may be deduced the actual if due the necessity of using billions of make-shift money, usually termed "industring upon the United States treas-ury to rush to the ald of the market. We do no believe that Director Rob-erts can ascertain the whereabouts of this lost money, for it does not exist, except in imagination, unless it be in old stockings and teapots. "During the past twenty-nine months there has been an international trade balance in our favor upon the mer-chandise and gold movement of $1,-190,000,000, or about $402,000,000. To this must be added silver exports of $25,000,000 yearly. This produces a net apparent value of considerably over $1,200,000,000, but this is subject to the invisible movement of exchange in-volved in the payment of interest abroad, freight charges, travelers' ex-penses, and so on. "How much of this has been settled by the return of our securities from abroad we cannot say. The amount is large, but it cannot be figured out with precision. Beyond question the debt to us is large, and as we are in-creasing our merchandise exports and only moderately adding to our im-ports there is no chouse that we abell of $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 on this movement." The vinegar in the molasses, the trap, the pitfall and death blow to the statistics is labeled with "How much of this has been settled by the return of our securities from abroad we can-not say." The truth is, our tremen-dous balance of trade has been wiped out by the return of 'our securities," and instead of being a creditor nation, we are a debtor, and paying our debts in gold. Moreover, our debts are al-ways increasing. We are worse off than the little Argentine republic, which actually receives its balance of trade in cash and not wind, and what is paid her in gold is recouped by drawing on us. We are the scape-goats, the holders of the sack which the whole world draws from and gives us back "our securities." THEY WILL NOT FORGET.

Senator Aldrich, in drscussing the gold standard bill from the Republican standpoint, uttered the following re-markable thought: "No same man believeć for an in-stant that the opening of our mints to the free coinage of silver at the ration of 16 to 1 would raise the value of sil-ver buillion from its current commer-clal price to its mint price." When it comes to "value," there is

When it comes to "value," there is no intrinsic value of any kind of bul-lion converted into money, not even gold. In trust circles the "value" of a thing is the price that can be ob-tained for it. So the w..ole of the senator's argument amounts to the cu-rious supposition that, with silver bul-lion raised to $1.29 per ounce at the mint, people would still sell their silver buillon at 60 cents. This is what the silver producer is now .olng, and it is what the Democratic party protests against.
