There Are Many Simple Things

in the world that almost any one can do. For instance, anyone can roll off a log—and yet even in the simple things some excel others. It looks like a simple thing to launder a shirt, or collar, and it is if you don't care how 'tis done. Here again the "know how" cuts any amount of ice.

The Spotless Cleanness

the neatly tint, the soft, silky finish, the flexible stiffness, these things do not come by luck and chance, but rather by systematic, intelligent handling; in short, the "know how" produces the result. We have it. Give us a trial to do your laundry.
