number of his intimate friends are ng to induce P. M. Boyle, of Kings-to become an aspirant for the occatic nomination for clerk of the Democratic nomination for clerk of the courts. Mr. Boyle would certainly make a desirable candidate for the people of the lower end, he having residied in the Fourth district over thirty years and was always popular with the people. He never before had any political aspirations, his ambition seeking a different direction.

We know of no one in the county more deserving than Mr. Boyle. He was always found assisting his party nominees at every election. He was not a Democrat for 363 days in the year, but added the two election days as well, and those two days were always the hardest days he worked in the interest of his party, and with no remuneration whatever.

Mr. Boyle is personally known to hundreds of voters here, and the placing of his name on the ticket would be only a small recognition of his services in the past.

Bull on a Kampage.

On Wednesday afternoon, says the Hazleton Standard, a number of steers were being driven to White Haven. Among the number was a bull. The door of the Ebervale store was opened. Something entranced the animal and he walked through the door. At the time that he made his appearance the store room was filled with customers. At the sight of the bull, the clerks and cusfloor.

By this time the clerks summoned courage and drove the animal out of the place into a shed on the opposite side of the street. He was only in for a minute until he reeled over and was dead. It is supposed that he suffered a rush of blood to the brain, by a vein bursting.

Vincent Highams Chosen.

Vincent Highams Chosen.
Foster schöol directors met last evening at Woodside building, with all present except Director Doudt. The application of Harry Maue, of Hazleton, for the vacant position at Hazle Brook school, was withdrawn. A ballot was then taken and resulted in the unanimous choice of Vincent Highams, of Sandy Run, as teacher.

The appointment will undoubtedly please the people of the township, as Mr. Highams is a native of Foster and was looked upon by the taxpayers as having a better claim to the position than any outside teacher.

Opera House Attractions

The Grand opera house will reopen on September 11 with a fine presentation of "South Before the War." Two nights later Murray and Wesley, two Freeland favorites who made a big hit last season in "Finnegan's Ball," will produce "The in "Finnegan's Bail," will produce "The Irish Pawnbroker."

A number of fine attractions have been booked and the management ex-pects to give the patrons of the house as good a line of shows as can be secured.

Candidate for Congress.

Asa K. DeWitt, cashier of the First National bank, Plymouth, has an-nounced that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress. A number of Democrats have been urging Mr. DeWitt for several weeks and it is in response to these appeals that he has consented to allow his name to go before the convention. Mr. DeWitt is one of Plymouth's leading citizens and is popular with his townsmen.

Coles in the Toils.

Coles in the Toils.

James and Mary Cole, former residents of town, were arrested at Hazleton Wednesday night on charges preferred by the Humane Association. It is claimed their children were ill-treated and neglected and that the parents are unfit persons to care for them. The parents were fined $10 and costs, and the children were placed in care of the Humape Association, which will provide them with homes.

Insane Man Escapes.

Insane Man Escapes.

An insane Hungarian escaped from Laurytown asylum on Wednesday and started fer Freeland. At Eckley he was given a ride on a bottler's wagon and came here and remained until yesterday, when he left to visit Lattimer friends.

The man is quiet at times, but is subject to violent spells. The authorities are after him and will take better care of him in the future.

Will Sell Property.

The owners of the Moran property on East Front street, near Centre, will offer the lot and buildings thereon at public sale on Thursday, September 20. The site is an excellent one for business purposes and ought to command attention from investors.

Situation Unchanged.

There is yet no change in the labor situation. The operators, speaking individually, give no encouragement to those who hope they will treat with the men. Several have placed themselves on record as opposed to granting any of the demands.

Unconscious on the Road.
A daring hold-up, which may result in murder, occurred Wednesday night on the public road between Hunlocks and Shickshinny. While John Bankes, of Huntington township, was returning to his home from market he was stopped in a tonely spot by three men and ordered to hand over his money. He refused and showed fight, but was struck over the head in the scuffle which followed and was, rendered unconscious. His body was dragged into the brush along the road and his pockets rifled.

An eight-year-old son who had been ets rifled.

An eight-year-old son who had been asleep in the rear of the wagon on awakening and realizing what was taking place escaped and made his way back to the nearest farm house. A posse was quickly formed and was guided back by the boy. The team was found tied along the road and the body near on the opposite side. The body was brought to Hunlocks, where on examination it was found that the skull was crushed and small hopes are entertained for his recovery.

The authorities have no clue as v ut it is thought it was the tramps, as the road skirts the D. L. and W. Railroad at that place.

BREVITIES.

Used Boys as Mules.

"The mules' harness broke too easily, and that is the reason we had boys haul cars at the breaker," was what one of the witnesses told Coroner Roberts, of Lackawanna county, at the inquest on the body of Patrick Murray, of Scranton, who was ground to death by the wheels of a heavy gondola at a colliery last Friday.

The coroner's jury rendered a verdict censuring the company for placing such a low estimate on the lives of breaker boys as to utilize them for heavy draught purposes.
